Pacific Gas and Electric Company employees, attempting to trace problems in a remote and obscure microwave repeater station in Northern California, test a line and make a mistake.

The false signal trips circuit breakers at two key points along the Pacific Coast Interline—that complex series of wires, relays, and power plants, which pipe electricity from British Columbia to Los Angeles, tying all of the west together into a fragile net of electrical power. A series of relays click between Round Mountain and Table Mountain substations, hidden in the Sierra, south of the Oregon border.

Power along the Oregon-California tie lines reverses from 1,140 megawatts (1,140,000,000 watts) flowing south to 1,038 megawatts flowing north. Other power flows are affected and the deficit of power in California climbs in seconds to 2897 megawatts.

California is an electrical island, alone, as separations take place, isolating it from the Utah and Montana electrical systems on the east. Power is pouring out—not into—California. Lights flicker, brown and then go out. California is dark from the Oregon border to San Diego; the state is without traffic lights, refrigeration, air conditioning, and only the flicker of emergency power remains. Major power failures are reported in Utah, Montana, Arizona, Washington, Texas, New Mexico, Oregon and British Columbia.

On May 21, 1968, PG&E linemen apparently did put out "electrical noise" on the intertie lines. The relay switches did click. Then...

California did become an electrical power "island."

350,000 Honor America at Gala Rally in Capital

WASHINGTON (U) — America never had such a birthday party before. Super stars gave their talent. Common people and great gave their prayer, song and cheers.

Dissenters, claiming their heritage, clamored on the fringes, but the theme of unity clung through thunder, rain, tear gas and a hail of stones.

Bob Hope cracked jokes, keeping his pledge to keep Honor America Day off politics and on fun and country. Billy Graham preached a sermon of unity and common ideals. President Nixon sent his greeting in the same mood.

What America's founding fathers did 194 years ago when they declared this country independent, the President said, "is the greatest political achievement in the history of man and we are the beneficiaries of the achievement."

Most of the mixed crowd at the nighttime gala cheered Hope and a host of other entertainers. A few threw pop bottles and litter, but no real harm was done.

Scattered skirmishes between police and young antiwar protesters throughout the afternoon failed to scare away a crowd for the Hope show estimated by various police sources from 250,000 to 350,000, in the neighborhood of the largest rally ever held here.

Tinges of tear gas still hung in the air, but the dissenters who continued to harass the festivities, though largely ignored, never numbered more than 100.

The slight tensions of the day eventually melted into bursts of applause at one of the greatest gathering of stars in America's history.

57 Wounded Before 400 Rioting Black Prisoners Give Up to Police

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — About 400 rioting Negro prisoners held white guards and inmates captive for three hours Saturday at Holmesburg Prison, chopped a hand off one hostage and threatened to kill them all before surrendering to several hundred heavily-armed police.

Police said 57 persons, including eight guards, were wounded before the rioters bowed to their threats to use tear gas and dogs.

EIGHTEEN hostages were helped to safety by firemen who sawed through metal bars on mess hall windows, while the riot broke out, while police fired their guns to keep the rioters away from them. Most of the hostages were wounded.

"Hurry up and get us out of here," one captive yelled to officers who dropped in bandages and antiseptics. "They're going to kill us."

Another shouted, "These bandages aren't going to help us. We're dying."

The first policeman on the scene said several inmates were wounded by police gunfire, including the prisoner who chopped off a hostage's hand with a meat cleaver.

Armed with knives and meat cleavers from the prison kitchen, the black rioters threatened to kill the dozens of whites.

TWO Philadelphia newspapers received telephone calls from prisoners in the mess hall, who told them the reason for the riot was "treatment of blacks and Puerto Ricans."

"If we do not get better treatment, look for a war," the caller said.

The Philadelphia Sunday Bulletin was told "the beasts outside with guns are ready to kill every black man in here" and that the Negroes rioted "because the man was pushin' us all around, and all that."

Farmer Won't Quit

WASHINGTON (U) — James Farmer, the highest ranking Negro appointee in the Nixon Administration, says he has no intention of resigning now as assistant secretary for administration in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The death toll from traffic accidents across the nation climbed to 316 early today, the last day of the three-day Independence Day weekend.

Driving conditions for millions of motorists on highways were reported good except for portions of the South which experienced thunderstorms, hail and damaging winds. California had most traffic deaths with 30. Texas and Pennsylvania each had 14, Ohio and Minnesota had 13 each and Michigan recorded 12.

The holiday period began at 6 p.m. Thursday and will end at midnight tonight.

Reagan Wins Battle of Budget; Threat of Fiscal Chaos Ends

Bill Flown to Waiting Governor

SACRAMENTO (U) — Gov. Reagan signed a $6.59 billion austerity budget Saturday—four days late—after he won a key election-year legislative battle with hold-out Senate Democrats.

The Republican governor hailed the extraordinary Fourth of July action as "a great victory for the people, the taxpayers of California."

The actual budget bill, which finally became law some 90 hours after the constitutional deadline, was flown to Reagan's Pacific Palisades home where he signed it just as it passed the Senate earlier Saturday 27-9.

It was the first time Reagan had not used his "blue pencil" item veto power in signing a budget. Last year he trimmed $125 million. He can cut from the final budget, but cannot add to it.

FIRECRACKERS banged out in Senate corridors after the final vote at noon Saturday, but there was little joy for dejected Democrats who failed to budge the governor in face-to-face negotiations.

They said the budget really is unbalanced and means a tax increase is a cinch next year — too late to hurt Reagan in the fall elections.

Reagan withheld bitter public condemnation of holdout Democrats until after the final vote. Then, his press office issued a statement calling the four-day overtime stalemate "meaningless and unnecessary... irresponsibility."

He took credit for putting $102 million in new school aid into the budget "without increasing taxes." The $102 million came during earlier negotiations between Democrats and GOP leaders.

FRIDAY Reagan rejected Democrats demands for an additional $180 million in state aid to schools. That was the main item they had held out for.

The key vote came from Sen. Lawrence E. Walsh, D-Huntington Park, who had voted no before but who announced Saturday he had changed his mind.

"We have reached an impasse and someone must accept the responsibility of breaking the stalemate before the state is thrown into fiscal chaos," Walsh said.

In an aura of mystery, Senate Democrats had caucused throughout the morning and negotiated

Class of '50

Q. Is there a reunion planned for the Wilson High School class of 1950? How can I find out what classes are planning such gatherings? O.M., San Bernardino.

A. There is at present no reunion being planned for the Bruin class of that year, according to a spokesman for the school district. Activities offices at each high school keep track of such alumni meetings, and anyone can call these offices to get in touch with other class members who are planning reunions.

Well Stacked

Q. How long has the Navy Ammunition Depot been at Seal Beach and how long have those huge floats been stacked up along Pacific Coast Highway? K.M., Long Beach.

A. The Naval Ammunition and Net Depot started operations in November 1944 as a source of ammunition and supply for the Long Beach-San Pedro fleet. Now called the U.S. Naval Weapons Station at Seal Beach, the facility cost $20 million to set up, and covered 5,000 acres at its largest. Until 1946, the station employed more than 1,700 servicemen and about 700 civilians. Closed except for maintenance operations in 1949, the facility was fully reactivated in 1951 and has been operating since. The neat rows of net floats stacked at Bay Boulevard along Pacific Coast Highway have been a landmark in the area since 1944. Once used to float submarine nets across harbor entrances, the buoys became obsolete with the advent of submarines with long-range striking capabilities. The Navy has sold about 15,000 of the buoys since 1965 as scrap, but still has 5,000.

Old Onion

Q. I am trying to collect "Meissen Onion" design dishes. I cannot find out any of the history of this pattern and wonder if you have any information. Mrs. R. B., Long Beach.

A. The Meissen China Co. of Germany in 1732 adapted an old Chinese floral design which came to be known as the "onion." The original Chinese design actually depicted peaches and pomegranates. In early Meissens, all

Plane Hits Yard Here; 4 Killed

Four people died late Saturday night when their light plane exploded after crashing in the rear yard of a Lakewood home.

Preliminary reports indicated the four died after their Piper Cherokee clipped a power line alongside 605 Freeway. It then plunged onto San Gabriel Avenue, skidded through a fence and exploded in the rear yard of the last home in a tract.

Lawrence Houston and his family, owners of the home at 108433 Andy St., were not home at the time.

THE PLANE was gutted by the flash fire accompanying the crash.

Five county fire department engine companies battled flames that were visible from the Long Beach Airport control tower, about three miles away.

Flight Controller A. R. King said he saw a bright flash, indicating a possible explosion after the single-engine plane went down.

"It was a miracle that it missed those houses," said one neighbor at the scene.

The control tower at the Long Beach Airport, presumed destination of the plane, was not in radio contact with the craft at the time of the accident.

Names of the victims were being withheld pending notification of relatives.

Peace Bid Snagged in Viet Talks

SAIGON (U) — President Nguyen Van Thieu and Secretary of State William P. Rogers failed to reach any decision Saturday on a joint peace proposal to be put forth at the Paris talks, U.S. officials said.

The officials said Rogers and Thieu had agreed to stay in close touch on other possible initiatives, but they made no date to meet again on the subject during the American secretary's three-day stay here.

Rogers said on his arrival in Saigon on Saturday that "It is time for negotiations — real negotiations — to end this war and bring to the people of South Vietnam a fair and lasting peace."

The South Vietnamese government has been cool to a suggestion by President Nixon that "a fair political solution should reflect the existing relationship of political forces within South Vietnam."

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Slimmed Down, Sobered Jackie Gleason Marries

Jackie Gleason got married Saturday, but the only line he could muster was "I do." His pretty blonde bride stole the show.

The 54-year-old television star and former secretary Beverly McKiltrick drove to the small English town of Ashford in a brown Rolls-Royce for their brief wedding in the Town Hall Registry Office.

While Gleason played straight man, his 37-year-old American bride came up with the sole wedding quip:

"I didn't buy him a present — I gave myself to him."

AWAY THEY GO, THE HONEYMOONERS Jackie Gleason Points to His Bride

Gleason, sober-faced and serious for the ceremony, barely uttered a word.

But outside the Registry Office he disclosed that he had trained for the event by going on a crash diet, losing 70 pounds to weight in at 210. Mrs. Gleason looked as if she weighed about half that.

A curious crowd of Saturday shoppers, attracted by television cameras and reporters, gathered outside the Town Hall to see what was going on. Few knew who Gleason was, as he is not a frequent performer on British television.

After some brief clowning for the media, Gleason took his new wife in tow and drove off.

The comic and Miss McKiltrick had been living in a rented house near this town 15 miles from London when Gleason obtained a divorce from his first wife, Genevieve, 10 days ago. They had been married 34 years.

Gleason quickly arranged for the wedding and bought his future wife a pair of pearl earrings, a pearl necklace and a pearl and diamond ring.

INDEPENDENCE

Former President Harry S. Truman, standing on the porch of his Missouri home Saturday, waved to a parade passing his residence.

The parade was part of Independence's old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration. It ended at the Truman Library, where more than 1,000 persons was on hand to hear political speeches and observe a ceremony honoring newly naturalized citizens.

Thuman, 86, rarely leaves his home, and his front porch review of the parade duplicated his performance last Fourth of July.

HE'S FINE

Retired Army Gen. Mark Clark has been released from the Charleston S.C. Naval Hospital and doctors said he was "in fine condition."

Clark, a resident of Charleston, was admitted to the hospital last week-end suffering from chest pains and a temporary change in his heartbeat.

The 74-year-old Clark served as Allied commander in Italy during World War II and as commander-in-chief of United Nations forces in the Korean conflict.

A Methodist minister plans to walk a 320-mile second lap of the "Trail of Tears," to atone, he says, for actions of white men against Indians.

"I am a white man and we caused this terrible 'Trail of Tears' in the first place," said the Rev. William Richardson, 51, of Crawford, Neb.

In 1969, his journey extended from Murphy, N.C. to Cape Girardeau, Mo. Leaving Tuesday, he hopes to complete by July 30 the second lap from Cape Gir-

A Near-Disaster in 1969; Will We Be Lucky Again?

551,911 customers in the area. Firm leads were restored in times ranging from zero to about 10 minutes," said Electrical World in its report on the "major disturbance" on the western systems.

After the start of the disturbance, California hovered on the verge of a blackout, until a complex series of relays and other systems went into operation, a not too flawless operation. Even so lights went out in Walnut Creek in the Bay Area and in Los Angeles.

Power loads were "shed," power was cut off to certain areas, in order to stabilize the entire system. Reserve power plants went into operation to restore power.

EVEN SO, the west was in the midst of a major power crisis.

"Prior to the disturbance, 1,213 megawatts of northwest power was scheduled for delivery to Southern California Edison at Midway. Of this amount, 402 megawatts went to Los Angeles Department of Water and Power and 111 megawatts to San Diego Gas and Electric. Power flow to the Midway Vincent 500-kilovolt tie was 1,170 megawatts to Southern California Edison which reversed after the tripouts and became 300 megawatts to PG&E.

"This was the equivalent to a loss of 1,470 megawatts south of Midway (to Southern California) ...," Electrical World said.

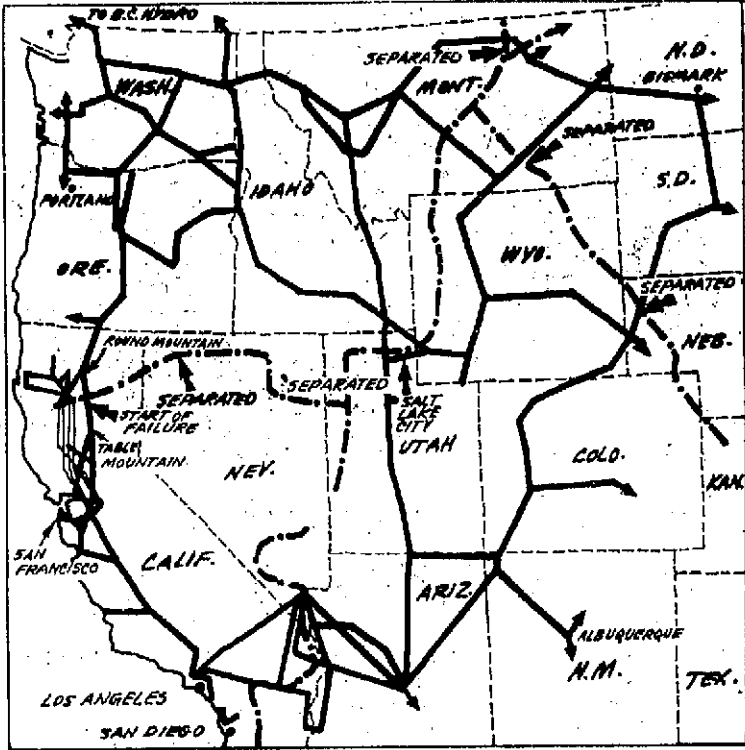

A news story of May 22, 1969, reported the incident on a minimal basis. Power failures, because of their complexity, and sometimes their scope, rarely get accurate treatment.

"A widespread power failure hit Southern California Wednesday. Sections of Los Angeles, Orange, Ventura, and Santa Barbara Counties were without electricity for two to 11 minutes."

HOWEVER, more than this area was affected.

On the north the border was British Columbia, on the east Bismarck, N.D., and El Paso, Texas, and on the south San Diego.

The power link between COMPLEXITY OF THE ELECTRICAL power network that serves the western U.S. and the sites of the 1969 Northern California power failure are shown on this Independent, Press-Telegram map.

British Columbia and Vancouver shut down. Idaho Power's American Falls plant number four "sustained a field failure." Billings, Montana, lost power momentarily. Disturbances were reported in Wyoming, Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico and the Utah system, and the El Paso area reported fluctuations of frequency.

The "disturbance" was controlled, but flaws cropped up in the control system.

Southern California Edison's Huntington Beach plant failed to respond properly.

The Los Angeles Valley steam plant had to be tripped manually, because of a failure.

And PG&E employees had difficulty in finding the original source of the problem.

CORRECTIVE measures have been taken, but this was but one incident. There have been several such incidents in the past.

So far these incidents have always been isolated, stopped before the kind of cascading power failure occurred, the kind which shut down most of the northeastern United States for days.

The demand for electrical power continues to grow in geometric progression as new appliances, new people and new demands for air conditioning compound the uses of electricity.

Any grid as complex as is the one stretching from British Columbia to San Diego is subject to failure, no matter what safety precautions are taken.

And one of those precautions is construction of more and more plants, either fossil fueled or nuclear.

What will happen the next time there is a failure some place on this gigantic net, particularly if that failure takes place at 5:30 p.m. on hot summer night as every air conditioner, stove and television set is flicked on?

(News item—Power failures and brownouts are feared this summer throughout the northeast portion of the United States. Inadequate power generation and increased loads from air conditioners and other appliances may lead to a repeat of the New York blackout.)

(News item — That can't happen here, California power company officials say.)

On May 21, 1969, the failsafes worked, but just barely. What will happen next time?

Brush Fire Scorches Laguna Niguel Acreage

A brush fire blackened nearly 40 acres in the Laguna Niguel area Saturday afternoon before Orange County fire fighters halted it less than a quarter-mile from three housing tracks.

Driven by a sea breeze of about 15 m.p.h., the fire cut a long, narrow swath through rolling fields of grass and light brush four miles southeast of Laguna Beach after it was detected at 3:10 p.m., an Orange County Fire Department spokesman said.

Two air tankers dropping fire-retardant chemicals were called in to assist 50 men from the county department and state Division of Forestry when the flames began pushing toward the three housing subdivisions.

The fire fighters, under the command of Battalion Chief David Mack, contained the blaze about 4:20 p.m. Cause of the fire is under investigation.

Wide Open Probe Sought Into Killing by Policeman

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An open investigation — not just a closed grand jury inquiry — is demanded by Viola Amie into the fatal shooting by police of her son, Jerry Lee Amie, 24, last June 20.

Mrs. Amie, with attorney Mitchell B. Smith at her side, met newsmen Friday on the front lawn of her home in this city's Negro south central area.

Police said her son carried a toy pistol when he was shot.

"A grand jury investigation is by nature closed," Smith said. "What we want is an open investigation. We want to know if police were at fault or not."

"We will not be satisfied with a grand jury investigation only. But we will not be dissatisfied if there is an open hearing in addition to the grand jury investigation," he said.

Police Chief Edward M. Davis, saying there had been many unfounded rumors circulating in the black community about the case, asked Dist. Atty. Evelle Younger on Wednesday to have the grand jury look into the shooting to see if "any criminal acts occurred during the incident."

Probation for Heckling

Two student militants at California State College at Fullerton were put on probation for their heckling of Gov. Ronald Reagan in a speech Feb. 8, an incident which triggered a series of campus confrontations.

College President William B. Laugsdorf said Saturday that probation for Bruce Church, 31, of Fullerton, will extend through next spring semester, and that David MacKowiak, 25, of Corona, will be on probation through next fall's semester under a ruling made after a campus hearing.

Both are awaiting trial in Fullerton Municipal Court for disrupting the governor's speech, and both are awaiting student court disciplinary hearings, along with 20 others, on assorted charges growing out of disruptions since March 1.

The disciplinary hearings begin Monday. They are due to be concluded July 17, according to Ernest A. Becker, dean of students, who will be hearing officer in 18 cases. In 11 other cases, Becker disqualified himself because he witnessed some of the disruptions for which students are charged.

Hot Employment Prospect

Q. I own a business in Long Beach and hired a man who later turned out to be wanted by police. Is there a way for an employer to find out if a prospective employee has an arrest record or is wanted by the law? J.N., Long Beach.

A. Although police criminal records are not accessible to the public, the detective bureau will usually check, on request, to see if a person is wanted for a crime, according to a spokesman for the Long Beach Police Department records bureau. There must be enough initial evidence to merit an investigation, however. "We don't have time to check out someone who appears suspicious to someone else," he said. He added that police records are not available except upon a court order. Even the person arrested is given only the date, charge and final disposition of the case when he requests information from records. Court proceedings are public record, but you would need to know what jurisdiction in which a person may have been brought to the bar of justice. A complete file of criminal court cases in the county is open to the public at the Hall of Justice, 211 W. Temple St., Los Angeles. A court register of defendants in felony cases will give basic information such as the type of crime, the plea made, and the outcome.

Herbalist

Q. Do you know a source of herbs? I'm attempting to get an herb called eyebright. M.B., Norwalk.

A. Eyebright tea is available from Schulman's Nutrition Centers, 136 and 655 Pine Ave., Long Beach. Or you can order a packet from Herb Products, 11012 Magnolia St., North Hollywood. A spokesman for the latter firm said you can write for their free catalog and order form. Eyebright leaves are priced at about 70 cents for three ounces. The herb is found throughout Europe and is sometimes called scarlet pimpernel. It was used widely in the 19th century to alleviate eye irritations and help vision.

859,000 FLOCK TO AREA BEACHES

An estimated 859,000 persons jammed highways leading to and from Southern California beaches and virtually covered strands from Zuma to Laguna, basking in 80-degree Fourth of July sunshine.

Capacity crowds and crowded lifeguards were standard at most beaches, with lifeguards attributing moderate rescue activity to generally light surf and rip tide activity.

ALTHOUGH 280 rescues were made, no deaths or serious injuries were reported.

At Long Beach, 140,000 persons crowded the sandy stretches from the Arena to the end of the Alamitos Peninsula, enjoying the 80-degree heat and warm, 80-degree coastal waters. Many stayed after sundown.

South Bay lifeguards at Torrance, Redondo, Hermosa and Manhattan Beaches reported about 275,000 persons in attendance, with temperatures in the mid-70's. About 30 rescues were made there, guards said.

Along the one-mile strand in Seal Beach, lifeguards estimated the crowds at about 18,000 sunbathers — just 1,000 below capacity — but only 15 rescues were made.

HUNTINGTON BEACH reported 130,000 bathers on the strand there, while neighboring Huntington State had 85,000 persons in attendance. Newport Beach's crowd-count ran to 120,000 sunbathers, and Laguna Beach lifeguards estimated they hosted about 30,000 persons.

Temperatures along the shore ranged from 74 at Huntington State Beach to 88 at Long Beach. Only Huntington Beach, where strong rip tides churned in three-to-five foot surf, reported heavy rescue activity. Guards pulled 75 bathers from the surf there.

CLARENCE, A CAT IN NO HURRY, PEERS SUSPICIOUSLY FROM INSIDE JETLINER'S WING. He Kept United Plane Grounded for Nine Hours at Ontario as Efforts to Lure Him Outside Failed

—AP Wirephoto

PURR-SNICKETY STOWAWAY

'Friendly Skies' Don't Lure This Cat

ONTARIO (AP) — Clarence the cat managed to ground a Chicago-bound jetliner carrying 36 passengers for nearly nine hours when he got out of a cage and took off on his own.

Clarence, a 3-year-old tomcat, burst from his cage just before a Boeing 720B jet was due to take off Friday from Ontario, a suburban airport which supplements Los Angeles International.

Leading several of the plane's crew on a game of cat and mouse, Clarence headed for the landing gear well, scampered onto one of the huge heels and disappeared into a wing section.

Three hours later, with Clarence still missing, the passengers were transferred to another aircraft brought in from Los Angeles. More than eight hours after the flight's scheduled departure, the reluctant cat was pulled from a dark corner in which he was hiding. An engineer had removed a wing panel and spotted him with a flashlight.

Clarence's eventual destination was Arlington, Va., where his owners, Maj. and Mrs. M.A. McPeak, were moving. They weren't aboard the plane, having put him in a kennel owner's custody.

"It was the smoothest flight I've ever had," one of Clarence's fellow passengers joked. "It felt like we never left the ground."

plane's owner, United Air Lines, said:

"This is the first time we've ever been hijacked on the ground. But it took a cool cat to do it."

Why Jet Crashed Unknown

Debris Widely Scattered on Spanish Mountain

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — Rescue workers dug through the wreckage of a chartered jet airliner Saturday for the bodies of 112 British vacationers and crewmen killed when the plane crashed into a mountain north of here.

"The bodies are badly mutilated and spread over a wide area," an official said. "We are going to have a hard time identifying some of them. We still do not know what caused the crash. We understand, however, that it was rapidly losing altitude just before it hit."

About 50 rescue workers reached the mountainside crash site Saturday morning and were followed by fire trucks and ambulances.

The plane, a Dan-Air Co. Comet, was en route from Manchester, England, to Barcelona with 105 tourists and a crew of seven. It disappeared from the Barcelona airport's radar screens as it approached for a landing at dusk Friday.

PLANES AND foot patrols searched for the plane throughout the night, but it was not until 7 a.m. European time Saturday, that it was spotted by the crew of an Iberian Airlines plane en route to Barcelona from Frankfurt.

The crash site was on the steep slope of a 5,000-foot mountain 31 miles north of here. Rescuers climbed through a forest to reach the seared glade created by the crash.

Spanish officials said the plane exploded on impact. It scattered clothing, jewelry, twisted pieces of metal and bodies over wide areas of the forest.

Among the passengers were 48 men, 53 women, three children and one infant, airport officials said. They had vacations scheduled in Barcelona and at resorts along Spain's Mediterranean Costa Brava resort area.

The Comet was the fourth British plane to crash in northern Spain within the past 10 years.

Sunbathers Barely Elude Eager Posse

SONORA — A half dozen girls who had been sunbathing in the nude stepped nimbly through a field of empty beer cans and vanished into the brush as law officers raided a noisy Independence Eve picnic at Bell Meadow 34 miles east of here.

Eight young men from the Oakland area were arrested in the raid late Friday but sheriff's deputies said the vast majority, including the girls, got away into the Sierra foothills after a group of young, bare-footed non-sunbathers formed a wedge and blocked the officers' pursuit.

Tuolumne County Sheriff's Deputy Elbert Miller said his men swung into action after a report that the crowd of some 75 young people, some on motorcycles and some in cars, were threatening to take over the Dodge Ridge resort two miles away.

The threat was not carried out, said Miller, and the boisterous crowd was followed to the meadow.

Las Vegas Hotel Guests Flee Blaze

LAS VEGAS — Fire forced evacuation of a two-story wing of the Sands Hotel on the glittering Strip early Saturday and sent two elderly persons and a child to the hospital for smoke inhalation.

The fire was confined to one room and was extinguished 30 minutes after it began, the Clark County sheriff's office said.

16-Year-Old Youth Slain Over Pool Game Argument

A 16-year-old South Gate youth was jailed on suspicion of the rifle slaying of a schoolmate after an argument over a pool game early Saturday.

Police said Paul S. Taylor, of 5307 Ledgewood Rd. shot 16-year-old Gary A. Paster, 5213 Duncan Way, through the heart at point blank range with a .22-caliber rifle.

The shooting occurred when the Pas-ter youth returned to the Taylor home about 2 a.m. during a party.

The two teen-agers had quarreled earlier over a pool game, police said.

Officers said Taylor's family was vacationing in Catalina and the teen-ager had been left home alone.

Paster's parents were vacationing in Las Vegas, police said.

Both teen-agers were students at South Gate High School.

EAST LOS ANGELES MELEE Chicano Youths Attack Sheriff's Cars, Banks

EAST LOS ANGELES (U) — About 200 young people, almost all Mexican-Americans, broke windows and stoned sheriff's patrol cars in a melee that required 100 deputies to be quelled, authorities said.

About 16 blocks of the neighborhood were cordoned off during the Friday night disturbance. Fourteen were arrested for investigation of offenses from loitering to burglary and three minor injuries were reported.

The sheriff's office said the disturbances began at an intersection where a chicano youth rally had been scheduled but failed to materialize. About 50 youths, officers said, began roaming the streets and broke windows, mostly of banks and savings and loans associations. Officers had no explanation why the financial institutions were singled out.

As the deputies were called in, officers said, member of the youthful crowd disassembled a small brick wall and handed the rocks around. About 40 windows were broken in the area, including several windshields of patrol cars, deputies said.

Death Takes Vanderbilt, Noted Yachtsman, Financier

New York Times Service

NEWPORT, R.I., — Harold Stirling Vanderbilt, famous yachtsman, originator of contract bridge and former railroad financier, died Saturday at his home here, Rock Cliffe, two days before his 88th birthday.

Vanderbilt, who returned last month from his winter home, Eastover, at Manalapan, Fla., had not been ill. A family spokesman said that he had died of old age.

He is survived by his widow, the former Gertrude Lewis Conway of Philadelphia, whom he married in 1933. They had no children.

The funeral will be held Tuesday at 10 a.m. in Trinity Episcopal Church. Burial, in St. Mary's Churchyard, Portsmouth, R.I., will be private.

For decades Vanderbilt was recognized internationally as the greatest strategist and racing helmsman yachting has ever known. Last year he was awarded the Nathaniel G. Herreshoff trophy for his accomplishments.

THE AWARD, presented at the annual meeting of the North American Yacht Racing Union was made "in recognition of his contributions to yachting as a keen competitor and a superior helmsman in international competition and as the architect of a new and improved code of racing rules."

He was the only man who has been the successful skipper of three America's Cup defenders. The yachts were Enterprise in 1930, Rainbow in 1934 and Ranger in 1937, all members of the great Class J boats that are extinct.

Despite his advancing years, Vanderbilt continued his deep interest in the America's Cup as a member of the syndicate that built Intrepid for the 1967 defense. She is expected to be a candidate for this year's defense as well.

In October 1969, he retired from the union's rules committee because he found he spent so much time away from New York he was unable to attend meetings. He had been a member of the committee since it was formed in 1942.

SIX YEARS earlier he had formulated a major revision of the racing rules

Cal Seeks to Employ 4th Quarter

BERKELEY (UPI) — University of California students should be required to attend at least one summer quarter, a regents committee has recommended.

Regular summer quarters were eliminated this year to save money. Instead, the university is holding special summer sessions, for which students pay fees far higher than those required during the rest of the year.

The committee said that if one summer quarter was mandatory for each student, there would be enough students to make regular summer quarters practical.

Then the university, through year-round use of its facilities, could achieve economies, the committee said.

The recommendation was made by a committee headed by regent Robert Reynolds, and will be presented to the full board at its meeting in San Francisco July 17.

HAROLD VANDERBILT
Death Takes Yacht Racer

following revisions after World War II. The "Vanderbilt rules" was adopted throughout the world. He had been a member of the New York Yacht Club's America's Cup Committee and was a former commodore of the club.

Vanderbilt earlier had given a new sport to the card-playing world. He had been an ardent auction bridge player when, on a 1925 cruise from Los Angeles to Havana, he proposed adopting a principle from the kindred French game of piquet. This permitted scoring only of tricks for which a player had bid — or contracted.

He went on to add "vulnerability," assessing increased penalties against the side that had won the first game of a three-game rubber, and large bonuses for slam contracts bid and made. In 1927, the Whist Club of New York issued official rules with the scoring table Vanderbilt had invented.

THE NEXT year, he established the Harold S. Vanderbilt Cup for an annual "national contract bridge championship." In the new tournament, teamed with Waldemar von Zedtwitz, P. Hal Sims and Willard S. Karn, he won his own trophy.

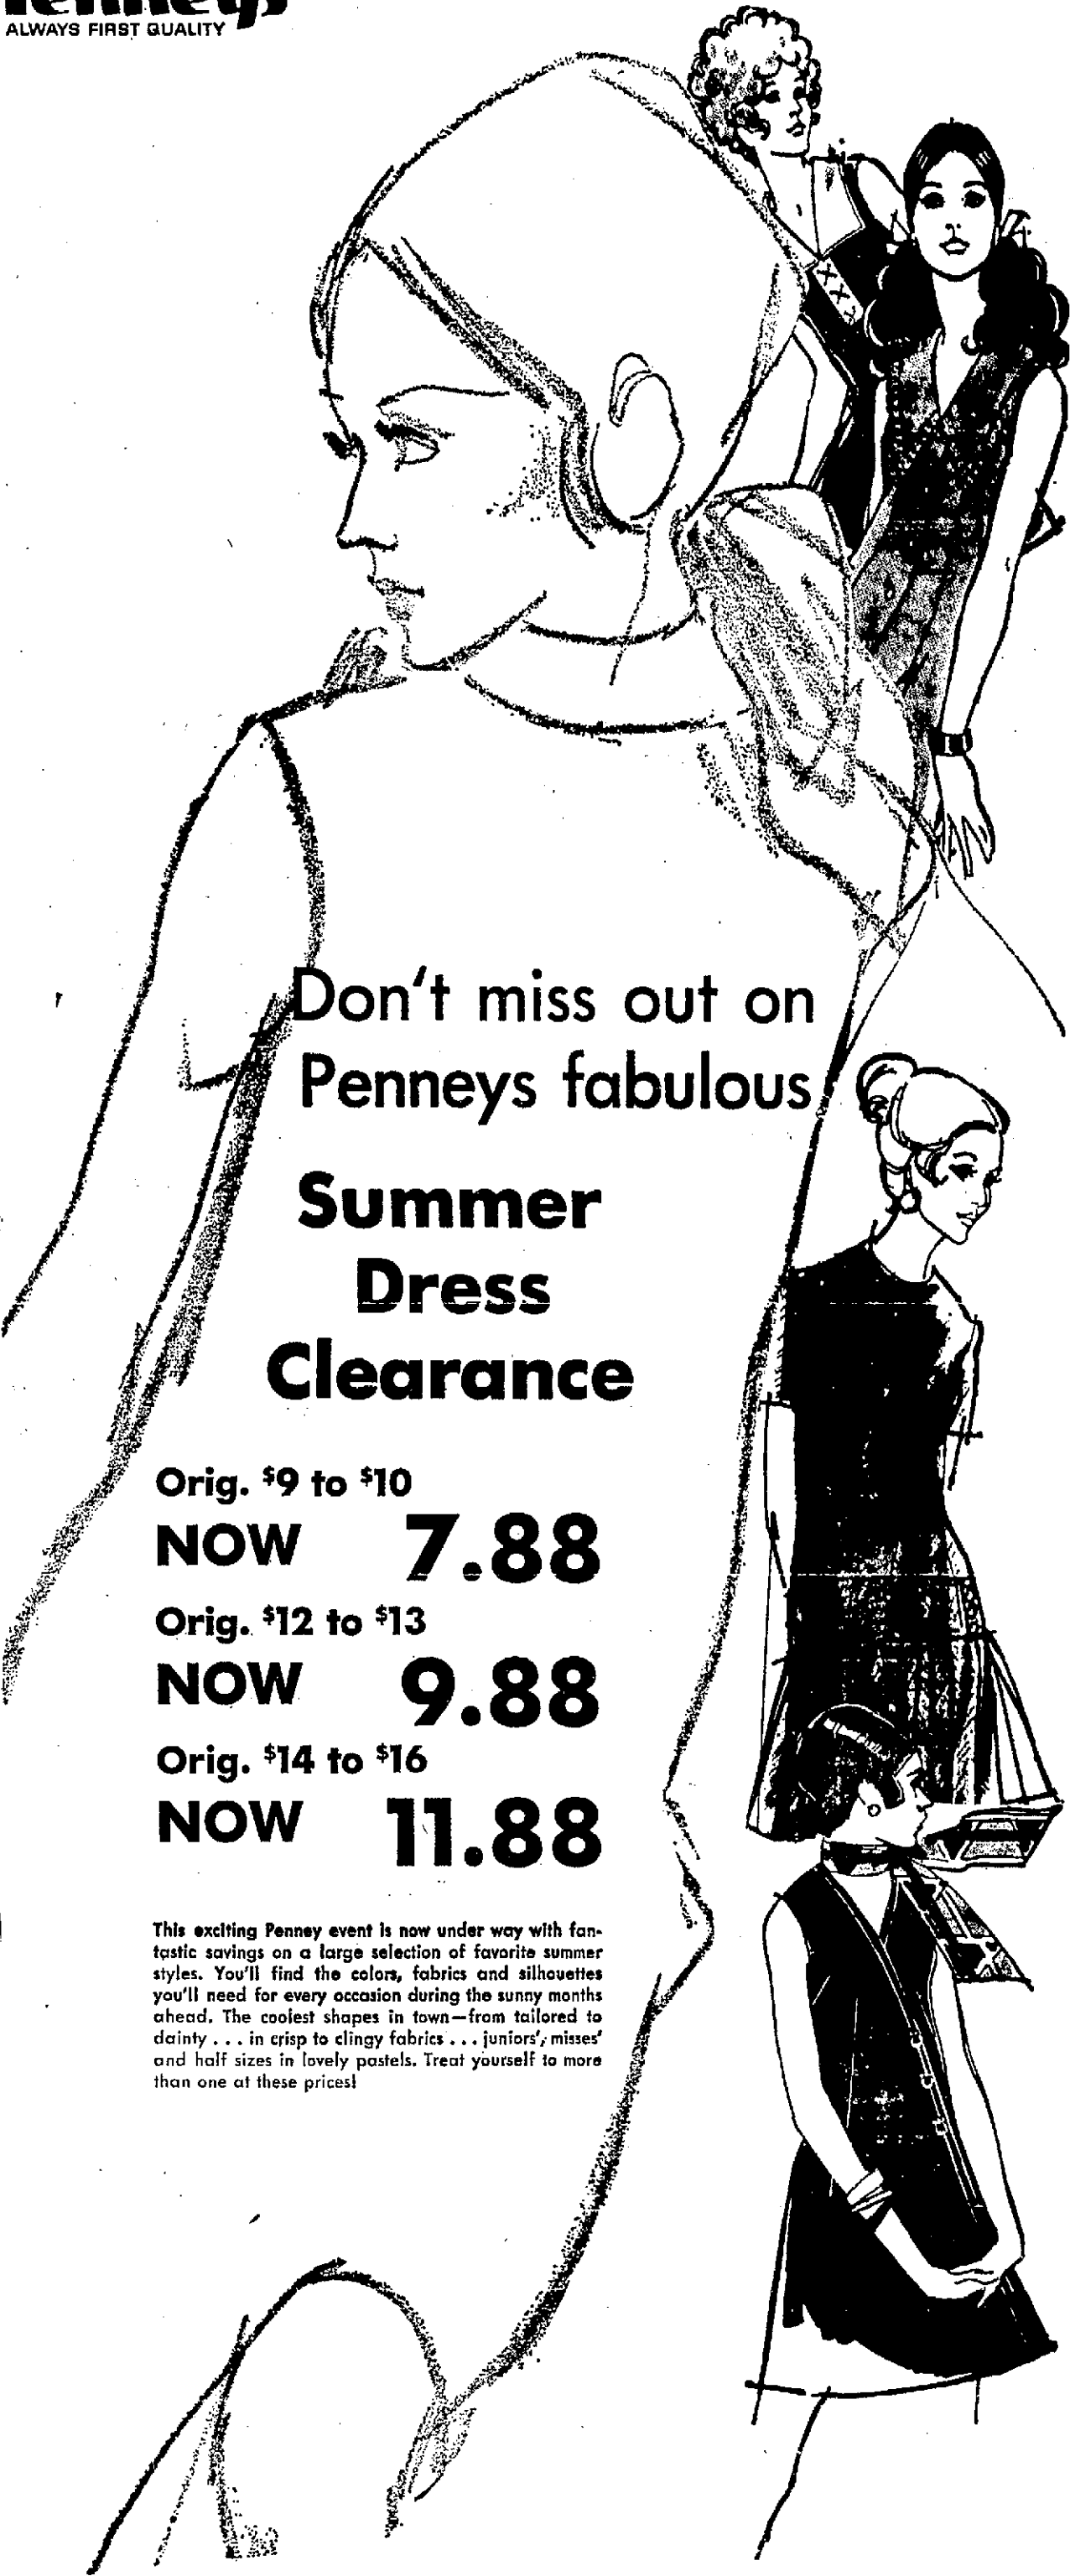

For four decades he was a director of the New York Central Railroad which is now known as the Penn Central Transportation Company. Vanderbilt's great-grandfather, Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, had put the railroad system together in 1869.

Much of the time Vanderbilt was the financial power behind the railroad network until he was at last defeated in a titanic battle of proxies in 1954 by a rival financier, the late Robert R. Young.

At the time, Vanderbilt had been a director of 27 other railroad enterprises and of the First National Bank of New York. He had been a lavish contributor to philanthropies, including $600,000 given for a Harvard medical school dormitory.

Vanderbilt, who stood 6 feet tall, was a commanding figure whether at the helm of a cup defender or on the tennis court where he was an excellent performer. He was a retiring figure who showed little interest in the social events in Newport. In recent years there were indications that he was declining in health.

Budget Finally Passed

with GOP Senate leaders, arranging to provide the needed votes.

The 26th and 27th votes were to come from Sens. Walter Stern of Bakersfield and James Mills of San Diego. Democratic leaders convinced them that such action would help their tough re-election battles.

WALSH'S action took them by surprise.

California's mammoth state government, with 181,000 employees, had gone four days into the 1970-71 fiscal year without legal authority to spend a dime for normal operations.

Reagan said Friday that the holdout senators were "playing with fire."

And Saturday, as he signed the budget, he said the stalemate was "both meaningless and unnecessary."

But Sen. George Moscone of San Francisco, the Democrats' floor leader, disagreed.

"We still are right. I know we're right," the handsome Moscone told newsmen in a Senate hallway after the noon vote.

"The taxpayers will find out, but unfortunately too late — not until after the election," Moscone added.

REAGAN is seeking a second term this November against former Assembly Speaker Jess Unruh.

Reagan agreed to add $102 million in new state aid to schools, on top of the current $1.53 billion, but rejected Democrats' demands for another $180 million.

That was asking for "a gigantic tax increase," he said.

But Democrats argued that his budget was actually unbalanced and will force California into a tax increase of up to $500 million next year.

The Assembly broke its deadlock over the budget Thursday, passing it 62-15. But the Senate that night refused passage 25-13.

Republicans control the Senate 20-19 and the Assembly 40-39, with a vacancy in each house, but Democrats can block passage of the budget because it takes a two-thirds vote to pass an appropriations bill. The 27 votes in the Senate was the precise number needed.

THE LATEST amended version provides that all state employees will receive the pay they officially lost between July 1 and July 4.

The Senate Democrats wanted Reagan to use some of the proposed $1 billion in new revenues in his tax reform plan to pay for the new school aid.

The governor said his tax revision plan is a separate issue and couldn't be used as "a bargaining tool" in the budget deadlock.

The budget crisis began to heighten when state officials disclosed early in June that they faced a $141 million deficit in the pending budget.

MORE THAN half of that was because the cooling of the economy was cutting into revenue estimates from tax sources. For instance, people were now expected to buy less and the sales tax wouldn't bring in what was earlier estimated.

And health and welfare costs had spiraled by $65 million, the experts said.

Democrats claimed Reagan's fiscal experts resorted to "cookie jar financing" and juggling to present what they claim is a balanced budget.

Actually, they contend, it is not in balance and a tax hike will be needed sometime after the election to pay for the deficit.

MAJOR FEATURES OF REAGAN BILL

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Here are major features of Gov. Reagan's $6.59 billion budget, approved 27-9 Saturday by the Senate:

Total revenues and expenditures: $6.59 billion, up $114.3 million from Reagan's original $6.48 billion proposal.

—Higher education: $631.3 million, down $34.9 million from Reagan budget, partly through deletion of five per cent cost-of-living raises for teaching personnel.

—Public schools: now $102 million above $1.52 billion in governor's original budget.

—Medi-Cal: $484.5 million, up from the February estimate of $453 million by the department of finance with increased doctor and hospital fees, higher drug prices and more patients blamed for the increase.

—Mental hygiene: $169 million.

—State employees: $40.7 million for five per cent cost-of-living increases.

Here's How Senators Voted on Budget Bill

Democrats against — Alquist, Bellenson, Dymally, Mills, Moscone, Rodda, Short, Teale, Wedworth. Total 9.

Absent or not voting — Collier, D; Dolwig, R; Petris, D; Total 3.

Bullet-Riddled Body of Youth Found

ROSAMOND (UPI) — The Kern County Coroner's Office is attempting to identify a bullet-riddled body found on the desert about 10 miles northwest of here Friday.

Sheriff's deputies said the body appeared to be that of a youth about 20 years of age. The body was discovered by four youths.

350,000 Celebrate in Capital

day so that we will be reminded of what great sacrifices have been made to make this day possible," Nixon said in a transcribed message sent from the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif.

"Then let us turn once more to the future," Nixon added, "inspired by what this day means to us and to all of us that love freedom throughout the world."

HOPE cracked jokes about Vice president Spiro T. Agnew's golf and tennis but did not mention his politics.

The closest thing to current politics was Jeannie C. Riley's singing of "When you're running down our country, you're talking on the fightin' side of me." She drew more cheers than boos.

All in all, Honor America Day had been what its sponsors had hoped for — a return to an old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration.

There was oratory of the old style, brass band music, fireworks, a saluting cannon. And the trademarks of the new generation, including nude wading in the fountains.

Graham preached to 35,000 at a morning rally and asked Americans to fulfill the dreams of their forefathers.

"Their goal must be our goal and we must pursue it," Graham proclaimed. "Their vision must be our vision and we must pursue it."

"It is the vision of one nation under God," Graham said, "where men can live as brothers in peace and in freedom."

But a few feet away a group of young people trying to crash through with their war protests were turned back by police and some of their elders who had a different view.

"One, two, three, four," the youths shouted. "We don't want your war."

"U.S.A., all the way," shouted their elders and pushed them back into the pond where they had been wading.

A few blocks down the Mall the crowd was decidedly younger at the Washington Monument grounds where a marijuana "smoke-in" and general gambol was in progress.

In the long reflecting pond linking the two scenes hundreds of young people waded in all states of dress or undress. Some spectators took a drenching from the splashing.

As Graham spoke, signs waved in the back proclaimed: "God, Guts and Gunpowder Maintain Liberty," and "America Will Survive Traitors, Trash and Panty Waist Politicians."

Also facing the speaker was a banner decreeing an "Hour of decision: God or Country." Later Graham said such a choice is not necessary in America "Where it's free."

As Pat Boone sang of the "Star Spangled Banner," young people in the pool raised the clenched fist salute of defiance.

Some stones and soft drink cans were thrown at some police. And some from the crowd were arrested. Hippie-attired youths raided the stands of drink and food vendors and passed out their booty.

POCKETS of debaters gathered with older celebrants trying to convert the young voicing their hatred for the war.

A mother with a baby in her arms discoursed earnestly with a young man with a Viet Cong flag in his arms.

As the rally broke up, a procession of flags marched to the Ellipse below the White House where they were placed to spell a huge "U.S.A."

Marathon runners who had started Tuesday from Independence Hall in Philadelphia, Valley Forge, Pa., and the capitol at Colonial Williamsburg, Va., added their flags to the spectacle.

Nixon, Bruce Map Strategy for Negotiations in Paris

New York Times Service

President Nixon and his new chief negotiator at the Paris talks on Vietnam, David K.E. Bruce, conferred Saturday at the San Clemente White House to begin charting their strategy for negotiating with the North Vietnamese delegation.

After a two-hour session in Nixon's office at the presidential compound here, the two men offered newsmen a few brief remarks that added no new insights into the substance of the United States position.

The 72-year-old ambassador, who appeared to be tired after his trip from London, said he would receive no further questions until after he assumed his new duties in Paris in August.

SHORTLY before, Nixon disclosed that Bruce would meet with Secretary of State William P. Rogers in London on July 11 and then return in mid-month for a National Security Council meeting at the White House. Ellsworth Bunker, 76, the U.S. ambassador in Saigon, will also participate in the discussions.

Nixon and Bruce were joined in Saturday's meeting by Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, the President's national security adviser, Undersecretary of State U. Alexis Johnson and Philip Habib, who has been serving as interim chief of the American delegation in Paris.

First Pilots Reach Destination In Annual Powder Puff Race

BRISTOL, Pa. (AP) — The first group of 92 contestants in the annual coast to coast Powder Puff Derby landed their single and twin engine airplanes here Saturday.

The women fliers left Monterey, Calif., Friday in the 2,750 mile handicap race to Bristol

The winner is not based on the finish, however, but on the average flight speed. The winner will not be known until all contestants have landed.

The women fly during daylight only and have until dusk Tuesday to touch down in Bristol

First in at 4:45 p.m. Saturday were Helen Wilkes and Ann English of Dallas in their single-engine Beachcraft Bonanza

Second were two Ohio women, followed by Marion Barnick of San Jose and Faye Kirk of Ukiah in a Piper Twin Comanche.

Europeans Protest July Fourth Festivities

United Press International

Demonstrators marred American Independence Day celebrations in Sweden, Germany and the Philippines Saturday with protests against the U.S. role in Vietnam.

There was no violence, but four U.S. flags were torn down and stomped by youths in a public park in Manila.

Communists in Peking and Moscow issued verbal blasts against the U.S. significantly, there was praise from Romania, which is trying to establish its own independence within the Communist bloc.

The largest demonstration was in Stockholm, where about 4,000 persons marched on the U.S. embassy to protest the war in Indochina. A brass band playing revolutionary marches led the parade.

The slogan-shouting demonstrators carried Viet Cong and North Vietnamese flags and anti-American placards. About 400 police, with dogs, confronted them at the embassy, and they dispersed quietly.

In Bonn, about 150 persons marched to the U.S. embassy and handed over a letter expressing support of the American Peace Movement. Embassy duty officers accepted the letter but said nothing.

In Berlin students tried to interrupt a U.S. Army parade by playing the Communist Internationale and shouting obscenities over a powerful public address system.

U.S. BOMBERS HAMMER REDS SOUTH OF DMZ

SAIGON (UPI) — American B-52 bombers hammered suspected Communist concentrations along the southern edge of the demilitarized zone, where North Vietnamese operations have not been affected by the Cambodian invasion, military spokesmen said today.

The big bombers dropped at least 180 tons of explosives in an area a mile south of the DMZ and about 12 miles north of the town of Cam Lo.

Elsewhere in South Vietnam and Cambodia there was scattered fighting in which two South Vietnamese soldiers and two civilians died, and nine soldiers and three civilians were wounded. Communist losses were put at ten dead.

Saturday South Vietnamese commanders discounted threats of a Communist attack on Phnom Penh as "phony" and withdrew the last of 4,000 troops defending the Cambodian capital. North Vietnamese gunners shelled Kompong Thom a province capital 80 miles to the north.

Combat in South Vietnam was described as light and scattered with communiques reporting two Americans killed and seven wounded in two widely separated clashes, one near the Cambodian border 100 miles north of Saigon and the other in northernmost Quang Tri province.

Nine North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were reported slain in the two battles, which were fought Friday.

Military sources here said the 4,000-man South Vietnamese task force rushed to the defense of Phnom Penh six days ago had made only light contact with North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units and that there was no need for them to stay.

WHERE RUSSIA AND CHINA COLLIDE

Uneasy Journey on Perilous Border River

(Editor's Note: This exclusive portrait of the world's hottest frontier — the one between China and Russia — comes from Eugen Semitjov, a noted Swedish free-lance writer. Semitjov is one of a handful of non-Communist westerners ever to visit the forbidden border, scene of serious fighting between the two Communist giants, and possible locale of nuclear war).

By EUGEN SEMITJOV

ON THE AMUR RIVER, SIBERIA — "We have no chance to win a war against China."

The hunter, a Siberian about 35 years old, strikes a match and lights one more papyrus. For a moment I can see his serious face again in the darkness. "Why?"

"China will send a hundred million men against us. They will be vanquished, surrendered, sent to prison camps. We will have to feed them. But this is only the first wave. They will send a hundred million more. We have no chance..."

It is night over the Amur — a dark night sweeping over the wide river between the Soviet Union and China. On the Russian side some remote lights are glimmering. The Chinese side, only a couple of kilometers away, has fused into the night, and one can only imagine the silhouettes of the mountains against the starry sky.

SOMEWHERE far off a child is crying. Is it Chinese or Russian? The fragile, doleful sound is carried over the water far away through the stillness. Somewhere far off a dog is barking.

Outside in the dark abyss between the two giant nations our Russian river boat has run aground. We have been here five hours now. A sunny day has passed into ice cold night. The cold comes from below, from the river water. It is impossible to sit; one cannot stand still more than a couple of minutes at a time.

Another boat arrived to help us out while it still was light. First, the tow wire broke, then the rescue boat ran aground also. The Amur can be unpredictable; new sand banks are growing up, and the water level is low right now.

The skippers are leaning over the rails giving each other advice, pointing at something, cursing. The diesel motor rumbles, fighting and shaking the hull in vain for several minutes. Then the searchlights are put out, resigned. And all is silent again. So silent that one can hear the baby crying far beyond the dark waters.

THE RIVER has two names — depending on which side of the bank one is standing. It's Amur on the Russian side and Heilung Chiang (the Black Dragon) on the Chinese bank. The river is 2,000 kilometers long. It is the "hottest" border river in the world — and has been for more than 300 years.

EUGEN SEMITJOV
Travels River of Discord

The Amur has its sources far inside Siberia and Mongolia — and with its tributary, the Shilka, it is much longer than the Volga, the longest river of Europe. Its enormous delta consists of sand masses, a labyrinth of sand banks and small passages.

The Russians came to the Amur in the middle of the 17th century. They came from the north, after conquering the Yakut region.

A Russian expedition headed by the Coassak, Yerokey Khabarov, reached the place on the Amur where Khabarovsk is situated today, the largest city of the Soviet Far East.

Chinese troops, on the other side, crossed to repel the Russian invaders, but the Russians were victors. Fighting continued.

The Russians and Chinese met in 1689 to fix the border between the two countries. The Russians wanted the Amur as the border, but the Chinese refused. The Stanovoy Mountains in the north became the border. It is this treaty of Nerchinsk that the Chinese refer to today when they claim 1½ million square kilometers of Russian land in the Far East.

THE RUSSIANS left the Black Dragon's river in peace until the middle of the 19th century. Then it was conquered again, by a single ship commanded by a young navy officer named Nevelski. He mapped its huge delta and shortly afterwards Russian troops occupied it, followed by settlers. In 1860 Russian and Chinese delegates met again and China gave up the Amur's left bank.

Now all is silent and calm over the dark waters — and only a child can be heard crying somewhere far away.

This region was once called the land of gold and tears. It was a land of adventurers, who had come drifting from all over the world to search for gold along the Amur sand banks, a lawless land where a human life had almost no value.

The wild East was tamed by Soviet geographers and geologists. New riches were found; above all, natural wealth which changed the land into an enormous raw material base. The adventurers were pushed out by airborne engineers, technicians and worker teams. Machine factories, oil refineries, airfields were built. Khabarovsk became an industrial center.

THE SKIPPER protested when we wanted to go aboard the river boat and he saw my cameras. But my Russian colleague presented the tickets he bought on the quay of Khabarovsk, and all was settled.

We went up the Amur, up towards the most eastern corner of China at the junction of the Amur and the Ussuri, which comes up from the south.

The border runs along the middle of the river and the boats from both sides are careful not to trespass it.

The white, streamlined boat split the sunny, glittering water with good speed. In its stern the red Soviet flag fluttered. One can meet all kinds of boats on the Amur — from the old-fashioned paddle steamers to the swift hydrofoils carrying space names like the Rocket and the Meteor. Our boat looked like a little yacht from a distance, but inside its floor and staircases were worn by coarse boots; fishermen and hunters are the most common passengers.

It was Sunday and the boat was jammed with people on their way to vacation villages along the river. They have their allotted garden cottages, which the state gives to all who want them. One just has to fill a form and then take care of the lot. They brought with them their bags of provisions, tools, fishing rods and sporting equipment.

THE BOAT stopped here and there. There was no landing stage. A gangway was wrenched out and people trotted away. Young and old, men in grayish brown padded jackets, women in coats and gaily colored kerchiefs. There were hardly a dozen aboard, the skipper and the engineer included, when we had the Chinese land in front of us.

We could see cold mountains outlined in gray-blue haze. It was difficult to discern any settlement. With field glasses one could see here and there rice-huts and paths leading up into the mountains.

The Russian side was low and flat with shrubs. Rowboats were drawn up on the sand banks. The villages were situated a couple of hundred meters off the river, safe from the capricious water level. The houses were low, with corrugated sheets of mortarboard as roofs. Here and there a TV antenna could be seen. On some piling, pink colored fish — a kind of salmon — were hanging to dry.

Small, old boats with modern outboard motors in the stern forced their way with different speeds along the banks. The river police's orange-yellow pontoon boat, air-propeller driven, emerged with violent speed at times and disappeared again, leaving behind a cloud of foam.

We ran aground just before sunset.

ABOARD WERE my Russian colleague, Fedya, and I, the skipper and his assistants; two hunters in old overalls; a factory worker who already had downed a bottle of vodka brought for his Sunday excursion, and three fat women who jostled in the

Brezhnev Displeased;
Cancels Romania Trip

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev canceled his visit to Romania because of a nose and throat ailment, the Soviet news agency Tass said Saturday.

The Soviet delegation to Bucharest will be headed instead by Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, Tass said. Brezhnev had been scheduled to go to the Romanian capital today or Monday to sign a new friendship treaty.

Brezhnev's "ailment" and cancellation appeared to be a sign of Soviet displeasure with the independent-minded Romanian regime.

He appeared healthy and in good spirits when he spoke at a reception for two cosmonauts Friday at the Kremlin. He also was well enough to preside at a two-day meeting of the Communist party Central Committee this week.

Tass said Brezhnev "will not take part in the visit, due to a catarrhal ailment." This was the first time in recent memory that Brezhnev has been officially declared ill.

Romanian Communist party boss Nicolae Ceausescu made pointed statements Thursday and Friday stressing the need for all countries to be independent.

"Threats and interference in internal affairs must be given up, and a policy of respect and cooperation must be promoted," Ceausescu told a crowd in the Romanian provincial town of Timisoara on Friday.

RUSSIAN FISHERMAN FACES RED CHINA ON SEEMINGLY TRANQUIL AMUR RIVER

stern cabin in order to get warmer.

"Well, there is nothing to do but to get sunburned," Fedya said.

"Sunburned in the night? how?"

"It is an expression we have. If everything goes wrong and there is nothing you can do about it, well what else can you do but take it easy and get a sunburn."

The hours are passing by. We smoke and talk.

"We don't hate the Chinese here at the Amur," says the hunter in the yellow brown overalls, while polishing his gun.

"We are only sorry, disappointed, and of course angry, very angry. We gave them all, while we ourselves had difficulties. The help of China retarded Siberia's development."

"Then they claim the Amur region, this Russian land which we have been building up for generations."

THERE HAVE been many border clashes along the Amur and Ussuri. Machine guns have echoed here, and cannons too.

Less than a year ago the Chinese made an attempt at a real invasion farther up the Amur. A civilians' invasion. They came, several thousands, in small boats and rafts. Men, women and children, poor starving people who just wished to get food.

"We could not take care of them all," says the hunter. "We had to stop them some way, without opening fire, without political trouble."

The commander in the area ordered his guns to fire along the Soviet side of the river. The shells fell on the Russians' own beaches, and the Chinese turned back.

"We are afraid," says the hunter. "Afraid of what will come next — what might these Chinese do in a squeezed position in despair? They too have atom bombs..."

"Do you know what the Chinese are saying? That out of the ashes of atomic war, a civilization will emerge which is a thousand times more beautiful than ours..." What use is there of a civilization when you pay for it with hundreds of millions of human lives?"

WE SIT, SILENT and smoking Russian cigarettes. The tobacco smoke is thick in the cabin and it is rather stuffy. And one imagines that it has become warmer. One can vaguely see across the window a pale redness over the horizon in the east.

The hunter's comrade turns on his transistor radio and a march melody comes out.

"Listen to this tune," he says. "It's called, 'The Russians and the Chinese are Friends for Eternity.'" The Chinese radio is playing the tune, but not the words.

The skipper comes up.

"Take all your things," he says. "We are rowing you ashore. In an hour comes a boat on its way down to Khabarovsk."

A lifeboat falls down into the water, rubbing and screeching against the boat. We jump in it one after another. Two men take their place at the oars. The skipper takes the tiller.

The Amur is gray in the morning haze. The Chinese bank lies concealed behind a mist bank.

We march through the wet, gray-yellow sand up to a sleeping Russian village and then along a street between deep wheel tracks. A dog barks at us behind a wooden fence.

We come down to the Amur bank again at a cape where people sit and wait for the morning boat for Khabarovsk. They are sitting on some logs in the sand with their luggage beside them — frozen and bent figures.

A young woman is cradling a crying baby in her arms.

Stalemate Continues With S.F. Firemen

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Negotiators scheduled no weekend meetings in the San Francisco firemen's dispute, although a strike has been called for Tuesday.

The dispute involves a new 49.7 hour work week opposed by the firemen. Mayor Joseph Alioto's office has proposed binding arbitration, and the firemen have made two counter offers.

11-YEAR-OLD DROWNS AS 200 PLAY IN POOL

An 11-year-old boy who was found at the bottom of a pool while nearly 200 swimmers frolicked nearby, died Saturday despite efforts to resuscitate him.

Thomas Ross Thompson of 2043 Fantona Drive, Palos Verdes Peninsula, died at 4:15 p.m., two and a half hours after being pulled from the bottom of the swimming pool at Rolling Hills High School, 27118 Silver Spur Road in Rolling Hills Estates.

The boy died in Little Company of Mary Hospital after attempts to revive him failed, according to Lennox police.

Four lifeguards are on watch over three pool facilities at the school.

Troops Use Guns in Belfast Curfew

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — British troops used guns to enforce a tough curfew on a riot-torn Roman Catholic section of Belfast Saturday, but said they would lift it this morning to permit residents to go to church.

The curfew was imposed Friday night at 10:30 p.m. local time in the midst of rioting that left five dead and scores injured and arrested in bitter street-to-street fighting. It was to be lifted at 9 a.m. today, army spokesmen said.

Northern Ireland Premier James Chichester-Clark pledged in a national TV address to rid Ulster of terrorists and said the quantities of arms seized in the last two days were "ample evidence that the measures taken are fully justified."

"We all regret this action, especially the decent people in this area who constitute the great majority, but we are determined to rid them and Northern Ireland as a whole of the terrorists in their midst," Chichester-Clark said. Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain deplored the riots in a speech at Cromer, England, but said they represented "a problem which, in the end, can only be solved by the people of Ulster themselves."

Belfast was quiet throughout Saturday. As police turned up thousands of rounds of ammunition and dozens of weapons in house-to-house searches, pubs, clubs and restaurants shut their doors. Even far from the affected Falls Road area, streets were silent and empty.

Woman Discovered Dead in Mystery

NEWHALL, (U) — The body of a woman dead about one week was found by two young hikers near a lightly traveled highway Friday, sheriffs deputies said.

Officers were unable to identify her or determine cause of death. They said she appeared to be about 40 and was wearing a white pants suit and a wedding band.

Fire Damages School

LOS ANGELES (U) — Fire broke out at John Adams Junior High School shortly after 3 a.m. Saturday, causing $7,000 damage to several classrooms, authorities said.

EUREKA! DISCOVERY OF EACH NEW WORD HELPS TOTS BREAK THROUGH SOUND BARRIER

...school provides new hope for children

By PAT McDONNELL
Staff Writer

Classrooms of Oralingua School in Whittier look the same as any primary grade facility.

Children's art work dots the walls, in the corridor one hears chatter and spontaneous laughter coming from a roomful of preschoolers.

One of them, a chubby 4-year-old, clomps about in high heels. Tiring of his game, the child tugs at teacher's skirt, then motions her to help him by handing her his tennis shoes.

"This is the hard part," says firm teacher.

"Tell me, Mark, what do you want?"

Staring at his feet, the child babbles an incoherent sentence.

"Say it again, Mark, I don't understand you."

The youngster repeatedly voices his request, all the while twisting the chord of a hearing aid harnessed to his chest.

Satisfied, teacher enthusiastically praises the child while tying his shoelaces — then sends him off with a hug.

"Deaf children aren't stupid. If they can get what they want through gestures or grunts, that's all they'll attempt. Our youngsters must work twice as hard to achieve the most ordinary thing.

"ORALINGUA CHILDREN receive no attention unless they ASK for it."

These were not the words of a heartless taskmaster, but a dedicated speech specialist, Mrs. Jerry (Lois) Tarkanian, who has served as director of California's first private oral day school since it opened last fall.

And no small task has it been for parents of 13 congenitally deaf children to establish the landmark school.

Even more staggering is the $50,000 budget they have met over the past year.

"I've never encountered such determination and I'm accustomed to people who are out to win," said the Shirley-Temple pretty wife of the basketball coach who led the California State College, Long Beach, team to the top spot in the nation this year.

"After paying the $1,200 tuition per child, parents still had to raise the remaining $35,000 to keep the school in operation.

"Do you realize how many swap meets, fund drives, warehouse sales, fireworks booths and Blue Chip Stamp books it takes for 26 people to raise $3,500 a month "

COMMENTED an Oralingua parent:

"All our children received oral therapy at John Tracy Clinic. However, the clinic works with deaf aged 18 months to 4 years. Afterward we were in a limbo as where to continue.

"A deaf child can speak if he knows lan-

--when freedom explodes in '1776'

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

It crackles with indignation, flares with dissent, flames with hope, burns with ideals. From their clash of beliefs, their violent emotions, their frustrations and ambitions, members of the Continental Congress — meeting in the sweltering May, June and July of 1776 — distilled the Declaration of Independence.

An unlikely subject for a Broadway musical?
Certainly!

When composer-lyricist Sherman Edwards proposed the idea for "1776," he met as much opposition as did the Continental Congress. Still this high school history teacher persisted. Finally, Stuart Ostrow produced the show. To everybody's dazed surprise, it was a sellout (it still is, in its second year on Broadway). It won the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award and the Tony Award as the "Best Broadway Musical of 1968-69."

So on this most patriotic of all weekends, it is especially appropriate that "1776" is playing at The Music Center Pavilion as part of Los Angeles Civic Light Opera's season. The musical opened an eight-week run June 23.

FOLLOWING the events of history, the show gives flesh and blood to the founding fathers — Benjamin Franklin, shrewd elder statesman; shy, newlywed Thomas Jefferson drafted to write the Declaration of Independence; aggressive, irritating John Adams; Edward Rutledge, independent, uncompromising defender of Southern life — and the others who wrestled with the problem of putting a dream into words, then bringing it to life in a new country.

The result is humor, courage, suspense and first rate entertainment. Even the English cheered and stopped the show with ovals when it opened in London June 16.

"1776" is a pertinent reminder that the United States was achieved through struggle and compromise by men dedicated to this ringing commitment: — "All men are created equal."

Magyar feast, flaming card party rate

By PAT McDONNELL

HUNGARIANS are famous for their beautiful women, fiery temperaments, incomparable cuisine, lavish entertaining and zest for life.

And well over 80 friends of Margit Cupper enjoyed these legendary Hungarian qualities at a gourmet dinner in her Raymond Avenue home.

Vivacious Margit, — often called Long Beach's Zsa Zsa — came to the States from her native Hungary in 1950 and says she has been overly blessed with good fortune in her adopted Southland. So it was that last spring, the statuesque blonde decided to give a Hungarian feast for the many friends she has made over the past two decades.

Civic leaders, celebrities and close friends soon after received engraved invitations to attend a complimentary $100-a-plate dinner in Margit Cupper's "Marlo Hall of Fame."

Marlo Hall, guests learned, is Margit's family room where walls are covered with photos of personalities and events prominent in her colorful life.

Mayor Edwin Wade and wife Mary presided over a ceremony at which each guest simultaneously cut a royal purple ribbon to signal beginning of nine-course dinner — prepared in toto by Margit.

Assisted by her daughter, Barbara, and son, Dennis, hostess greeted Odie and Lois Wright, Dr. Dick and Thelma Bobb, Sandy and Liz Lucas and Jackie Brown (sans out-of-town Rams star husband Roger.)

Rosemary LaPlante and husband Harry Koplan chatted with Leo and Evelyn Shultz and the Frank Makepieces at banquet table groaning beneath elaborate silver service. Others savoring such Hungarian delicacies as flaming orange glazed duck, barbecue spare ribs, braided yams and stuffed cabbage rolls were Dr. Mark and Eva Miner, Elsie and Burton Benwell and Sara Wenkle.

Throughout evening, telegraphed regrets arrived from notables including State Sen. George Deukmejian and wife Gloria. Wired message receiving far and away most attention was one reading:

"The only reason I am missing your wonderful Marlo Hall of Fame Dinner is because I am busy tip-toeing through the tulips with you-know-who. Ta-ta, Tiny Tim."

REDECORATING a kitchen is a major undertaking — as anyone knows. So when Lorraine and Harry Fulton breathed a sigh of relief over completion of project in their Vista Hermosa home, she invited her bridge group in to view refurbished room.

No sooner were guests seated than 30-cup coffee pot burst into flames — burning new flooring and freshly painted walls.

Strangely enough, a newly installed bead curtain served as a fire break and curbed what could have been greater damage.

Soon as ashes had settled, Bea Scott, Marian Green and Jean Rastello regrouped in kitchen with Lorraine to proceed with serving lunch.

Marian Hatch, Willa Gilmore and Jeanne Looman wiped soot from coffee cups and cards and montly bridge game was under way.

MIRROR, MIRROR on the wall . . . we know who's luckiest girl of all. She's Rosalyn Price Johnson who appeared on the TV show "Let's Make a Deal," and walked away with a brand new station wagon, $2,000 in cash and an expense-paid trip-for-two to Paris and Rome.

Everyone says it couldn't have happened to a nicer — or more deserving — field director for Camp Fire Girl Council of greater Long Beach.

Right now, Ros, poor kid, and bridegroom Charles are making arrangements for European holiday. Her winning appearance will be televised Aug. 1 at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 7.

EFFERVESCENT Kit Cullen has been running up her phone bill in Sacramento with calls to invite Long Beachers up to visit her and husband, Assemblyman Mike, in the state capital.

Latest development in busy Kit's life (she's enrolled in a political science course at Sacramento State) is to become a member of PALS (Peoples Association of Lonely Souls) composed of assembly and senate wives.

Bubbly Kit recently modeled midis at a PALS fashion show and takes a dim view of new hem lengths . . . but thinks they're great for laughs. That's why she's adding a couple of midis to her wardrobe — for laughs from Long Beachers — when she and Mike return in September to enroll youngsters in school.

TRANSATLANTIC ROMANCE which bloomed on the UCLA campus at Birmingham, England, will be culminated Thursday with marriage vows by Pat Godwin and Andy Dymond in First Orthodox Presbyterian Church.

Flurry of excitement and parties preceding nuptials was highlighted by arrival of prospective bridegroom's parents, Clifford and Irene Dymond of Exeter, England. The Dymonds, who are marking their 25th wedding anniversary, have been receiving the red carpet treatment from Pat's parents, Dr. Edmund and Juanita Godwin.

Long Beachers had opportunity to meet Pat's future mother-in-law at Monday luncheon and shower in home of Dr. Robert and Betty Godwin. Hostesses, Louise Johnson and Liz Hodgkin were assisted by Gayle and Larry Godwin. Glimpsed in flower-decked patio were Sue Buell, Nancy and Heidi Hertzog, Diane Scherer and Ginny King.

Aqua and white were colors for earlier shower given by Ruth Albright, Trudy Evans and Mary Callaway. Miscellaneous gifts were presented pretty Pat — while Marilyn Gay Callaway took honors of making a bouquet of ribbons from wrapped packages.

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT, Bess Olson and Marion Lord need to rest up from round of parties they've been given right up to Bess's Saturday departure for New York. Marion meets her later in month for flight to East Africa where they'll go on an extensive photo safari.

Eleanor Gassaway and Ruth Thompson joined forces to honor them at a luncheon, while Stephanie Edmund bid them adieu with a dinner party. More friends gathered for brunch in Rolling Hills home of the Joe Streets to learn about safari plans.

MOST DISGRUNTLED pooch in town is Howard Wishney, that debonair beagle-labrador retriever who loves to go hitch-hiking.

Last time Howard hit the road, Berne and Mimi Wishney decided to spruce up his dog house during his absence.

Imagine how the dog-tired traveler felt when he returned to his El Cedral address and discovered his abode had been redecorated without his consent. Exteriors had been painted white. Interior boasted a new naugahyde cushion.

Howard still hasn't entered his house. Who knows, if his disdain continues, he may never lie 'Snoopy-style, atop his house again.

IT TAKES a very special occasion for International City Club to break with tradition and open its doors to distaffers at headquarters in Pacific Holiday Towers.

But notable event it was when more than 80 members and guests were entertained at annual dinner dance. President Oliver Speraw and wife Marguerite, Hugo and Lorraine Slocombe and Jess and Evelyn Grundy were among those dancing to rhythms of Herb Gifford. Others partaking of sumptuous banquet fare were Don and Jimmie Nutter, George and Adelaide Hanawalt and the Roy Andersons.

Nuptial vows spoken in weekend rites

Roland-Trenchery

Carol Lynn Trenchery recited wedding vows with John David Roland Saturday afternoon in Fullerton's Bible Church.

Among those present were parents of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Trenchery of Fullerton and Mr. and Mrs. William Boland of Bellflower.

Janice D. Trenchery attended her sister as maid of honor. Jay Drain, uncle of the bridegroom, was best man.

Kennedy-Smith

A first home in Tigard, Ore., where the bride will be teaching elementary school, awaits newlywed Mr. and Mrs. David Armstrong Kennedy (Catherine Ann Smith) who were married Friday morning during a private ceremony in Belmont Heights Methodist Church.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leslie Smith, 5059 Gardena Ave., was attended by Marjorie Louella Smith.

The bride was graduated from Jordan High School and California State College at Long Beach. Her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carrick D. Kennedy of Marblehead, Mass., received a degree in economics from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. He also served as a Lt.(j.g.) with the U.S. Navy.

Harmonica Band to play at community program

The Sunset Club Harmonica Band, Volunteers of America, will be featured at Monday's Community Program in Long Beach Auditorium, at 8 p.m.

Under the direction of Chadeayne Wintrick, the group will perform band numbers, accordion solos, duets, melodica, clavettas, recorder solo and cello solo.

Long Beach Recreation Department is sponsor of the admission free program, which begins with community singing at 7:30

Beene, with Regenia Beam p.m., directed by Mike as accompanist.

The Tvo Orchestra will play for old time and square dancing following the stage show, with Joe Marshall as caller.

Valorie Paschall to be bride of fellow USC student

Dr. and Mrs. D. Cameron Paschall of Long Beach announce the engagement of their daughter, Valerie Jean, to James Craig Wisda, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert John Wisda of Santa Monica.

Miss Paschall is a graduate of Polytechnic High School and attended Long Beach City College. She is currently studying at USC where she is a fine arts major and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma.

The bridegroom-elect attended Harvey Mudd Men's College and was graduated from USC where he affiliated with Beta Theta Pi. He recently received his masters degree in business administration from USC.

The couple plans a June, 1971, wedding.

guage. But the only way to learn language is by hearing.

Interjected another mother, tall, slender Mrs. John Hart:

"Most of our children are victims of the Rubella epidemic. We want them to live as normal lives as is possible — that can only be through oral speech, not as a silent minority that speaks with its hands.

"Through the Tracy Clinic we became aware of Mrs. Tarkanian's achievements as a speech specialist in San Bernardino schools. When news came two years ago that her husband had accepted the coaching position at CSLB, we were overjoyed and wasted no time at asking her to talk at a meeting.

"We were in awe of her reputation, but mustered the courage to ask if she'd consider helping us to start an oral day school for deaf children aged 4 to 7."

RECALLING THE NIGHT the parents approached her with their "pipe dream," Mrs. Tarkanian said:

"The odds against founding and funding a private school urged me to say no. But the challenge made me go against my better judgement."

The first windfall came last summer when St. Mathais Episcopal Church of Whittier offered at no charge its Sunday school facilities for classrooms.

Parents named the school by coining the Spanish words ora (spoken) and lingua (language).

Three teachers trained to instruct the deaf were hand-picked by Mrs. Tarkanian who then traveled to St. Louis, Mo., to observe techniques at the Central Institute for Deaf.

"There is no such thing as total deafness," Mrs. Tarkanian explained while pointing to graphs and clinical records for each child.

"AS YOU CAN SEE from these charts, the severely deaf show signs of residual hearing at extreme points on the chart. The slightest tone they may hear on their aids helps us to communicate.

"Our audiologist constantly re-evaluates and tests their responses to sound. Continuous checks must be made on the hearing aids to determine if they're operating at maximum efficiency."

Another innovation is parent participation. Mothers volunteer one day a week to become acquainted with practices that can be carried over into the home.

"The most controversial aspect is that we disregard all finger spelling. Our critics say that by emphasizing oralism, the child falls behind academically because his concentration has been channeled to perfecting language skills."

"Everyday I hear about new causes to liberate the oppressed from racial and economic ghettos.

"Why then, should deaf children be forced to remain in the ghetto of silence?"

"Granted, they'll never be articulate public speakers, but they will not be segregated behind the Silent Curtain."

Another parent discussed field trips and other attempts to stimulate the children with the excitement of learning.

"Because of this exposure, the children recognize a fire station when driving past one and they start talking because they want to tell you about it.

"You might not understand what my Cynthia is saying, but I do and I recognize a growing rhythm in her language."

"Patterning is a crucial factor," Mrs.

Tarkanian said. "We convey full sentence concepts by avoiding separate words or breaking up sentences. The children know when a sentence begins and ends and they never speak in jerky, one word phrases.

"WORD HAS SPREAD. We receive letters from New York, Michigan, Florida. Many experts travel here to see what we're doing. All want documented evidence.

"Fortunately, we can provide it. The Deaf Education department of California State College, Los Angeles, has worked closely with us and video-taped the children's progress over the past year.

"The prime time for them to grasp auditory discrimination is from birth to age 7. Next year, we'll be taking in 3-year-olds.

"By auditory discrimination, I mean tuning out incidental buzzes, hums, piped-in music that your ear or mine does automatically."

Commented a visiting specialist:

"In other schools for the deaf, silence prevails. At Oralingua, you hear children freely talking to each other. They're encouraged, instead of repressed, to speak in front of strangers."

Added Mrs. Tarkanian:

"Too many deaf children have been emotionally scarred by parents who learned, too late, the seriousness of the hearing defect. A parent can see the affliction of the blind, but the deaf child appears normal. Imagine the frustration of parent and child when there is no way to communicate."

"Our goal is that by junior high school age, Oralingua students will be able to enter regular classes for hearing children.

"It's a long, painstaking process — often is discouraging when you compare their speech to that of a hearing child. But I think most of them are going to make it."

ORALINGUA SCHOOL DIRECTOR CHECKS STUDENT'S PROGRESS . . . Lois Tarkanian responds enthusiastically to deaf tot's attempt to voice an "f" sound.

AT WIT'S END

The flag--yours and mine

By ERMA BOMBECK

On television the other week a group of students were talking about their confrontation with New York construction workers. "We made a mistake," said one of the students. "We attacked their symbol . . . their flag. We shouldn't have done that. It's important to them."

The phrase stuck in my mind. "THEIR flag. THEIR symbol." I thought it was theirs, too. Or is it? As a parent, I guess I always thought respect for the flag was congenital. Is it possible I was so busy teaching the basics, I never took the time to teach "flag."

"Oh say can you see by the dawn's early light

("Don't slouch. Pick up your feet. Don't talk with food in your mouth. Stop squinting. Turn that radio down. Get off the phone. Tie that shoestring before you trip on it.")

"Shoot if you must this old gray, head but spare your country's flag . . ."

("Don't snap your gum. Stop eating all that junk before dinner. Sit up, straight. Look at me when I talk to you. Your eyes are going to stay crossed, some day. Get your homework done. Wear boots.")

"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America . . ."

("Shut that door behind you. Get the mud off your shoes. Quit rustling that bag. Go to sleep. Don't slam that door. Leave your sweater on. Get a haircut.")

"If anyone attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot."

("Stop fidgeting. Keep your feet on the floor where they belong. Don't talk back. What do you say to the nice lady? Wash your hands. You're letting in flies. Pick up that mess.")

"WE CAME IN PEACE for all mankind."

("You're going to be late. Eat something. Bring me the change. Hang that up. Brush your teeth. Apologize. Get your elbows off that table. Got a clean handkerchief? Tuck your shirt in. Be home early.")

Did I forget to tell them it was their flag they hoisted over Mount Suribachi? Their flag that waved over Peggy Fleming at the Olympics? Their flag that draped the coffin of John F. Kennedy? Their flag that was planted in the windless atmosphere of the Moon? It's pride. It's love. It's goose bumps. It's tears. It's determination. It's a torch that is passed from one generation to another.

I defy you to look at it and tell me you feel nothing.

Misses Orr, Meltzer join bride ranks

MRS. D. E. DURBIN

Durbin-Orr

A first home in Temple, Tex., while the bridegroom is stationed with the U.S. Army at Ft. Hood, awaits newlywed Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Eugene Durbin (Patricia Ann Orr), who were married Saturday evening in North Long Beach Brethren Church.

Among guests witnessing the nuptials were the couple's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Enoch G. Orr, 180 E. 59th St., and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Durbin, 1612 Poppy St.

Linda Marie Bird was maid of honor and Dennis George Dunn served as best man.

The bride attended Jordan High School, her husband's alma mater.

Riekens-Meltzer

A first home in Omaha, Neb., awaits newlywed Mr. and Mrs. Carl Riekens (Zoe Meltzer) upon return from a honeymoon trip to Las Vegas and Colorado Springs, Colo. The couple exchanged vows Saturday evening in the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Matthew Sloan was matron of honor for her sister, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Meltzer, 7805 Tarnia St., Long Beach.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Riekens of Omaha, asked his brother, Steven Riekens to be best man.

Summer sun smiles on brides

Schlatter-Nixon

Susan Elizabeth Nixon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Nixon, 5678 Vernon St., exchanged nuptial vows with Bernhard Schlatter of Indianapolis, Ind., during an evening ceremony in First Baptist Church.

Carol Nixon attended her sister and Rev. Robert Hunt was best man for the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Schlatter of Zurich, Switzerland.

Following a honeymoon trip to San Francisco, the newlyweds will live in Indianapolis.

Caiazza-Chabot

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Joseph Caiazza (Mary Ann Chabot) are honeymooning in San Francisco following exchange of nuptial vows in an afternoon ceremony at Lakewood First Presbyterian Church.

The daughter of Mrs. James D. Chabot, 6112 N. Autry Ave., Lakewood, was attended by Mrs. Alan Eastland.

Ray Deleuth Lott was best man for his nephew, son of Mrs. Alfonso J. Caiazza of Miami Beach, Fla., and the late Mr. Caiazza.

The newlyweds will live in Bixby Knolls.

Dymond-Godwin

Patricia Lyn Godwin, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edmund D. Godwin, 4375 Cerritos Ave., exchanged wedding vows Thursday evening with Andrew Clifford Dymond in First Orthodox Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Earl R. Godwin attended as matron of honor while Dr. Earl R. Godwin, brother of the bride, served as best man for the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dymond of Exeter, Devon, England.

Following a honeymoon trip to Canada along the Pacific Coast, the newlyweds will make their home in Vancouver.

Smith-Murray

Cynthia Lynn Murray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Bruce Murray, 929 Terraine, exchanged wedding vows with Sidney E. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Smith of Huntington Beach Saturday evening in Our Saviors Lutheran Church.

The bride chose her sister, Alice, to be maid of honor. Harley Smith Jr., brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Following a honeymoon on Maui, Hawaii, the Smiths will make their first home in Kansas City, Mo., where the bridegroom will play professional football with the Kansas City Chiefs. They plan to divide their time between California and Missouri. Mrs. Smith is a senior at UCLA, and her husband will graduate from USC in February.

MRS. P. A. LAWRENCE II

Lawrence-Bowles

Patricia Ann Bowles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Bowles, 4587 Graywood Ave., became the bride of Philip A. Lawrence II during an afternoon ceremony in St. Cyprian's Catholic Church.

Mrs. John M. Bowles was her sister-in-law's matron of honor and Michael Bailey served as best man for the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip A. Lawrence, 2035 Hidden Lane.

The bride was graduated from St. Anthony High School and California State College at Long Beach, where she served as President of Alpha Phi and was a member of Spurs and Daughters of Diana. She was also named to the Dean's List.

A Millikan High School graduate, the bridegroom attended Long Beach City College, where he was a member of the Varsity Football Team and on the Dean's List. He also served two years with the U.S. Army and attended the University of Texas at El Paso.

MRS. DAVID E. BENOR

Benor-Schultz

A home in Cambridge, Mass., awaits Mr. and Mrs. David Emanuel Benor (Roberta Schultz) following a honeymoon trip to Hawaii.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schultz, 51 W. Barclay St., married the son of Dr. Ethel Benor of Los Angeles and Leon Benor of Jerusalem, Sunday, in Temple Beth Shalom.

The bride is a graduate of Dominguez High School and the University of California at Los Angeles. She will be teaching in the fall. Her husband was also graduated from UCLA and is a second year student at Harvard Law School.

The Aces on bridge

Assume you lead the king from ace-king against a suit contract, and your partner plays the 10. What does it mean?

Is partner showing a doubleton? An honor card? Does he want a switch to the highest ranking side suit? Or is he simply asking for a continuation?

This point came up recently in a practice session of The Aces. For Bobby Wolff and Jim Jacoby, the defense was routine. This is because they have an established partnership understanding on the meaning of playing an honor card in this specific situation. Let's see if the answer is clear to you.

In general, without bidding, a high card played in response to the lead of a king (if it is not a singleton) shows either a doubleton or an equal honor. (An equal honor is an honor adjacent in rank to the honor led — in this case, either the ace or queen.) Rarely is it a suit preference signal asking for a shift to the higher-ranking suit.

WOLFF'S PROBLEM was now simplified. Since Jacoby had supported spades, his signal had indicated an equal honor, as he could hardly have a doubleton. Now, what can Wolff do, knowing that his partner has the queen of spades?

He can and did lead a small spade at trick two to his partner's queen so his partner could return a club through declarer's probable king. The club play was necessary; otherwise, declarer could draw the trumps and discard his losing clubs on dummy's diamonds. This defense enabled the defenders to take the first four tricks.

AT TIMES, the opening leader will not be able to determine with assurance whether the signal given by partner shows a doubleton or an equal honor. However, most often the auction and logical analysis of dummy and the opening leader's hand will provide the elusive answer.

Dietrich, Sisk in chapel rite

A trip to Northern California followed the Saturday morning nuptials in Wayfarers' Chapel uniting Virginia Noel Sisk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Farris Sisk, 2380 Pine Ave., and Phillip Wilks Dietrich.

Mrs. Noel H. Clinton attended as matron of honor and Clifford Dietrich, brother of bridegroom, served as best man.

The new Mrs. Dietrich is a graduate of Polytechnic High School and attended Long Beach City College. Her husband, son of Mrs. Anna Dietrich, 2045 Pine Ave., and Phillip Dietrich, 1973 Pasadena Ave., also was graduated from Polytechnic High School. He was graduated from LBCC and is now attending California State College at Long Beach where he affiliated with Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

The newlyweds will reside in Long Beach.

You can help

Each week the I. P-T Women's Section brings readers a list of volunteer opportunities. Those interested may contact the Community Volunteer Office, an agency of the United Way, at 426-7171.

SPONSOR SOUGHT: Local agency needs the sponsorship of a club. They are not asking for financial aid; their request is more of a "help in kind" for assistance with a monthly newsletter and other periodic needs.

FUN IN THE SUN: For those who like to combine fun with their volunteer service, there is a need for aides at a swimming pool for the handicapped Mondays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

LOSERS: Does anyone have a scale that weighs up to 300 pounds? A local group is meeting to work on losing weight and needs several.

FIGHT TOOTH DECAY: Typist with some experience in dental assistance work is needed at a local agency.

OLD YARN: A housebound woman enjoys knitting items for hospitals and children but, as she is on Aid for the Totally Disabled, is unable to buy the yarn. Anyone with unused yarn could deliver it to the Community Volunteer Office, 3515 Linden Ave., and it would be taken to her.

FOLD 'N FUN: Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Crusade materials. Call the Community Volunteer Office for scheduling.

WILLING TO HELP: Residents of a board and care home are willing to help non-profit organizations with their mailings. It would help if the agency could take the material to the home.

HOME MOVIES: Someone is needed to share his camera, screen and pictures for the enjoyment of those who are in a convalescent home. Showings could be at the cameraman's convenience.

NLB women plan card fetes

Various luncheons and card parties to benefit North Long Beach Women's Club philanthropies are planned during July.

The first of these will take place Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. in Metropolitan Mobile Park, 16600 Orange Ave., Paramount.

Mrs. Robert Lightner will be hostess and take reservations from interested persons.

The remaining three parties are scheduled for July 17, 22 and 29.

... they did

Volunteers will agree, feeling needed is what makes life worth living. Here are a few examples of Southland residents who responded to the weekly "You can help" column. They helped — and they're glad they did.

TRAVELER'S AIDES: The newspaper request to aid newcomers at the bus station was immediately filled by three new volunteers. The trio is doing an excellent job answering questions and directing travelers.

FRIENDLY VISITOR: A young lady who is not too well herself is calling on residents of a convalescent home to visit with patients and cheer them up.

SERVICE WITH A SMILE: A retired gentleman responded to a request for clerical aid in a local agency. He reports every day and does whatever is needed.

STUDENT REACTION: Response from students to volunteer requests has been excellent. A number of agencies, especially those working with children, are receiving their enthusiastic support. The Community Volunteer Office is proud of these young people.

COACHING CAPER: A former Rams team member, now employed full-time in business, and a college student home for the summer answered the request from a downtown agency that needed young men to assist on the coaching staff.

Nancy DeVries is bride of Earl Ward Hastings

Nancy Mae DeVries, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter DeVries, 9540 Ramona St., Bellflower, became the bride of Earl Ward Hastings during a Friday evening ceremony in Lakewood First Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Phillip Carter was matron of honor and Dwight Hastings performed best man duties for his brother, son of Mrs. Jodean Hastings, 1300 Ocean Ave., Seal Beach, and Donald Hastings, 338 Ximeno Ave.

The newlyweds will reside in Long Beach following a honeymoon trip to Mammoth.

Grandmom fete

Shakespeare sets stage for summer theater

"One of the incredible feats of dramatic history," said Dr. Stanley Kahan, tugging at his Shakespearean beard, "is that each age sees itself mirrored in Shakespeare's vision of man and his society.

"Our intent this summer is to bring to you the mind of the Renaissance Man in his political struggles, parent and child relationships, games, dances, songs, joys and sorrows. If we dress him differently, or look at him through eyes of our society, please remember that to hold the mirror up to nature is to hold it up to the universe, the Shakespeare of our past, of our present and our future."

For its Summer Theater 70, California State College, Long Beach, will produce

Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" and "Midsummer Night's Dream," and an original Renaissance Masque and Revels developed by students in the summer theater workshop.

The three productions will be presented in revolving repertory July 10 through July 27.

Dr. Kahan will direct "Julius Caesar." "Shakespeare dealt with an assassination in Rome in 44 B.C., yet 20 centuries later he still speaks with relevance — Lincoln, Jean-Paul Marat, Archduke Ferdinand, John F. Kennedy, Malcolm X, Robert Kennedy, Martin Luther King and . . . ? True relevance is not most adequately served by producing a work which is 'timely'; rather it may be served by recreating the work which is 'timeless'."

Dr. Gail Shoup and his cast have turned "Midsummer Night's Dream" into "Modsummer Night's Dream," but there's no tampering with the lines as Shakespeare explores one of his favorite themes — love. True, there are identity confusion, alienation, reunion — all in fun and fantasy though sometimes in new garb. Bottom the weaver, for example, shows up as Bottom the sheriff with plaid shirt, cowboy hat and red bandanna.

As for the Masque and Revels — director Betsy Hamilton asked, "Who knows what students will come up with?"

At first rehearsals, it looked like gaiety, high spirits and a heigh-ho, come to the fair!

Daniel Cariaga wins AGO critic's award

Daniel Cariaga, Independent, Press-Telegram music critic, Thursday received the American Guild of Organists Critic's Award for excellence in music criticism.

The award, established in 1968, is given every other year to only one recipient. First to receive the honor was Paul Hume of the Washington Post.

Cariaga's award was presented to him at the concluding banquet of the national convention of the AGO held Monday through Thursday in Buffalo, N.Y. The I, P-T critic received a $250 monetary cash prize, full expenses to the convention, a plaque, magazine subscriptions and was invited to review several convention events for Music — the AGO and RECO Magazine.

CARIAGA was nominated for the honor by Gene Driskill, dean of Long Beach Chapter of AGO. The award is based upon the critic's discerning appraisal of the artistry of an organist in solo or in concert; excellence of literary style; and the degree to which the critic has assisted the public appreciation of organ recitals in a community. The review in competition was a Feb. 5 article about Lloyd Holzgraf's and Marianne Webb's recitals in this area.

DANIEL CARIAGA

A native Californian, Cariaga grew up in Long Beach, attended UCLA for three years and was graduated from California State College, Long Beach, in 1959. During his college years, he spent summers at the Music Academy of the West in Santa Barbara.

In 1961, he joined the touring Lola Montes Spanish Dancers as solo pianist and musical director. In 1963, he served as assistant to Norman Luboff during Luboff's first national tour with his chorus.

Beginning in 1961, Cariaga wrote occasional reviews for the Independent, Press-Telegram and became full time critic in 1964.

Artists' hands 'Reach for God'

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Believing that man seeks God in many ways, Covenant Presbyterian Church will present contemporary religious art forms in "Man's Reach for God."

The festival of art, dance, drama, music, poetry and worship will begin Friday evening, continue all day Saturday, and conclude with worship service next Sunday morning.

On exhibit will be both adult art, submitted from many communities, and children's art.

Friday at 8 p.m., organist Darrell Orwig will play a recital of music by 20th century American composers. Of special interest is the premiere performance of "Concert Piece for Organ and Brass" by William Ferris, who will attend the recital.

Saturday, the art exhibits will continue. Each of the media in the festival will be presented in half-hour segments, beginning at noon. At 2 p.m., a one-act drama, written and directed by Donald Reed of Reid High School, will be staged with a cast of 14. In the evening, Kitten Wylder will direct an original dance recital and a drama will be performed by the Covenant Repertory Company. Displays will close at 10 p.m.

The 9 a.m. Sunday worship will use selections from the Saturday schedule 10 a.m. by a group discussion on "Art in Worship." The contemporary worship service will be repeated at 11 o'clock, the drama at 2 p.m. and music from "Rejoice" will be performed at 3 p.m.

Leaders of the festival are Dr. Frank Blair, chairman; Rev. R. Michael McLellan, assistant pastor; Robert Dill, minister of music, and Jason Wong, director of Long Beach Museum of Art. It is their hope that the festival will become an annual event, bringing together all media which have religious significance.

TWO MAJOR exhibits open Tuesday at Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., and a third continues through July 19.

More than 250 sculptures from the Mexican states of Nayarit, Jalisco and Colima, the Stafford Collection, will be seen by the public for the first time Tuesday through Aug. 30.

Proctor Stafford, a Los Angeles-born real estate investor, has spent 20 years assembling his collection. Radiocarbon studies at UCLA have confirmed the existence of

Bacharach at Greek

Twice winner of coveted Academy Award Oscars, Burt Bacharach will appear Monday through next Sunday at Greek Theater. The program also will introduce Richard and Karen Carpenter, youthful brother and sister who head a group, the Carpenters. Tickets are on sale at the box office and agencies.

Tyndall chairman of Serenades

Dr. Robert E. Tyndall has been named chairman of Long Beach Symphony's 1979 Starlight Serenades. The free programs will be given July 25, Aug. 11 and 25 at 8 p.m. in Recreation Park.

Conductor will be Derek Hudson, principal conductor and musical director of the Cape Town Symphony Orchestra in South Africa.

Dr. Tyndall is a past president of Long Beach Symphony Association and is dean of the school of fine arts at California State College, Long Beach.

TAKING PART IN THE MULTI-MEDIA FESTIVAL WILL BE (FROM LEFT) GUITARIST KEVIN HUTCHINSON, ACTRESS LUCY DAGGETT, ARTISTS DEBBIE PAYNE AND DEBORAH SPARKS.

some of the objects 2,000 years ago.

"Many of our ideas about pre-Columbian art are being dramatically changed and may undergo more changes as the scholars investigate collections such as these," said Kenneth Donahue, museum director. "There is a great deal that we do not know and may never know about ancient Mexican cultures, but there is no doubt that the sculptures that we will exhibit are creative masterworks."

"In recent years we have heard a great deal about the cultural heritage of minority groups and too often this talk is vague. 'Sculpture of Ancient West Mexico' is very tangible and clear evidence of Mexican culture. We hope that thousands of Mexican-Americans who live in this area will come here to enjoy a seldom-seen aspect of their own background. At the same time, we hope the majority members of the community will see how much they have to learn from the diverse elements of our society."

ALSO OPENING Tuesday and continuing through Aug. 30 at the Los Angeles Museum is an exhibit of 150 watercolors, oils, drawings and etchings by John Marin, one of America's first avant-garde painters of the 20th century.

Marin has been called an "artist of a restless society whose dynamic works reflect that society."

The continuing show, to July 19, is "Old Master Drawings From Chatsworth," on loan from the Duke of Devonshire. Although all great periods and almost all great painters are represented, emphasis is on the Mannerist and Baroque artists.

THE RARE experience of "seeing" an exhibit without using your eyes may be yours at San Pedro Municipal Art Gallery, Seventh and Beacon Streets, through July 19.

"Form and the Inner Eye" consists of sculpture and bas reliefs meant to be sensed through touch rather than sight. Blind-folds are available for those who wish to use them. The show was originated as an art experience for children at the Foundation for the Junior Blind.

SHOWS BY individual artists include sculpture by Mildred Kouzel, through July 26, at Jewish Community Center, 2601 Grand Ave.; and oils by Waive Franke, through Aug. 8, at Signal Hill Library.

Students from three classes at Seal Beach Art Center, 322 Main St., are exhibiting through July 14.

Memorial cemetery honors U.S. war deeds

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT

MANILA, Philippine Islands — "Take unto Thyself O Lord the souls of the valiant." So reads an inscription on the facade of the Chapel Tower in the Manila American Cemetery and Memorial.

largest U.S. war cemetery outside of continental United States.

KRAFT

Around the great marble monolith, arranged in neat concentric rows, stand the headstones of 17,206 heroes of World War II who died in savage Pacific combat to perpetuate our freedom and make possible the celebration of this Independence Day.

Some of these gallant men died in the epic defense of the Philippines and the East Indies in 1941 and 1942, others in the long, but victorious return of the American forces through the vast island chain.

But only a part of those who lost their lives in these historic battles are buried here. The crosses that shine so magnificently in the soft tropical sun represent only 40 per cent of the burials originally made in temporary cemeteries on New Guinea, the Philippines and other islands of the Southwest Pacific and the Palau Islands of the Central Pacific.

INSCRIBED on the fin walls of the hemicycles stretching from the Memorial are the names and particulars of an additional 36,279 missing in the same actions that stretched from the regions of Australia northward to Japan, eastward to the Palau Islands and westward to China, Burma and India. Their remains either were not identified or they were lost or buried at sea.

Along the frieze facing the Memorial Court are the names of battles particularly significant in the achievements of the United States Army and Army Air Forces and Marines: Bataan, Corregidor, Papua, Bismark Sea, Huon Gulf, Admiralties, Aitape, Hollandia, Wakde, Biak, Noemfoor, Burma, Anguar, Leyte, Manila, New Britain, Bougainville, New Georgia.

How well I remembered each bloody conflict. As Editor of the Press-Telegram at the time they took place, I attempted to report them to my readers as fully as our wire services would permit.

Now, after traveling thousands of miles as part of a round-the-world flight on a Trans World Airlines Star-Stream Jet, I was privileged to review each and be proud that those heroes who fell along the way had such a magnificent spot to spend eternally. Through eyes dimmed by tears I read the inscription dedicated to their memory:

"In proud remembrance of the achievements of her sons and in humble tribute to their sacrifices this memorial has been erected by the United States of America — 1941-1945."

MANILA cemetery, considered one of the most beautiful of its kind in the world, is situated about six miles southeast of the center of Manila, within the limits of the Army reservation of Fort Andres Bonifacio, formerly Fort William McKinley.

Covering 152 acres of gently rising ground which culminates at the Memorial, the site is the largest in area of the cemeteries built and administered by the American Battle Monuments Commission, and the largest in point of number of graves and recorded missing.

The Philippines government granted permission for its establishment on April 1, 1948. A tremendous amount of grading, draining and landscaping was required to convert the rough terrain to its present regular forms. Architect was a San Franciscan, Gardner A. Dailey.

In front of steps leading to the chapel is an obverse Great Seal of the United States, carved in the travertine paving. Sculpture consists of a series of superimposed groups representing the young American warrior symbolized by St. George fighting his enemy, the dragon, in the jungle. Above them are the ideals for which the warrior fought — Liberty, Justice, Country. Columbia, with the child symbolizing the future, stands at the zenith.

THE MARBLE altar against the rear wall is decorated with mosaic; on a predominantly blue background a tall, graceful female figure scatters flowers, with the inscription:

"To their memory their country brings its gratitude as flowers forever living."

A map room contains 25 maps designed by Margaret Bruton of Carmel, from data supplied by the American Battle Monuments Commission. Each is of tinted concrete with brilliantly colored fine aggregates. Military data are expressed by mosaic or concrete inserts and the borders and compasses recall the art patterns of the Pacific Islands. Descriptive texts amplifying the maps follow the course of the war, beginning with the defense of Luzon on Dec. 8, 1941 and ending with the final Japanese surrender.

Architect Dailey, in planning the cemetery, visualized a park-like background for the Memorial and grave plots which would assure a rotation of bloom to embellish perpetually the resting place of these honored dead.

In doing so he created a large botanical garden with stately stretches of broad lawns and magnificent vistas, using genera and species representative of the superlative wealth of flowering trees, shrubs, palms and foliage plants of the Philippines, the East Indies, and the warmer climates of southern Asia, Africa and tropical America.

DEAR ABBY

Shouting 'ackie', she claims the loot

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I was walking along the street with a woman I know casually when I saw a folded $5 bill on the sidewalk. I picked it up. The woman quickly said, "ACKIE," which is a word children used years ago in order to lay claim to something.

This woman said she was entitled to half because she had said, "ACKIE." I was stunned to see a grown woman behave that way, but without thinking, I said I'd give her half.

I then changed my mind after telling several people about the incident and they immediately told me she wasn't entitled to anything.

I called this woman and told her that I had given the $5 to charity.

The following day I encountered this woman's husband. I said "hello" to him and his reply was, "I don't want to talk to you — you are a pig!"

Please advise me whether I was right in not giving her half? — NEW YORKER

DEAR NEW YORKER: You should have given the woman half — not because she said "Ackie" (in my day, we said "Dibs"), but because you said you would. I agree, it's a childish stunt, but that's beside the point. As for her husband, it's easy to see what those two saw in each other. They're both juvenile.

DEAR ABBY: I heard you speak last Thursday for the Pasadena Mental Health Association, and while driving home I was reminded of this little rhyme entitled "WASH-OUT," by Sibyl Krausz: "I know what every woman needs

As she, perforce, grows older; A true and understanding friend

To lend a wetproof shoulder.

And who, when they shall meet—again,

Forgets the things she told her."

Recipe of the week

NEPTUNE NONPAREIL

- 1 can shrimp
  - 1 can crabmeat
  - 1 can Water chestnuts diced
  - 1/2 can green pepper diced
  - 1/4 cup red pepper diced
  - 1 cup Kraft's sandwich spread
  - 2 cups bread crumbs medium fine
  - 3/4 cup diced celery
  - 4 boiled eggs, chopped
  - 1/2 cup mayonnaise
  - 1/2 tsp. salt and pepper
  - 1/4 tsp. dill weed spice
- Combine all ingredients. Bake 20 minutes at 300. Remove from oven and sprinkle on paprika and dried parsley for color. Serves 6-8
- This casserole can be prepared the day before and reheated before serving.

That's the way I felt about you. Sincerely, — HELEN

DEAR ABBY: I am 12 years old and in the 7th grade. My parents make me go to bed at 8:30 on school nights. This is very embarrassing to me when someone at school asks me if I saw the good movie on TV last night and I have to say no.

All the other kids in my class can stay up until 10 p.m. or 10:30. I'm sick of it!

There is a girl who knows me real well and she's spread it all over the whole school that I go to bed at 8:30. What time do YOU think I should go to bed, Abby? I have heard that dumb old saying, "Early to bed, early to rise, makes a person healthy, wealthy, and wise," but it hasn't done much for me, and besides, they didn't have television then. — TO BED WITH THE CHICKENS.

DEAR TO BED: Of all the reasons for wanting to do something, — "because everybody else does" is the weakest. Every family has its own life style, and your bedtime should be when your parents say it is. (P.S. Cheer up — Summer vacation is here!)

Garrett: 'I Want to Leave As a Winner'

Mike Garrett, ace running back of the Kansas City Chiefs who won the Heisman Trophy four years ago, startled the country a few weeks ago when he stated that he would play out his contract in pro football this coming season — but then he would quit the game to play baseball for the Dodgers.

A candid and pleasant man, the former USC Trojan explained his reasons—for the first time—at a meeting of the Downtown Long Beach Lions Club. His thinking to many people was startling.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

"First," stipulated Garrett, "my first love is baseball. And, then, second, I don't want to sacrifice my body any further to football. My father died six weeks ago and he kept on working when he was sick. I don't want to go that way."

Young Mike (age 28) talked further: "Many people think it wasn't a valid move for me. I still love football, but there's no need to sacrifice myself. Anybody can be replaced. So, then, it's foolish to prolong a career. I want to leave as a winner and, as far as I'm concerned, money is not that important."

Garrett was referring to the salary cut he would have to take by leaving the Super Bowl champions to play for a year or so with a minor league Dodger affiliate.

"I am idealistic," continued Garrett. "You're just as good as your last game. Maybe if I hung around awhile, I'd hurt the team. I want to leave football when I'm on top. But nobody knows."

GARRETT GAVE his reasoning for preferring pro baseball to football:

"I've heard it's different in baseball. I hope so. Right now, the coaches tell us how to dress, where to go and what jobs we'll have in the off-season. I don't particularly care for that."

"With the Kansas City Chiefs, if you're one second late in reporting to your room at night, you get socked a $500 fine. We had $10,000 in the kitty when the season ended. Maybe I'll get fined for saying this."

Interjected Jim Stangland: "Mike, there have to be rules for only a few people. But the rules must be there."

"I agree," responded Garrett, "but football players are too restricted."

Garrett then stated that Vince Lombardi levied no fines because all the players were afraid of him and wouldn't cross his path. As everyone knows, Vincent always has run a tight ship.

WHAT ABOUT his financial situation, Garrett was asked, when he left a lucrative job in pro football for a peasant's pay in minor league baseball?

"No worry for me," he grinned. "I've made enough money already, so no problem. I was lucky to get a contract when the two pro leagues were fighting."

Then, what if Mike didn't make it as a major league outfielder?

Again the little guy grinned:

"Well, for one thing, I got a contract guaranteeing me two-thirds of my football salary for a period of time."

Reggie Ruins Angels

43,041 Witness

7-4 Fireworks

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

Reggie Jackson was never so embarrassed in his life—and neither was Rudy May.

It was a night of another milestone at Anaheim Stadium and Jackson and May were the principals in a cast of characters which resulted in a 7-4 triumph by the Oakland Athletics.

There were a number of extras on the set — 43,041 to be exact—and it was the largest crowd ever to witness an American League game at the four-year-old park.

Jackson, last season's super slugger who performed a sudden fade-out in August, was rendered a blushing red in the fifth inning of a 3-3 game Saturday night when the Angels' May purposely walked Felipe Alou to get at Reggie.

"I thought it was disgusting," said Jackson. But he hurriedly found a way to vent his frustration and shame.

He celebrated the Fourth of July with a three-run rocket over the left field fence and the only thing the Angels could do was light another candle in the window for Mr. May.

The story of May was once one of great promise. It is now one of despair.

On the sixth of June his ERA was 2.33 and it was good enough to tie him with Sam McDowell of the Cleveland Indians as the best among starters.

Six starts later, the ERA now stands at 3.5. In those six starts, May has been treated with contempt by opposing batters, yielding 25 earned runs in 31.1 innings, figures which add up to an ERA of 7.26.

The manager, Lefty Phillips, does not mask his feelings. He is vitally concerned.

The announcement was made Saturday that Phillips had been selected to be an American League coach in the forthcoming

BILLIE, ROSEMARY WIN

Newcombe Denies Rosewall, Wins Wimbledon Singles

(Combined News Services)

WIMBLEDON, England — "The best player never to win at Wimbledon."

It is a title Ken Rosewall never wanted and now it is a title the 35-year-old will never escape.

Rosewall failed for the third time in the Wimbledon singles finals Saturday when he bowed to fellow Australian John Newcombe, 5-7, 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1, in the first five-set final since 1949.

"I'm sorry I lost," the diminutive Rosewall said after the final match had drained all emotion from a center court crowd of 17,000.

"But I think," Rosewall continued, "that if I had played a fraction better and not lost a few key points here and there, it could have swung the other way."

For the first 45 minutes of the match, Rosewall appeared able to deny Newcombe his second Wimbledon title.

Performing like the same Rosewall who had last reached the Wimbledon finals 14 years ago, the little Australian produced the electrifying backhands and pinpoint lobs to pressure Newcombe, nine years his junior, into errors.

But if Rosewall had the shots and the crowd behind him, Newcombe had the youth, the strength — and the service.

Newcombe said the crowd, highly partisan for Rosewall, "really went wild for Kenny. You had to be deaf not to hear the noise and I lost my concentration at 3-1 in the fourth set."

Suffering from the strain of taking the fourth set, and with the specter of another looming before him, Rosewall started to wilt again, and there was nothing in reserve to save him this time.

"I'm trying to relax," Newcombe said after the victory, trying to light a cigarette. "I'm sorry for Kenny, but I'm not overly sympathetic. Hell, I wanted to win the damn thing myself."

Rosewall added, "It was a good match. John's a difficult fellow to play because he's very deliberate. I found myself waiting for him at times and I think this cost me some energy and some concentration."

Princess Margaret descended from the royal box to present the winner's trophy to the new king of the courts, who last won the Wimbledon title in 1967. Newcombe won $7,200 while Rosewall collected $3,600 as runnerup.

Mrs. Billie Jean King of Long Beach, and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco gave the U.S. its first title in the 1970 championships by beating Francoise Durr of France and Virginia Wade of Britain, 6-2, in the women's doubles finals.

Miss Casals won her second title of the day when she and Romania's Ilea Nastase won the mixed doubles with a 6-3, 4-6, 9-7 triumph over the Russian pair of Alexander Metreveli and Olga Morozova.

Bobby Riggs of the United States and Jaroslav Drobný of Britain, both former singles champions, beat George McCall (U.S.) and Pancho Segura (Ecuador), 6-2, 6-2, to win the veterans doubles.

Alston Lights Foster's Fuse-- 'Frisco Fizzles

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — For his Fourth of July attire Walter Alston, usually a model of conservatism, selected a mod red, white and blue striped shirt and immediately scolded his coaches for not wearing something a little more patriotic.

Red Adams, the pitching coach, listened to the manager's barbs for awhile and then replied:

"Skip, if we lose, you'll have to wear that thing half mast."

Thanks to Alan Foster,

the shirt is still flying high, hanging on the top hook in the manager's locker today.

Foster scattered seven hits as he hurled the Dodgers to a 7-2 victory over San Francisco Saturday to give the O'Malley's nine wins in their last 11 starts.

Further, they made it two in a row over the Giants as they kayaked Gaylord Perry for the first time in two years.

Foster's performances in winning his last three starts is a credit to the manager's patience. Earlier this season Foster, the onetime $100,000 bonus pitcher, went nearly a month without a win while failing 11 times in a row to complete a game. Still, Alston refused to remove the 23-year-old righthander from the regular rotation.

"His stuff was good all along," Alston insisted at the time. "All he needs is to get his control back."

"His pitching is really encouraging," said the catcher, Tom Haller, who had a double and a single to improve his batting mark to .287. "He was quick today and now he's getting back his confidence. It comes with experience, knowing what you can and can't do."

Foster, who had strung together 16 consecutive scoreless innings before he was tagged for back-to-back homers by Ken Henderson and Dick Dietz in the sixth inning, agreed with his catcher.

"Confidence is the big thing," he said. "Confidence as well as command and control. You have to be able to throw that breaking pitch when you need it."

"I know I had the shut-out until those homers but you can't expect to shut out the Giants here. With all the wind and the AstroTurf as well as all the guys on this club, well, I'm happy to give up just the two runs."

The Dodgers, who are now 8-2 on the AstroTurf, collected nine hits and were again helped out by the Giants' leaky defense which contributed three more errors. That's now seven San Francisco errors in the last two days and 11 by the Giants in the last five games the Dodgers have played at Candlestick.

Willie Davis had two

HENLEY REGATTA

Long Beach Pair Lone U.S. Titlists

HENLEY - ON-THAMES, England — A pair of fast scullers from Long Beach scored America's lone victory Saturday at the Royal Henley Regatta — an event dominated by powerful East and West German crews.

Tom McKibbin and John Van Blom engaged in a spirited competition with England's Peter Webb and Arnold Cooke before winning the double sculls Challenge Cup by 3½ lengths with a time of 7:43 over the one-mile, 500-yard River Thames course.

McKibbin suffering from laryngitis, said: "I'm pleased I finished at all. My rowing was quite off."

It was a hard race. We were under considerable pressure. The English crew kept at us all the way."

The Long Beach Rowing Assn., twosome, reigning European champions, led from start to finish, but saw their lead reduced to a quarter-length at the 700-yard mark. But the Americans beat off the challenge and drew steadily away.

Yale University's eight was beaten by 2½ lengths by England's Leander Club in the semifinals of the Thames Challenge Cup.

Leander outweighed the Yale crew by an average of 180 to 166 pounds and led from start to finish with a 7:04 clocking. The English crew's lead was 1¼ lengths at the 700-yard mark before they pulled ahead to win comfortably. One of the most thrilling races of the day featured a heavyweight crew, Konstanzt-Wetzlar, of West Germany, against an East German squad from Potsdam in the first ever East-West German clash at Henley.

The West German crew, known as the Bulls of Konstanzt, beat the East Germans by 3 1-3 lengths to win the Prince Philip Challenge cup for four-oared boats.

"It was a good win for us. Now we can look forward to the world championships in Canada," said West German coach Karl Heinz Batto.

West Germany also scored in the finals of the Diamond Challenge sculls, when Olympic silver medalist Jochen Meissner fought off a strong challenge by England's Pat Delafield to win the event by three lengths.

An East German crew, A.S.K. Vorwarts from Rostock, won a tough battle with the Aegir student crew from Holland, to win the Grand Challenge Cup, premier event at Henley, by a tight half a length.

Another East German victory came in the Silver Goblets final for paired oars.

Three-Base Error Tops Twins, 5-3

MINNEAPOLIS — ST. PAUL — Chicago pushed across two runs in the 12th inning Saturday on a walk, pitcher Dick Woodson's three-base throwing error and a sacrifice fly and snapped Minnesota's five-game winning streak, 5-3.

Bob Spence, batting for winning pitcher Wilbur Wood, drew a walk to start the 12th and was forced at second by Walt Williams. Luis Aparicio then hit a high hopper in back of the mound which caromed off Woodson's glove. The pitcher picked up the ball and heaved it into right field as Williams scored and Aparicio raced all the way to third. He scored on Carlos May's fly.

GLENN MILLER WINS 2

Nitehawks Helped, Hurt by Luck, Divide 2 Games

By CHUCK MEDICK

Bad luck forced the Long Beach Nitehawks into the losers bracket of their invitational softball tournament Saturday and good luck kept them there.

The Hemet Raiders, scoring without benefit of a hit, tallied twice in the fifth inning Saturday evening to knock the Hawks into the loser's bracket, 2-0, but the Hawks will gladly call things even today.

In their second game Saturday the Hawks beat Las Vegas, 2-1, when Ralph Smith's single scored Joe Seyfried from second base.

To all intents, however, the game should have ended; Las Vegas winning 3-1, in the seventh inning.

With two out in the fifth and Jay Luna at first, Las Vegas' Ron Hutchins homered, but neither run counted when the Nitehawks appealed and Luna was called out for failing to touch second base.

The tournament, played before enthusiastic crowds at Park Ave. Field, had several exciting contests, including a pair of exciting victories by Glenn Miller's Garage of Wilmington.

The Wilmingtonites, on a home run by second baseman man Jim Legaspi, edged Los Alamitos, 4-3, in 16 innings and then came back to knock Sub Flot No. 1 out of the tournament with a 5-4 victory, the game ending with the Dolphins having the tying run thrown out in a bruising play at home plate.

Fincher Hurls Barons to Tournament Lead

Sunnyvale Barons made themselves the team to beat in the Pacific Coast Softball League Charity Tournament Saturday night at Mayfair Park as their veteran hurling ace K.G. Fincher fired a perfect 10-0 game over the Fountain Valley CC's to reach today's finals.

Fincher coasted to the win, fanning 10 batters while allowing no batter to reach a three-ball count. Sunnyvale has shut out all its opposition in the tournament, nipping Lakewood, 1-0, and Nationwide Tire, 5-0, in addition to Fincher's perfect.

The V.B. Morgan Truckers of Lakewood made a strong bid to retain the championship bracket after dropping their opening game Friday night by easily winning their three scheduled games Saturday afternoon.

The Truckers pounded out 29 hits in defeating Whittier, 13-3, Burbank, 4-0, and Nationwide, 11-2.

Jim Herrick collected five hits in eight tries, while Al Freeman and Matt Bowcut each had four hits in seven trips to the plate.

Tigers' Five-Run 9th Nips Birds

BALTIMORE — Ninth inning homers by pinch-hitter Norm Cash and Mickey Stanley capped a five-run rally that gave Detroit a 6-5 victory over Baltimore Saturday.

Cash tied the game with a two-run wallof off reliever Pete Richert and Stanley broke the deadlock one out later with a drive over the left field fence.

Ortles ace Dave McNally, bidding for his 13th victory, was lifted after Willie Horton and Jim Northrop singled with none out in the ninth.

Bill Freehan greeted Dick Hall with a run-scoring single and Don Wert's sacrifice fly cut the deficit to 5-3 before Richert came out of the bullpen to face Cash.

Two-out doubles by Andy Etchebarren and McNally triggered a four-run burst in the fifth that chased Tigers' starter Mike Kilkeny and gave the Orioles a 5-0 lead. Don Buford's second RBI single, a walk and run-producing singles by Frank Robinson and Boog Powell completed the flurry.

A run-scoring pinch single by Jim Price started the Tigers on the way back in the seventh. They were thwarted by three inning-ending double plays before mounting the winning rally in the ninth.

Padres Kick, Then Throw Away Game

ATLANTA (AP) — Second baseman Dave Campbell booted Mike Lum's sixth inning grounder and then threw the ball away as Orlando Cepeda scored from second to give Atlanta a 2-1 victory over San Diego Saturday night.

Pat Jarvis scattered five hits on the way to his ninth victory in 15 decisions as the Braves extended the Padres' losing string to four games.

Cepeda opened the Braves' sixth with a double off Dave Roberts and rambled home one out later when Campbell muffed Lum's bouncer and then threw wide of first for a second error.

Clarence Gaston had lifted San Diego into a 1-1 tie in the third with his 13th homer of the season.

GRANGER SAVES SHUTOUT McGlothlin Needs Help as Reds Blank Astros

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Wayne Granger came on with the bases loaded and two outs in the ninth inning and retired Doug Radar to preserve Jim McGlothlin's 11th victory of the season Saturday night as Cincinnati blanked Houston, 3-0.

McGlothlin carried a two-hit shutout into the ninth but was replaced by Granger after the Astros loaded the bases with two out on an error, a single by Joe Morgan and a walk. Granger came in and retired Radar on a groundout to record his 17th save of the season.

A walk to Pete Rose and a double by Johnny Bench gave the Reds a 1-0 lead in the third inning. They added two unearned runs off loser Jack Billingham in the fourth.

Bucs, Cubs Split Power Barrage

CHICAGO (UPI) — Billy Williams, collecting his third homer of the day, and Jim Hickman slugged back-to-back homers in a four-run sixth inning Saturday as Chicago salvaged a 7-2 victory after Roberto Clemente's two homers led Pittsburgh to a 10-6 opening game victory.

Williams' two homers in the first game were wasted as the Pirates collected 19 hits, 14 off loser Ken Holtzman who allowed seven runs in six innings.

In the first game, Clemente hit two homers for the second consecutive day and Gene Alley added his third in two days. Clemente and Alley hit back-to-back homers in the third inning and Clemente capped a three-run eighth inning with his eighth homer of the year.

13th Victory for Seaver

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Donn Clendenon drove in two runs in the first inning with a 500-foot home run and ignited a two-run fourth inning rally with a double Saturday night to lead New York to a 7-2 victory over Philadelphia.

Tom Seaver allowed two runs in the first inning then blanked the Phillies the rest of the way to record his 13th victory against five defeats.

MURRAY L. BECKER
Award Winner

N.Y. Man Named Top Lensman

Gets Sprague
Award for 45
Years Service

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Murray L. Becker, chief photographer of the Associated Press, has received the Joseph A. Sprague Award for working news photographers at the National Press Photographers Association convention.

Becker was honored Friday night "in recognition of 45 years of service as a press photographer, with the last 28 years as chief photographer of The Associated Press."

The award citation lauded him for "setting the highest standards in equipment, techniques and photographic coverage" and for serving "not only as manager but as lecturer, teacher and adviser to photographers around the world."

THE SPRAGUE award for nonworking photographer went to Dr. Frank Stanton, president of Columbia Broadcasting System, for "courageous actions to protect the people's right to know the media's right to report."

Becker, of New York City, joined the AP in 1929 after working as a photographer for the now defunct New York American.

He has received numerous awards for outstanding pictures that have been reprinted in many books. They include such classics as the Zeppelin Hindenburg explosion in 1937, which won Becker the National Press Photographers "Best Picture of My Life" Award in 1940, the picture of Lou Gehrig of New York Yankees wiping away a tear as Yankee Stadium fans bid him farewell and the shot of astronaut John Glenn in a spacesuit walking beneath a huge, steaming rocket just prior to launch at Cape Kennedy.

BECKER'S photo coverage included supervision and picture making at more than 10 national political conventions as well as inaugurations of Presidents, visits of kings and commoners and virtually every major sporting event from the World Series to heavyweight championship fights.

He was also part of the first photo team that began coverage of the U.S. space program.

Other major awards presented during the National Press Photographers Association convention:

The Joseph Costa Award: Dave Hamer, chief photographer of KMTV, Omaha, Neb., "for most outstanding initiative, leadership and service in advancing the goals of NPPA in the tradition of Joseph Costa, first president and board chairman."

KENNETH P. McLaughlin Merit Awards: Barry Edmonds, chief photographer, Flint Journal, Flint, Mich., and NPPA president elect; Tom Keane, picture editor, Wilmington News Journal, Wilmington, Del., and NPPA national secretary; Charles L. Scott, teacher, University of Ohio, Athens, Ohio, and NPPA national student chairman. Editor of Award: Lloyd W. Seven, executive news editor, The Forum, Fargo, N.D., "in recognition of his long and successful efforts to promote news photography."

'SLEEPING TOO MUCH' On Pot at 13, School Girl Quits and Dissuades Others

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — At 13, Linda Mayfield of San Francisco began experimenting with marijuana. At 15 she kicked the habit and joined a student team crusading against drug abuse.

The attractive, mini-skirted youngster, now 17, was the only teen-age member of a panel on drug abuse at the National Education Association's 106th annual convention in the San Francisco Civic Auditorium.

She told how her Washington High School team of 20 members — half of whom had experimented with drugs — talked with local elementary school pupils about drugs.

"I think we got through to a majority of the kids because they trust us. Kids were open to us. I think we taught them something," she said.

NO MORE POT FOR LINDA MAYFIELD
Drug Panel's Only Student Tells Why

LATER IN an interview she told her own story.

"Some friends and my older sister experimented with grass," she began. "I waited a long time but I was curious and tried it at a friend's house."

"I enjoyed it. It was strange, a different feeling than I'd ever experienced — laughing and feeling light, kinda not caring."

"I used to for nearly three years — just every once in a while, mostly socially."

What caused her to give it up?

"Not any one particular thing. I was sleeping too much. Drugs made me very tired. All I did was read and sleep. I got nothing done."

"BEGINNING last summer I decided to stop."

Did this cause her marijuana-using friends to drop her?

"No. They would ask me why I stopped and I told them. This was fine and it had no effect on our friendship. Even when they're stoned we communicate better than when I was stoned."

Did she have adverse affects from drugs?

"I had a little loss of memory. My will to do anything was broken down. I had a tendency to be forgetful and had loss of memory."

Did she or her friends ever use a hard drug like LSD?

"No. I don't consider LSD a hard drug. Personally, I feel the bad trips are caused when a person is in poor physical condition or is under a severe emotional strain."

IS IT difficult to get marijuana in San Francisco?

"Nothing is hard to get in San Francisco."

The 5-foot-5, 115-pound brunette who will enter Heliotrope Free University of San Francisco this fall, — not exactly in the educational mainstream — said her mother knew about her venture with drugs but that her stepfather was "hostile when I told him about it after I had stopped. It scared me. He didn't want me to come down here."

She advised parents how to deal with their drug using youngsters.

"Talk to your kid openly and freely and listen to him. Always have your mind open and don't shut him out. Make him feel free to come to you without fear of the consequences. If you don't know the answers tell him so. Then help him try and find out the answers."

TUG O' WAR WILL END FEUD

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (UPI) — A 150-year-old feud will be settled today when the strongest residents of the suburban towns of Rotterdam and Glenville line up on opposite sides of the Mohawk River for a tug o' war.

The giant tug, with 150 men on each side, will determine which town is the older. Both are celebrating their sesquicentennial this year.

Both communities were incorporated on April 14, 1820. There is no record of a specific hour.

GETS GOAT

EVERETT, Wash. (UPI) — James Bush, 15, Snohomish, Wash., went prospecting with his father and another man, but it didn't pan out.

While he was prospecting on Dickerman Mountain, a mountain goat butted him off a ledge, leaving him stranded 50 feet below.

DISSOLUTION

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Deputy County Clerk Sujane Drake said a woman seeking a divorce under California's new dissolution of marriage law asked here:

"How do I dissolve my husband?"

COLLECTOR

LONDON (UPI) — A judge sentenced a 58-year-old messenger for the British Broadcasting Corp. Tuesday to six months in prison for hoarding more than 40,000 letters to the BBC over the past two years.

A lawyer for William Newby told the court Newby meant no harm and simply liked collecting things. A psychiatrist's report to the court said Newby had an "overdeveloped collecting instinct."

ANTIQUE COUP

LOUGHBOROUGH, England (UPI) — Police said a thief who raided an antique shop left his top dentures behind. "He must have dropped them in his fright or excitement," a police spokesman said.

FIERY LOVE

WASHINGTON (AP) — An amateur entomologist has reported the discovery of a rare Latin American insect that stages a pyrotechnic display when it makes love.

Earwin L. Tiemann of China Lake, Calif., said the railroad worm's head glows a fiery red and greenish-yellow lights flash from both sides of its body.

The same signals are reported when the insect is alarmed or fighting. The insect was named because it looks "like windows of a train hurtling through the night," Tiemann said.

REQUEST

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — A young woman walked up to Gov. Tom McCall during his open house hours Wednesday and said "My husband and I can't have babies. Can you help me?"

She hastily explained she wanted reference to an Oregon doctor who could provide artificial insemination.

PHANTOM BILLIONAIRE PLANS EYED

Howard Hughes Virtually Controls Nevada's Economy

By MYRAM BORDERS

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — The question is newly pertinent: what is Howard Hughes' master plan for the state of Nevada? Does he have one?

The phantom billionaire — he hasn't been seen in public since he came to Las Vegas in 1966 — now has close to $300 million invested in Nevada and virtually controls the state's economic strings.

And if anyone knows the reason for this enormous and concentrated outpouring of money — apart from the obvious answer it takes a buck to make a buck — he isn't saying.

Hughes' latest acquisition came this June when he was granted state permission to take over Harolds Club in downtown Reno. It was his first gambling venture into Northern Nevada.

Along with the six gambling spas he owns in Las Vegas, the acquisition of Harolds Club made Hughes the largest gambling magnate in Nevada.

HE CONTROLS more land than any single individual in the state — including some 2,700 mining claims, several sprawling ranches, 40 square miles of undeveloped desert land near Las Vegas, and acres of valuable land on the Las Vegas "Strip".

Hughes also became the largest single employer in Nevada when he took control of Harolds Club. He pays about 8,000 persons daily an estimated quarter of a million dollars in wages. The Nevada test site, the center of the U.S. underground nuclear testing program, currently employs less than Hughes — a total of 6,300 persons.

Since Hughes moved to Nevada 3½ years ago, almost all his investment has been through acquisition — not expansion or new construction.

HUGHES, 64, never has been seen outside the 9th floor penthouse of the Desert Inn Hotel where he has presumably been cloistered since his bizarre arrival in Las Vegas on a private train. Hughes apparently entered the Desert Inn Hotel unnoticed in late 1966 by walking among a group of men who carried a stretcher into the hotel. All of the public attention was directed to the covered man on the stretcher.

Early this year, amid rumors that Hughes might be dead, his wife of 13 years, Jean Peters, 43, announced she was divorcing the billionaire. Since the announcement, she has been seen more and more in public and attended the last Academy Awards ceremony in Southern California.

There is no known public record of a divorce having been filed.

Hughes has never been seen in public, but some say he wanders around town in a disguise or else his features have changed to the extent he would not be recognized.

THE $11.5 MILLION deal which Hughes made to acquire a 17-year lease on the seven-story Harolds Club casino included other acquisitions. He also purchased a lease on the Harolds Club Gun Club north of Reno, a lease on about three-quarters of a downtown Reno city block, title to three acres of land one block from the downtown Reno area, and title to a warehouse near the Reno airport.

The gambling application granted by the state for Harolds Club pushed Hughes well over the top as the largest casino operator in Nevada, passing Northern Nevada gambler Bill Harrah and Del Webb, who owns three gambling resorts in Las Vegas and one at Lake Tahoe.

Hughes' casinos now account for almost 16 per cent of the gross gambling income — the state's number one industry. Harrah and Webb each take in from 13 to 14 per cent of the state's gross.

HOWARD HUGHES
Phantom Billionaire

The gross gambling take in Nevada last year was $552.4 million. That means Hughes stands to make a gross income of at least $84 million off Nevada gambling alone in one year.

HUGHES has more table games than any casino owner in the state with 221. The table games are roulette, craps, and blackjack. There are a total of 1,566 such games licensed in Nevada. Hughes now has licenses for 2,275 slot machines in his seven casinos compared to a statewide total of 33,164. Webb is licensed for 2,291 slot machines, a few more than Hughes.

The billionaire recluse has acquired his gambling empire without conforming to all the rules of the state. One acquisition was made at an unprecedented midnight meeting of the State Gaming Commission. He did not turn over a recent set of fingerprints, a recent photograph or complete personal history as required by gaming regulations.

One state official's reply to the bending of the rules was:

"There aren't many Howard Hughes'."

The state also requires a list of legal suits in which the applicant has been involved — none of which was listed on the Hughes personal history according to a state source. Hughes has been involved in many litigations including a suit filed in 1961 by Trans World Airlines. On June 10 of this year Hughes Tool Co., was ordered to post security for $75 million before June 22 in connection with the lengthy TWA anti-trust suit.

STATE officials are clearly aware that exceptions have been made for Hughes, and most seem to favor making exceptions rather than risk the displeasure of his aides.

Several years ago, when the price of gold and silver boomed, Hughes began acquiring mining claims in Nevada. He now has about 2,700 patented and unpatented claims in 10 Nevada counties and a few in California's mother lode country near the Northern Nevada border.

Hughes has no operating mines in Nevada, but has started sample drillings in Central Nevada. He has claims in the Nevada counties of Storey, Lyon, Churchill, Mineral, Clark, Nye, Esmeralda, Humboldt, White Pine and Lander.

The maximum size of a mining claim is 600 feet by 1,500 feet or almost 20 acres. Hughes could control as much as 54,000 acres in mining claims — although some of his claims are smaller than the maximum allowance.

He acquired some 40 square miles of land, known as "Hustite," west of Las Vegas in the early 1950s. Since his arrival here in November of 1966, he purchased the 518-acre Krupp Ranch in the same area as well as unknown amounts of land surrounding Las Vegas, McCarran Airport and the Las Vegas "Strip."

IN A RECENT court battle with Beldon Kattelman, one of the first "Strip" developers, Kattelman said Hughes owned 14,000 to 15,000 feet of "Strip" frontage. Hughes, in an out of court settlement acquired the Kattelman property where the El Rancho Hotel once stood before it burned down ten years ago. That means that Hughes could own more than a fourth of the land which fronts on both sides of the five-mile long "Strip."

When asked for an official tally of how much land the industrialist owned in Nevada, a spokesman at the Hughes Nevada operations replied, "we don't give out those figures."

But some of his known Las Vegas purchases since 1966 include the Desert Inn, Sands, Frontier, Landmark, Castaways and Silver Slipper resorts; the North Las Vegas air terminal; Alamo Air Terminal adjoining McCarran Airport which is now called Hughes executive terminal; a television station (KLAS-TV); two country clubs; property circling McCarran Airport; Air West Airlines, and an undetermined amount of scattered property along the "Strip" and elsewhere in Clark County.

MOST OF Hughes' announced plans for expansion or construction in Southern Nevada have not yet materialized.

'INS' AND 'OUTS' OF FIGHT Making Political Hay Over Budget

By BOB SCHMIDT
From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — California's Legislature cannot be accused of being unpredictable. Once again it has followed its script to the letter.

The plot is simple enough. As the end of one fiscal year approaches and the deadline for approving a budget for the forthcoming fiscal year nears, a furious battle develops.

A slight alteration was made last year when the June 30 deadline came and went without a budget being signed into law. This forced the state to operate on an informal (and illegal) credit basis until the spending plan was approved on July 3.

The script change stayed in this year, and may become a permanent part of the plot.

TWO FACTORS assure that the drama, in its essence, will be repeated each year.

One is the ancient machinery which guides the budget along the legislative process. The other is politics.

The Constitution requires the governor to submit a budget to the Legislature within 30 days after the session starts on the first Monday in January. Traditionally, although he starts putting the spending plan together in early Fall, he waits until the 30th day to submit it.

Legislative rules required at least 30 more days to pass after a bill has been introduced before the committee to which the bill has been referred can hold hearings on the measure. This is so interested parties have ample time to learn of the proposal, analyze it, and prepare arguments in support or opposition.

EACH HOUSE conducts its own analysis of the governor's budget. In the Senate the responsibility is given to the Finance Committee. In the Assembly, it's the Ways and Means Committee.

The committees divide themselves into subcommittees to handle subject areas — education, health and welfare, capital construction, natural resources, etc. — and assigned to the various subcommittees.

There are six subcommittees formed by the 19-member Ways and Means Committee, and three formed by the 13-member Finance Committee.

Since the budget is not submitted until 30 days after the first Monday in January, and 30 more days must elapse before hearings can start, the subcommittees can't get to work on the proposal until the first or second week in March.

REPRESENTATIVES of the hundreds of state agencies and departments are called in to the appropriate subcommittee to justify their claimed spending needs for the next fiscal year. School financing experts give testimony on the complicated formulas used to determine education needs. Road building and maintenance, flood control, law enforcement, public assistance, agricultural inspection and pest control, and thousands of other needs are assessed.

The subcommittees meet once or twice a week. More meetings are difficult because members must also meet as the full committee to consider the thousands of other measures introduced which have fiscal implications. In addition, they each belong to two or three other committees, which hold regular hearings. And each house meets once each day to conduct its business.

So it is normal for March and April and May and part of June to go by before the subcommittees finish their work and submit reports to the full committee. The full committee then must reconcile all the reports so that the total expenditures and revenues balance, and send the resultant budget to the floor for consideration.

LOW-KEY political games have been played all during the March-to-June process, but now the real jousting begins. The script never changes.

The chairman of the budget committee is always a member of the majority party — the party which has the majority of votes in the house. He tells his colleagues that his committee has worked long and hard and has produced a sound, balanced budget.

A spokesman for the opposition praises the committee members for their diligence, but says that the budget, because of the influence of the governor, fails to meet the pressing problems of the day, allocates too much money for the wrong things and not enough for the right ones, is wasteful, and all in all is a cruel hoax on the taxpayer.

The budget requires approval by two-thirds of the members of each house — 54 votes in the 80-member Assembly and 27 in the 40-seat Senate — for passage. This means that the ins — the party in power — generally require some help from the the outs to pass the budget. It also means that the outs can demand, and usually get, concessions from the ins.

ALL THAT has gone on so far is preliminary skirmishing. Eventually, one house or the other will approve a budget and send it to the other house. There, swiftly, all of the first house's language is deleted and replaced with the second house's budget language.

The amended bill is approved and sent back to the first house, which routinely rejects the amendments. This clears the way for the appointment of the conference committee, composed of three legislators from each house.

The chairman of the budget committee, one party colleague, and one member of the opposition party form each house's delegation to the conference committee.

By now, it is the third and sometimes the fourth week in June. With the Constitutional deadline of June 30 staring it in the face, the conference committee tries to resolve the differences between the two versions of the bill and put together a compromise.

THE BUDGET conference committee is a "free" committee. That is, it is not limited by what has transpired before either in the Senate Finance Committee or the Assembly Ways and Means Committee or on the floor of either house. It may consider whatever it wants to consider.

Every legislator who unsuccessfully tried to get funds for a particular district project in the budget gets another chance. If he can persuade the conference committee of the need, the funds are in.

Similarly, someone who had previously persuaded his colleagues to fund a particular pet project may find that the conference committee has yanked the appropriation out.

The conference committee eventually works out a compromise and submits it to each house. Only days, sometimes hours, are left until the midnight June 30 deadline.

Giving the legislators and the governor the benefit of every doubt, it is still a fact that at least one of the considerations weighed each year at budget-squabble time is how much, if any, political they can be made during the fracas.

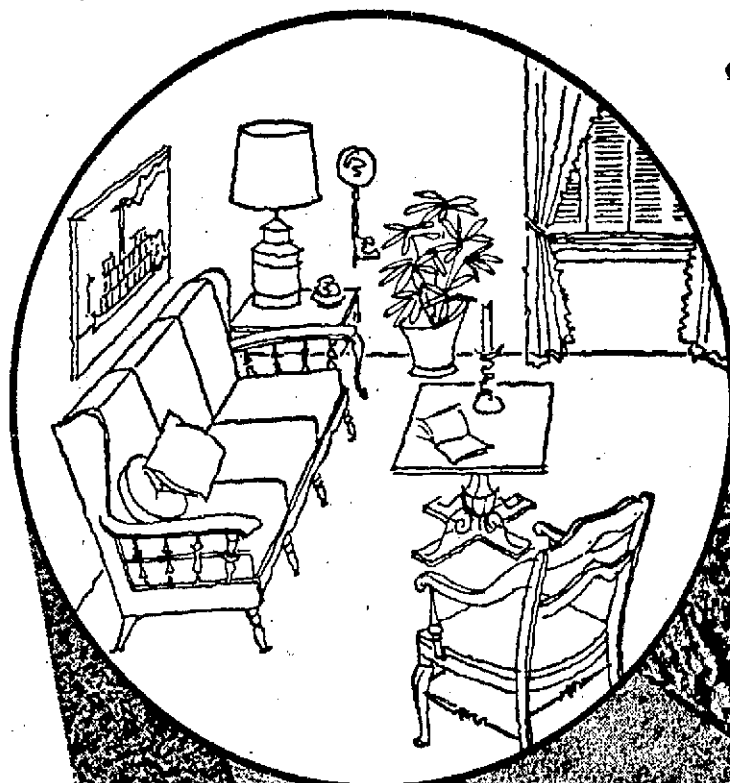

The "ins" are demagogues, the "outs" are obstructionists. And voters are urged to remember that in the next election.

22-Million Mexicans Seen Voting for President Today

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Twenty-two million Mexicans will vote today, with Luis Echeverria an overwhelming favorite to win the presidency and to continue domination of the Party of Revolutionary Institutions over Mexico's political life.

The PRI has not lost a major election in Mexico since its founding in 1929, and the strongest of three opposition parties—none of them taken very seriously—the National Action Party attracted only 10 percent of the vote in the 1964 election.

Echeverria traveled 37,284 miles in visiting more than 900 towns during his campaign, the most intensive in Mexican political history. Where the PRI standard-bearer made 20 whistle-stops in a day, Efraim Gonzalez Morfin, with more modest resources and frankly less pretentious ambitions would make two or three. The PAN candidate campaigned in virtual loneliness.

NO ONE DOUBTS Echeverria will win handily, least of all Echeverria. But this never stopped him from campaigning full steam ahead. "I'm gathering this information on local and regional problems," he explained once, "so that when I take office I will already have done the research and can begin to act right away."

After 21 days of crisscrossing the country by bus, jeep, helicopter and boat and coming in contact with, either directly or indirectly, an estimated 30 million Mexicans, Echeverria had this to say about the nation's mood:

"I've found a country united, working, full of problems, most of all because of its tremendous growth. But at the same time, I've found a country full of hope that the new administration will bring an era of continued progress."

Thirty governors, 800 mayors, multitudes of federal deputies and senators and big and small politicians alike have ridden in Echeverria's bus, conferred with him, linked arms with him in crowded rallies or just grasped his hand desperately as he passed.

THE PROBLEMS he has heard about most are those concerning the farm, water, schools, electrification, roads and industry. He has heard also about hunger, poverty, arid land, lazy and corrupt officials, lack of housing, scarcity of industry and inefficient communications.

NACC St. Louis Meeting to Draw 20,000 Christians

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — More than 20,000 members of the Christian Churches and Churches of Christ from throughout the world will gather in St. Louis Tuesday for the opening of the 31st North American Christian Convention.

The NACC calls itself "a conclave of concerned Christians who meet for information, instruction and inspiration." It is not a denominational group.

Ivy Baker Priest Will Talk to GOP Women

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Ivy Baker Priest, California treasurer, will speak at 1 p.m. Wednesday, for the Long Beach Council of Republican Women Federated in the Lafayette Hotel French Room.

Mrs. Priest served eight years as Treasurer of the United States in the Eisenhower administration and became the first woman California treasurer with her election in 1966. She won renomination without opposition in last month's primary. Her talk follows a noon coffee hour.

MRS. MORRIS CITED

Mrs. Thelma Morris, 4320 Graywood Ave., has been presented a merit award by the Los Angeles County Republican Central Committee "for outstanding service to the Republican party."

County chairman Charles Soderstrom noted that Mrs. Morris has served as precinct worker, Central committee alternate in the 39th Assembly District and legislative chairman for the Los Angeles County Federation of Republican Women.

BURTON RETAINED

California Democratic Council's board of directors has refused the resignation of president John L. Burton, San Francisco assemblyman.

Meeting in Fresno the board voted to allow Burton a leave of absence until the press of legislative duties lightens enough to resume his presidential duties.

The board also deferred action until its Sept. 12 meeting on whether to endorse two statewide Democratic candidates they had not previously endorsed.

The group will invite U.S. Senate nominee John V. Tunney, Riverside congressman, and state controller nominee Ronald Brooks Cameron to appear at the September meeting.

Facts You Should Know About Rubies

by Arch Shinder
Lawson's Jewelers

250 Pine Avenue
A MILLS STORE

Last week we briefly discussed the magical and medicinal properties of "the stone of life," the Lord of Gems," the birthstone for July, the Ruby.

Rubies, as with most precious gems, are found in the Orient, from the deep hinterlands of upper Burma, Thailand (Siam), Ceylon, Afghanistan, and even a few in the United States, specifically North Carolina.

Because most rubies are mined in the Orient, the art of cutting this precious gem has been highly developed in Siam (Thailand) and other Far-East countries. The color of the Ruby is its single most important factor in the valuation of this precious gem. Thus, the cutters place the emphasis on the shape of the particular Ruby they are cutting so that the color will look its best.

The imperfections within the Ruby become relatively immaterial as long as the color predominates. That is why Rubies are not cut like diamonds.

What is the most desired color? In our opinion, it is completely subjective because we are talking about various shades of the color red.

Does it have a pinkish-red hue, or a purplish-hue, or is it an intense true red, referred to as "pigeon-blood"?

We have seen pinkish-red rubies costing over $1000.00 a carat from the cutters in Bangkok. Rubies come in all qualities and corresponding prices, just like diamonds. In our experience, all the various colors of a Ruby are almost equally attractive.

Rubies, historically, were reserved for royalty, the Shah, King or Emperor. Today, you may purchase a genuine ruby for as low as $25.00 and as high as over $100,000.00, depending upon size, quality, cut and color. If you are interested, come in and see our selection of rubies at Lawson's Jewelers, 250 Pine Avenue, Downtown Long Beach Only.

Kent State Probe Gets Director

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union announced Saturday the appointment of a full-time director to head a task force of lawyers preparing cases involving incidents at Kent State University.

ACLU executive Director Benson Wolman said the job would be handled by Mike Geltner, Ohio State University law professor specializing in criminal law, civil suits and trial procedure.

Wolman said Geltner also would head an ACLU inquiry "into civil liberties issues raised both by the imposition of martial law on campuses and by allegations of FBI interrogations into and surveillance of the classroom conversations of faculty and students."

WOLMAN said Geltner will direct research and preparation for several contemplated Kent State lawsuits and coordinate efforts of volunteer attorneys.

The ACLU is preparing legal action on behalf of the parents of Sandy Scheuer, one of the four students slain in a confrontation with national guardsmen May 4.

In addition, Wolman said, the union has been asked to represent many of the 8,500 students whose rooms were searched without warrants a few days after the killings.

Sleuthing Ties Brutal Death to Drug Cult

By STAN LEPPARD
Staff Writer

INDEPENDENT

SUNDAY, JULY 5, 1970 SECTION B—PAGE B-1

Nobody came out to greet them when the ambulance driver and attendant wheeled into the all-night service station at Harbor Boulevard and Westminster Avenue in Santa Ana. It was after midnight and the lack of activity around the station was not unusual, despite the cars that flow east and west, north and south, through the busy arterial intersection in unbroken lines all day and all night.

Still, it was rather strange that the station's youthful night manager, 21-year-old Jerry Wayne Carlin, didn't pop out with his customary greeting.

One of the ambulance men gave a shrill whistle as they climbed out of the wagon, stretching. "Hey Jerry," he called.

There was no answer. Shrugging, he strode toward the men's room while the other man walked over to a soft-drink dispenser, idly fingering through a handful of change while he surveyed the contents of the machine.

THE URGENCY contained in his partner's shout caused him to drop some of the coins as he sprinted toward the restroom.

He stopped short alongside his co-worker at the door of the tiny room to stare, in horror and disbelief, at what was lying on the floor.

It was the body of young Jerry Wayne Carlin. He had been bludgeoned and hacked to death apparently with a hatchet or an ax.

The ambulance men ran for the telephone.

Santa Ana police officers who rolled on the call, after sifting the meager clues at the scene, established that Carlin's life — to the murderer or murderers — was worth $50 and a Levi jacket.

The $50 was the amount determined to be missing in a checkup of the till. The jacket was one customarily worn on the job by Carlin after temperatures dipped in the early morning hours.

The murder during the early hours of last June 2 was a particularly brutal slaying. Santa Ana officials moved on the case with determined zeal, vowing it would not go unsolved.

But it is a sad commentary on the times to note that the murder of young Carlin, described by friends and acquaintances as a hard-working and well-liked young man, caused little stir in the news outside the Santa Ana community. Holdup killings of service station night men are all too common.

IT WAS DIFFERENT when the stabbed and mutilated body of a woman was found on June 15 in a shallow grave near Ortega Highway in Riverside County, an isolated area 19 miles southeast of Elsinore.

Macabre details in the case, revealing that one of the victim's arms had been severed and her heart and lungs removed, caused the story wide circulation.

Further interest was added when pathologists for the Riverside County coroner's office said the slaying by multiple stab wounds in the chest from a "large hunting knife or bayonet," probably took place in another area before the body was hidden under leaves and debris.

The victim was identified two days after a hiker found the body of Mrs. Florence Nancy Brown, attractive 31-year-old El Toro schoolteacher, mother of two children and three stepchildren.

She was reported missing on June 4 by her husband, Ralph Brown, who told officials she never returned home after leaving to pay a bill at a Laguna Niguel restaurant.

Her car, abandoned and burned was found a week later near Santa Cruz.

THERE WAS NO conceivable connection between the robbery-slaying of Jerry Wayne Carlin in Santa Ana on June 2 and the bizarre mutilation murder of the woman whose body was found 13 days later and almost 50 miles away.

Yet a connection was established, four suspects have been arrested and charged with the murders, and the case has been marked "Closed" — all within less than a month after police received the first call on the Carlin killing.

The case was broken, it has been revealed, through close cooperation between three law enforcement officers, and through what a superior called "outstanding investigative work" by Santa Ana detectives John McClain and Larry Cornelison.

Lt. Harrell Davis, commander of the Santa Ana police investigative division, said the sleuthing performed by McClain and Cornelison of his division was "just about the finest investigative work I've seen in 22 years of experience."

Jailed as a result of that investigation were four members of what police call a "band of drug-oriented young drifters, numbering a dozen or so males and females. Just 'a homeless brotherhood and sisterhood, bound by pills and dope," he added.

STEVEN CRAIG HURD, 20-year-old transient named as ringleader of the group, is charged with two counts of murder and kidnapping. His arraignment, postponed last week after the court appointed a public defender to represent him, is due July 7.

Arthur Craig Hulse, 16, who gave a Garden Grove address when he was arrested at about the same time as when Hurd was nabbed, is charged only in connection with the service station murder. He will appear at a Juvenile Court hearing "in the near future," authorities said.

A third youth, Christopher (Gypsy) Gibboney, 17, was arrested in Portland, Ore., on a warrant charging murder and kidnapping in the death of Mrs. Brown.

Last to be arrested was Herman Taylor, 17-year-old transient booked for investigation in both murders.

"We believe this is all," said Lt. Davis.

A suspect earlier arrested, 21-year-old transient Timothy David Montag, was released after police said they were satisfied he had no connection with the murders.

Montag, it was revealed, was wearing Carlin's Levi jacket when he was picked up by Santa Ana Police. He said other members of the youthful group had given it to him.

It was McClain and Cornelison who established that the murder and mutilation of Mrs. Brown took place in an Irvine area orange grove, and notified the Orange County sheriff's office to this effect.

LT. RICHARD DRAKE, of the sheriff's department, disclosed that the knife believed used in the slaying of Mrs. Brown — a Marine combat knife trademarked the "Kabar," — was found June 28 in some bushes alongside the Garden Grove Freeway, in the Glasswell Street area.

The hatchet believed to have been used in the murder of Carlin was found the following day by Santa Ana Register reporter Sam Hamilton, accompanying officers on a wide search.

Hurd was arrested in Norco June 26 by Riverside County sheriffs deputies, who were alerted by the Santa Ana investigative team as to the presence of the wanted man in that area.

At the time of the arrest in Norco, the Santa Ana officers were seeking Hurd only in connection with the Carlin case, they said.

Asked how the suspect was tied in with the murder of Mrs. Brown, the detectives hesitated.

McClain finally said he had read a published statement, credited to an official of another law enforcement agency, that Hurd had "implicated himself" in the murder of the El Toro schoolteacher.

"We would just as soon not comment on that at this time, but we won't argue with it either," he said.

IN A talk about the public attitude toward news media here the other day, NBC's Robert Abernethy agreed with a conclusion that has been mentioned in this dept. on occasion:

Many of those who charge the press-radio-TV news operations with bias really don't want an unbiased press. What they want is one that is biased to fit their own opinions and prejudices.

This hypocritical taint to so much of the criticism of the press is especially unfortunate for this reason: It is so obvious and so common that there is a tendency on the part of news people to be suspicious and cynical about all criticism. Thus valid criticism may get too little recognition.

We need to be kept honest, all right. But it should be done by critics who are as objective as the way they want us to be.

TODAY'S development on the credibility front concerns that new $3 "international" travel tax the gov't charges air travelers going overseas.

Some of our travel-bound readers saw a Wednesday story in our paper, (United Press International) quoting Stuart Tipton, president of the Air Transport Association, to the effect the $3 wouldn't be charged on trips to Hawaii and Alaska.

That seemed reasonable and logical. H and A are American states and going there isn't exactly international travel.

But when these people went to get their tickets for Alaska or Hawaii, the charge was added. This led to some pretty spirited discussions between ticket clerks and customers.

Tipton apparently had it wrong. I called the airlines yesterday and all are adding the tax. If there's any question about a tax it's always solved by imposing it. You've noticed that.

WHAT a beautiful hunk of forest country is the Long Beach Boy Scout camp area at Barton Flats in the San Bernardino mts. I got up there the other eve after a year or two of absence, and got excited all over again. On the jaunt I was accompanied by N. L. McLaughlin, who hadn't seen the reservation, and looking at it through the eyes of a first-timer added zest to the impressions.

This is a mile-square area of forest and meadow where the carefully designed development of camping facilities has not seriously affected the primitive atmosphere. The Scouts who go there are really camping in camp country — not in a park.

When we were there a small excitement was running over the disappearance of a burro. They keep four of the little animals for back-country packing and this one took French leave one evening, eluding the eyes of searchers. At last report, the burro was still on the missing list, living it up in paradise.

STATE college sorority and fraternity groups have always had tough sledding locating in local areas, with city residents complaining of noise and parking problems.

Not all complaints are just, as was illustrated at a meeting of the City Planning Commission Thursday.

A woman, appearing to protest a proposed fraternity site, mentioned difficulties caused "by a sorority 'in Alamitos Heights south of Colorado.'"

I later asked her where it was, specifically. She said "on Flint Avenue" and that it had been there three years.

There is no sorority on Flint Ave. I was sure there wasn't, and confirmed my belief by a check at the student affairs office at the college. There's no fraternity there, either.

I'm sure the lady didn't intend to mislead, but she herself had been misled. She had attributed disorder to a non-existent source.

many of us take decreasing monetary value for granted? What has happened to the nickel?

Just a little more than 30 years ago, you could eat a satisfying lunch and ride to the movies for 30 cents. Lunch would include a hot dog and beer, a ride on the streetcar, admission to the theater and an extra candy bar at the show.

Nowadays, a similar venture would cost considerably more. The least costly hot dog in town is 15 cents, the least expensive glass of beer is 20, and the streetcar has been replaced by the bus which can transport you for 20 cents or more. With the exception of a movie theater in Long Beach, which only charges 49 cents for admission, the flicks generally will not cost you less than $1.50.

Candy bars in theaters are rarely less than 15 cents.

What can you get for a nickel today? At some machines, you can find your weight and horoscope. You can also get 2½ books of matches and postcards are still priced at a nickel.

You can park your car for an hour in Downtown Long Beach for a nickel and even play two songs on the juke box for the same price at many bars. The Testa Reaction Meter offers a game of chance to the adventuresome type: a coin slides down a chute and measures a person's reaction time to halt the coin in mid-slide. "How fast can you stop the nickel?" asks the sign on the machine. If it's fast enough, you get your nickel back and are allowed to do the same silly thing all over again.

Remember when you could get a shoeshine for a nickel? Now you'll be lucky to get one for less than 50 cents, the price of a wax shine, or 75 cents, the costs of a spit-shine at most downtown Long Beach stands.

A man could once buy a pocket handkerchief for a nickel; now he has to shell out 26 cents in a bargain basement sale. A pocket comb at the barber shop now costs two bits, which used to be the total cost of a shave and a haircut. Combs used to sell for five cents.

Pay-toilets, the ultimate in American inconvenience, now cost 10 cents.

However, there is still one great American pastime that only costs a plug nickel: chewing. Although gum is sometimes sold in eight-stick packs for a dime, you can still get a five-piece package for the same price today as it was 30 years ago.

This proves, as comedian Bob Hope once said, that either gum is "a great bargain now or it was an awful gyp then."

2 Scientologists Blast Organized Psychiatry

By NOEL SWANN

Two Scientologists, one a psychiatrist the other a lawyer, unleashed a scathing attack on "institutional psychiatry" Saturday calling for an all-out war against "suppressive psychiatric abuse."

Both men drew thunderous applause and standing ovations from some 3,000 Scientology followers when they made their tirades during the controversial group's three-day annual convention in the Long Beach Arena.

AND THEIR exhortations were quickly transferred into action as scores of the L. Ron Hubbard disciples signed petitions after the talk demanding to know from former heavyweight champ, Joe Louis, whether he wishes to remain in the Colorado State Psychiatric Hospital.

The first speaker, Dr. Thomas S. Szasz, professor of psychiatry at the State University of New York, expressed the hope that more people (as the Scientologists already do) will recognize that "the alliance between organized medicine and the American government is evil, not good."

"And more particularly that the alliance between organized psychiatry (or institutional psychiatry) and the American government has, under the guise of 'treating mental illness' actually produced a political apparatus for creating and persecuting deviance."

DR. SZASZ outlined what he saw as the opposing forces in the field of mental health treatment.

On the one side are those who advocate ever-increasing use of "psychiatric force and fraud," he said, by seeking to expand the concept of "mental ill-

Fee Hike May Bar Hundreds of Foreign Students at CSLB

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

Several hundred foreign students who attended the California State Colleges last year will not resume their American educations in the fall, officials at California State College at Long Beach have predicted.

The price of tuition for foreign students in the state college system has more than doubled since January, the result of three separate legislative actions.

"This was done very irresponsibly," said Dr. J. Russell Lindquist, director of the International Student Affairs Center at Cal State Long Beach.

LINDQUIST explained that possibly 100 of the more than 1,300 foreign students at Cal State Long Beach "will probably have to go home," priced out of an education.

For the past five years, the director said, foreign students attending the California State Colleges have been charged $255 tuition per academic year. Including general fees, the figure reached about $400.

But in January, Lindquist said, the State College Board of Trustees approved a legislative act authorized the previous September by Gov. Ronald Reagan, boosting the cost of tuition for foreign students to $360 per year beginning with the 1970-71 academic year.

Although at the time of the January increase the Board of Trustees had called for a study of how the initial boost would affect the foreign student program, a new tuition increase from $360 to $600 was proposed five months later.

Lindquist said reports presented to Gov. Reagan indicated an estimated 3,200 full-time students, all California residents, were "being turned away," from the state college system.

TO ALLOW FOR their admission, the directors said, the trustees approved the increase to $600 on May 27.

But according to Lindquist, still another mark-up in tuition for foreign students — from $600 to $750 — has been included under an education section in the California State budget.

With approval of the budget, the $750 figure will go into effect unless the trustees fail to authorize it at their July 14 meeting. If authorization is received, foreign students in the state college system will pay about $900 for the 1970-71 academic year — nearly $500 more than last year.

Few are happy with the new situation. Of the 1,300 or so foreign students attending Cal State Long Beach — under two categories — approximately 500 stand a good chance of remaining untouched by the tuition hikes, according to Lindquist.

They represent more than half the foreign students not in this country on visas. Those students in that category at Cal State Long Beach are administered tuition in the same manner as nonresident, or out-of-state students, said the director.

MANY OF them, however, will be faced with another tuition boost with the governor's austerity program for the state college system, under which out-of-state students' tuition will climb from about $890 to $1,110 per year.

The rest of the nonvisa foreign students — an estimated 300-350 at Cal State Long Beach — will be required to meet the new foreign student financial rates.

But, Lindquist indicated, those with the greatest stake in the tuition juggling are the estimated 500 foreign students at Cal State Long Beach under visas.

Visas are granted for enough time for the foreign

A useful tradition

WE HAVE NEVER MET or heard Miss Angela Davis, but we have no reason to doubt the assessment of her fellow UCLA faculty members that she is good at teaching philosophy. At the same time, we have observed that she is good at getting publicity and raising hell with the establishment.

She does it with wild talk by calling this a "racist, fascist society" run by "pigs."

She does it with bizarre charges, as when she said the University of California regents wanted to fire her not because of her politics but because she is black.

She does it by her actions, of which the single most successful one was joining the Communist party, a move guaranteed to worry university administrators, torment the regents and terrify the public.

HAVING NO WAY to read Miss Davis' mind, we don't know if she believes what she says. Under the circumstances, we rather suspect Miss Davis is too smart to believe all the nonsense she spouts.

It shouldn't matter, of course, so long as she doesn't spout it in the classroom, and there is apparently no evidence she does.

We don't know if she is sincere about her Communist party membership, either, but we have a hunch she probably regards the party as irrelevant, as most leftists do. It is interesting that she didn't announce her party membership until she had been hired. She then not only revealed it but brought the subject up herself from time to time whenever public interest in her case seemed to flag.

IN HER EARLY DAYS at UCLA, Miss Davis' greatest success came when the regents tried to fire her because she was a Communist. A court rejected that plan. Miss Davis achieved an even more phenomenal success when the regents decided not to rehire her because of her off-campus speeches.

That decision will be good for another court battle. It will produce all sorts of headlines. It will work wonders at disrupting the campuses because professors and students will inevitably see it as a sham and an attack on academic freedom, the ground rules of which are that a professor can make an ass of himself as long as he doesn't do it in his own academic discipline.

WE RECALL THE CASE of another professor who was bent on disruption, Revilo P. Oliver, who taught classics at the University of Illinois.

Oliver joined the John Birch Society. The university let him alone. He charged that the majority of U.S. senators were being blackmailed by call girls. Headlines, but no university action. He wrote that President Kennedy was assassinated because he fell behind on a timetable for a Communist takeover. Nobody moved to fire him.

Finally he made a speech so wild the Birch Society threw him out. Clamor grew for his dismissal from his teaching post. But the university took the position that as long as Oliver was a good teacher of classics—and everyone agreed that he was—he was entitled to talk all the nonsense he liked.

University President David D. Henry said any professor's right to express unorthodox views as a citizen "is not only recognized but it is protected by the tradition of academic freedom at the University of Illinois, in the academic world and by the statutes governing the university."

That used to be the case at the University of California, and university administrators talked in the Davis case the same way Dr. Henry talked in the Oliver case. But the UCLA administrators didn't have a board of regents like Illinois', whose president, Howard W. Clement, said he disagreed with Oliver "head on" but added that Oliver "has the right as a private citizen to express himself and is so guaranteed those rights by the statutes of the University."

Professor Oliver dropped from political sight. Let's hope Angela Davis does too. But we doubt we've heard the last of her.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

The church schools

EDITOR:

L. M. Donahue's letter does not tell all the story concerning "Church Schools."

Mr. Donahue uses the euphemisms "private" and "non-public" to describe these institutions, apparently in an effort to make them, or rather tax support of them, a little more palatable, but the fact remains: such schools are established by a church, operated by a church and are for purposes of the church.

If the taxpayers are relieved of a $260 million (Mr. Donahue's figures) burden then the churches' parishioners must expend nearly that amount on these schools. It is quite obvious they have no burning desire to ease the taxpayers' load nor are they doing this so their children can learn reading, writing and arithmetic since all these subjects are provided in public schools are operated to probe, another reason.

Church schools are operated to provide an environment that is dominated by the dogma of the sect operating that school and to insulate the students from other philosophies that, in the elders' opinion, conflict with that dogma.

If parents, exercising the right of free choice, decide to send their children to a church school, I have no objection. I'd object when those parents ask me to help defray the cost of indoctrinating their children in their belief. I am quite sure they would object to paying for teaching my children my philosophy.

Reply to Murphy

EDITOR:

A recent statement from Sen. George Murphy in Washington makes us wonder where he gets his information.

While pushing his bill that protects the big agriculture industry while further grinding down poor farm workers Senator Murphy says: "In almost every contract, the one who should be consulted — the worker — has been ignored." This statement is not true.

Take the case of the Larson brothers: Kevin Keene and Cecil C. of Coachella Valley — they have 152 workers who voted FOR the union (UFWOC) as against only TWO who voted against unionizing.

As for another of Sen. Murphy's quotes "the shotgun is being aimed at agriculture in general" — Sen. Murphy's views are obsolete and his bill is grossly inhumane.

Speak, vote for free academy

(Editor's note: The author is dean of the School of Communications and Theater at Temple University. The text is excerpted from the commencement address he delivered at California State College at Long Beach June 13, 1970.)

By DR. KENNETH HARWOOD

MEMBERS OF THE GRADUATING CLASS:

On some ordinary day like this, we might meet, congratulate each other, and part from our little ceremony without much special thought. Today instead we remember the dead at Kent State University, at Jackson State College, in Cambodia, and in Vietnam. Today is not an ordinary commencement day. Because of those dead we think of peace and justice before law and order. We think of humane wisdom before we think of impersonal knowledge.

ON SOME OTHER kind of commencement day I might urge you to support your alma mater with money and goods. Today I ask much more. Your voice and your vote are needed to restore the full and free flow of human communication within the academy.

Here is an example of advice to graduating high school students from a writer in an underground weekly newspaper that is published in Philadelphia.

"If a legitimately elected (or demanded) speaker is cut off or refused to be allowed to speak, forceful action is called for. Such an occurrence can radicalize even the most apathetic student body. Here again, liberation of the stage is the ultimate trip, for if police are called in, the school, through the confrontation that would follow, has committed public suicide."

IF I READ this advice correctly, it suggests that when a part of the audience in a commencement ceremony asks to hear a speaker and is not allowed to do so, a proper response is to take the stage by force. Taking the stage by force is also a proper response if the speech of a favored person is disrupted. In either event, the use of force by students will call forth the police. The action of the police will create further confrontation with students, and the school will find itself in public disapproval for pitting police against students.

Two ruinous ideas are implicit in this kind of advice. One is that an assembly in the academy should hear only from those speakers whose ideas it approves. The other is that students should rule the academy by force and violence. Taken together this pair of ideas portends a reign of the academy by bullies who will brook no dissent. That is not the kind of academy in which anyone will learn very much or teach very much.

PEACEFUL DISSENT is quite another matter. To carry a sign, to wear an armband, to show a clenched fist, to paint one's gown, to wear your brown berets, or not to attend a commencement are ways to communicate a point of view without trampling on the rights of others. Academics ruin easily. Little by little the students who value highly their freedom to learn anything and everything find themselves drifting away. They go to places where they can study what they want to study without frequent interruptions. The members of the faculty are no different, for teaching and learning make a unitary process. The freest spirits in the faculty begin to leave with the first whiffs of violence. When the silent majority condones the presence of bullies in the academy of a whole nation, the trickle of emigration to freer countries becomes a flood, as it did in Hitler's Germany.

In the ruin are left those who will tolerate the intolerable — those who will put up with anything simply to be in the academy at all.

THE RUINED academy continues to serve society, if history is some guide. Whether a society asks for preachers or teachers, pharmacists or physicians, the academy provides; for as has been said by many, the academy exists to serve its society. The Soviet Union has not been noted as a good place to learn or teach anything and everything; yet there are those cosmologists making their orbits very nicely, thank you, and there are the physicians of the Soviet Union fighting alcoholism and the common cold just as the physicians of other lands do. And when it comes to poets and composers, the Soviet Union has some very good ones, too, doesn't it? — although they may be in trouble with the authorities more often than the engineers or the physicists.

If we are willing to settle for less than the very best, then a ruined academy is in order, and we may get some reasonable comfort from the prediction by Senator Margaret Chase Smith that when an aroused silent majority in the United States must choose between anarchy and repression, the majority will opt for repression. We are a pragmatic lot, and after all repression works pretty well anyhow. Who cares about being best? To care about that is a figment of spiteful pride and the compulsive curse of effete snobs, isn't it?

Yet there is the basic possibility that, whatever we are, we could be better. Sometimes those who talk about working within the system seem to be saying that the system is perfect and nothing might be done to improve it. However loudly they speak they could be wrong. Indeed speaking loudly and with the force of authority seem to be deliberate attempts to make up for some lack of reason.

To put the matter in another way: You don't have to believe the President because he is the President and his voice booms from a hundred million speakers at once. You ought to believe him if, and only if, what he says is demonstrably true, as it very often is and sometimes might not be. Such an upstart and critical attitude is a special good of having a free academy, the ordinary good being to provide those preachers and teachers and technicians whether the academy is free or not.

EVERY BELIEF, phenomenon, idea, person and institution, including the academy itself, is a proper topic for the questions of the skeptic in the free academy. It is fair to ask why law and order should be more important than justice. It is also fair to ask why an unjust peace is better than a just war. It is fair to ask why a student newspaper is censored. It is also fair to ask why a church excludes people of one color or another.

Yet there are those who say that the academy should not undertake some kinds of study because to know the results of the study would increase man's potential for self-destruction. For example, if nuclear fission and nuclear fusion remain undiscovered, they could not be put to use in warfare.

This kind of reasoning is fit for the ostrich cage in the zoo but not for the members of a free academy. Today nuclear energy provides an increasing share of electricity at a time when traditional fuels are becoming more expensive and less available than before. Availability of nuclear weapons in the United States and in the Soviet Union has resulted in resolve to avoid unintended nuclear war through rapid and clear communication of military intentions to each other.

THE COURAGE to know is a strength and not a weakness in the academy. The weakness is in the lack of courage to choose between the right uses of knowledge and the wrong, the good uses of knowledge and the bad. Mathematics, like revolution, is a neutral substance. One may learn the techniques of either to the highest level of skill without knowing how to recognize the proper use of either. The skilled mathematician in the service of human repression is no better than the skilled revolutionary in the service of tyranny. Whether or not the wise use of knowledge is ever well-taught or well-learned in the academy is an open question. Neutral nonpartisan, non-moral teaching has seemed to be an ideal. Here is some language from the 1940 Statement of Principles on Academic Freedom and Tenure in which 90,000 members of the American Association of University Professors have joined with the Association of American Colleges and more than 50 associations:

"The teacher is entitled to freedom in the classroom in discussing his subject, but he should be careful not to introduce into his teaching controversial matter which has no relation to his subject."

And this note of interpretation is added:

"The intent of this statement is not to discourage what is 'controversial.'"

A cool 6th showed how to run race

AVOIDING FRIGHT and frightfulness has been a consistent badge of merit for Long Beach's 6th councilmanic district. The reason is probably a four-letter word — care.

The special merit of the cool in the 6th is that it has some problems which have blown wigs in other places. It has ghetto conditions, poor street lighting, sensitive relations in the area of police protection, some prostitution and a sizable black community — probably 25 or 30 percent.

THREE MONTHS ago the 6th elected a black councilman, James H. Wilson, the first in city history. One of the reasons has to be the care manifested by leaders in Long Beach's black and white communities in establishing many months ago an earnest and continuing dialogue on responsibilities and commitments—minimum obligations from both sides for problem solving and peace.

Apparently we're in midcourse and progressing, the battle not yet won, but with retreat or defeat now clearly unthinkable.

A cameo of this present-imperfect may be seen in the results of that special April councilmanic election. Wilson got 1,419 votes, more than the combined vote of the second and third place white contenders Vance Hardy (680) and William Alexander (622).

But now for the laboratory examination. There were 12 candidates, six black and six white. The district's 32 precincts included 22 white, 7 black and 7 with mixed character (less than 30 per cent black).

HOW WOULD the election have gone if only the 22 white precincts were counted? Wilson still would have won. Those 22 gave Wilson 672 votes to 532 for Hardy and 471 for Alexander.

Thus, Wilson received 26 per cent of the 2,371 ballots cast from the white precincts. Despite this, whites still cast a landslide of their vote for white candidates — 62 per cent of their votes were divided among the six white candidates. Blacks cast an even greater color vote — 93.5 per cent of the 973 ballots from the 7 black precincts were given to the six black candidates: Wilson got 47 per cent of them.

The 7 mixed precincts cast an expected middle-course vote, giving blacks 56 per cent of their 854 votes, whites 44 per cent. Wilson got a third of the vote from this mixed community.

Another part of the story lies in the voter turnout. Total turn out was 33.6 per cent. Of the total district registration of 12,755, the 22 white precincts had 8,068 of the votes but turned out only 29 per cent of them (2,371). Next best turnout was the 34 per cent from the mixed 7 precincts (854 voting of 2,507 registered). The 2,100 registered voters of the 7 black precincts turned out 44.6 per cent of them (973).

THE ELECTION shows signs of good health but its anatomy also reveals the means for thwarting the black candidate. Long Beach will be faced with choices of that nature in 1972 at the regular triennial council election.

In the 6th, the mere 29 per cent turnout from white precincts represented enough votes to give the election to a white candidate. If hypothetically all 2,371 had gone to a single white candidate, the blacks' total 973 votes wouldn't have made a dent. Even if the total black precinct registration of 2,100 had gone to Wilson he would have come up short.

Enlarging on this admittedly impossible test-tube example: Take a unanimously backed white candidate, getting 2,371 votes (and that's only 29 per cent of white eligible voters); then give Wilson the entire vote of black eligibles, 2,100. Now, in the 7 mixed precincts, divide the vote as it actually was cast, 461 for blacks and 373 for whites. Add those to the Wilson vs. white totals and it comes out Wilson losing 2,744 to 2,661.

SO THERE you have a lot of conformation to demonstrate the obvious — that a majority white community can win any such election.

The hope of the matter is that 6th District voters knew this obvious thing when they voted last April 7. It doesn't seem too strained a conclusion that the district was not interested in playing the racist game.

We cannot say in advance that a Wilson defeat in 1972 would prove racist. There are too many variables to weigh — the quality of his opposition, the substance of his own record among them.

But there will be some revelation if — all things being reasonably equal — Wilson should lose in the two-lane pattern all blacks before him have experienced in a citywide election.

The special good of a free academy

Controversy is at the heart of the free academy inquiry which the entire statement is designed to foster. The passage serves to underscore the entirely intruding material which has no need for the teacher to avoid persistance to his subject."

One idea of past years was that the student should not have to hear a teacher talk about the teacher's pet political ideas if those ideas had no bearing on the subject of the discussion. That there should be a political criterion for the worth of an idea in physics was repulsive to many, as it is today. But recall that the statement of the AAUP does not rule out the teacher's discussion of the potentially beneficial uses and the potentially harmful uses of an idea in, say, physics. The statement bars controversial matter which has no relation to the subject.

For example, in a course on physics a disquisition on the benefits of fascism might have no discernible relation to the physics of sunspots. Perhaps the teacher might remark truthfully that a fascist physicist had contributed important ideas to the understanding of sunspots, adding incidentally that of course fascists could be as competent as Communists or as anyone else in work on sunspots. Would the statement of principles have been violated? Probably not. But suppose that the physics teacher then gave a 10-minute talk on the moral superiority of fascist economics over Communist economics. That probably would violate the statement of principles. What we may have seen is that it is all right to mix politics with physics in the classroom if the end is to comment upon the conduct of physics, but it is not all right to substitute a talk on politics for one on physics, if the end is to talk about politics alone instead of physics.

THE SEEMING neutrality of the classroom thus in fact provides for wide-open discussion of controversial aspects of a topic as long as the controversy is related to the topic, but not for one moment beyond that.

An engineer is taught not to make things that will endanger the lives of their users. A physician is taught not to treat a patient for a non-existing ailment. But what may the academy give to the engineer to help him to judge right and wrong choices as parent, as voter, or member of a church?

The arts, the humanities, and the social sciences are the main sources of criteria for general social wisdom; the natural sciences provide knowledge that is indispensable to wise social action, but they offer little moral instruction.

The last and most important kind of learning and teaching of the wise uses of knowledge is by the example of one's fellows. Nothing is more powerfully impressive than to see an-

Where only cable cars go halfway

PEOPLE HAVE BEEN saying lately that the hippie movement in Haight-Ashbury has passed its peak and this may very well be true.

However, it is difficult to prove simply because the whole city of San Francisco is a hippie reservation. In fact, San Francisco has always been a hippie town. Ever since the Gold Rush it has been a place where everybody does his thing. To tell the truth, he does YOUR thing, too.

Next to Port Said, circa 1930, the city of the Golden Gate may be the most permissive on earth. It is the birthplace of amateur night for housewives in the burlesque strip halls, the home of the naked lady drummer and the 1970 Eden of the topless and bottomless Eves who make the Go-Go dens go. It is a place where the only risk a patron of a pornographic movie or play runs is being tagged for parking on the red line.

ALL OF THESE iniquities and others not to be mentioned here somehow seem antiseptic in the crisp air of the Seven Hills. (There actually are more than seven hills, but who would compare a city of Thirteen Hills with Rome?) This is because the hippie wind is a native of San Francisco and playing baseball in Candlestick Park is like shooting craps. On most days the wind tosses the clouds away and you can see Alcatraz, the only island in the country where a bunch of Indians have cut themselves off at the pass.

Permissive? It is notable that when the greatest of California highway-men — Black Bart — was living in a San Francisco hotel and, naturally, writing poetry, he was remembered by witnesses because he DID NOT use opium. A smoker would have blended into the crowd.

San Francisco is where minorities are in the majority, where gourmets pleasure in fine restaurants and where tourists find some of the worst, where little cable cars climb halfway to the stars and everything else goes all the way.

IT IS WHERE even diplomats let down their hair. At a recent State Department briefing for the press at the Hilton Hotel an impressive array of assistant secretaries, deputy assistant secretaries and administrators droned through the morning session without really saying much of anything of note. (The art of diplomacy is to say nothing and say it firmly.) They all seemed to have come down with infections of the Nixon Syndrome, prefacing each profound statement with, "First, I want to make this perfectly clear . . ."

However, at the luncheon in the Imperial Ballroom some of them suddenly remembered they were in San Francisco and let down their hair. Secretary of State William Pierce Rogers quipped, "Vice President Agnew thought I should be a little more friendly with the press."

Marshall Green, assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific Affairs descended to an atrocious pun: "I would like to recount what Shakespeare said about the situation: 'A plague Cambodia houses!'"

However, he recovered quickly. A big problem for the Philippines he said, is the population growth, which amounts to 4 per cent a year.

"I WAS DISMAYED to learn that the head of family control is named Concepcion. However, I was relieved to find out that she is not married, so her title is Miss Concepcion."

STERLING BEMIS

When he was stationed in Indonesia he saw a sign which said, "GREEN, GO HOME," under which somebody had scrawled in lipstick, "AND TAKE ME WITH YOU."

Ambassador Green said he had read somewhere that men speak 25,000 words a day. Women speak 30,000. "Trouble is," he added, "That the man uses his 25,000 words at the office and when he comes home his wife still has 30,000."

In one of the hotel elevators a small boy stood shivering in his bathing trunks en route from the swimming pool to his room.

A lady passenger remarked, "My, he certainly doesn't have much on for such a windy day." The stony-faced man with her replied, "Probably just paid his hotel bill."

That's the way it goes in the city by the bay.

THE TONE OF the town was illustrated by an incident on a cable car trip to Ghirardelli Square. The car screeched to a halt in a Chinese section where a driver had parked a long blue station wagon in a driveway so that its rear bumper hung over the track.

The cable car gripman descended to the street, moved to the driver's side of the station wagon and tooted a tattoo on the horn. No response. Nothing. Nothing for 15 minutes, during which the passengers laughed and shrugged, "Isn't this what you'd expect on a cable car in San Francisco?" (They didn't say it, they shrugged it.)

At last a worried looking Oriental lady hurried up the sidewalk and into the house. Shortly a very uneasy Chinese gentleman emerged. He was followed by an entire Chinese family, including a babe in arms. The man backed the station wagon out, stopped long enough on the tracks to get a ticket from a policeman, gunned his motor and pulled away.

THE PASSENGERS in the cable car cheered. The gripman grinned and changed his bell. Everybody in the Chinese family on the sidewalk smiled and waved, except for the baby. The baby just waved. A tourist leaned out and snapped another photo for the folks back in Kenosha.

With the possible exception of the driver of the station wagon everybody was happy. It could never happen in Chicago.

AMERICAN VIOLENCE. Edited by Richard Maxwell Brown. Prentice-Hall Spectrum Books, $1.95 paperback.

This country was brought to the brink of war with Italy after a New Orleans mob, on March 14, 1891, stormed a jail and lynched 11 Italian dock workers held as suspects in the police chief's murder. Collected in this volume are eyewitness accounts and official reports of this and other incidents of American violence from colonial times to our own day.—N.

THE NEGRO AMERICAN FAMILY. Edited by W. E. B. DuBois. MIT Press, $2.95 paperback.

Written well before World War I, this pioneer study of the Negro family and social conditions traced them directly to their African past.—N.

Ugly Americans on trips to Europe

MANY THOUSANDS of young Americans are on vacation trips to Europe. All but a small minority conduct themselves in a way that is a credit to themselves and their country. But as in this country, the small minority who do not so conduct themselves are a menace to all young people because they receive the headlines — as they do in this country.

We are quite lenient in the United States in dealing with the dope-using minority of our young people. This policy does not seem to be working, as statistics show increasing numbers of youths using dope. We are told we should ease our laws because smoking marijuana is no worse than getting drunk on alcohol. It is apparent such advocates would also ease the laws on minors' having access to all the alcoholic beverages they could buy.

THOSE IN THIS country who would ease these restrictions would really be critical of how they handle this problem in some European countries. The Arizona Republic gives an idea of this in an editorial headed "Ugly Americans." These young people give that impression. But we should all realize they represent only a very small percentage of all the young people fortunate enough to make such trips. It is tragic that the minority who do give this image in Europe also give it in their own country.

The Republic comment is as follows:

According to State Department statistics, well over 400 Americans, mostly youngsters, linger in foreign jails on charges of possessing or smuggling illegal drugs. Some of the cases, no doubt, involve hardened criminals, who take part in the huge profitable international drug traffic. But the vast majority consists of students, some in their late teens,

THESE YOUNGSTERS obviously forgot that "doing your thing" abroad was not the same thing as doing it at home. Abroad, punishment for smoking pot is both severe and swift.

State Department spokesmen warn that prison conditions in most foreign countries are primitive and that pre-trial detention, without any right for bail, may last a long time—usually up to a year.

Foreign courts do not take the tolerant attitude toward young drug offenders that U.S. courts do. And, more often than not, appeals to higher courts are automatically denied, and prison sentences must be served fully and without any prospect of reduction of time for good behavior.

The State Department reports the following sentences passed recently by foreign courts on young American drug offenders: An American coed traveling in Europe to tour art centers received a three-year prison term for the possession of marijuana. A newlywed couple, traveling in Central America, joined a "pot smoking picnic" and are still in jail, four months after their arrest, awaiting trial. A young American student received a five-year sentence at a labor camp in East Europe for smuggling hashish. Conditions in East European prison camps are appalling, and only the toughest can survive more than a few years of such imprisonment.

AMERICAN OFFICIALS are doing their best to help these unfortunate youngsters—and properly so since U.S. consular officers should help any American in distress, however ugly his activities. But there is little that the State Department can do.

The U.S. government is not in a position to ask for special treatment for its nationals, who have committed serious crimes in foreign countries. Perhaps the harsh treatment which these misguided youths receive abroad, and the years they spend in foreign jails, may teach them that the United States, for all its faults, is not such a bad country after all. But it is a harsh way to learn that lesson.

other human choose, to hear his reasons for choosing, and then to see the consequences of the choice. In this kind of work the young are very good at setting the issues and the less young at offering the criteria for wise use of knowledge. That is why I ask for your voice and your vote.

You are best able to advance the important causes of students while restoring the full and free flow of communication within the academy. You have that special position because for the time being you have both the spirit of students and the wisdom of teachers. You are best able to advise the students who are coming to take your places because you are party to the issues and are prepared to choose more wisely than those who have less firm grasp of the criteria by which to choose.

THE ISSUES of substance are plain.

The United States must get out of the war in Indochina steadily and rapidly. We have no more deaths to spend there.

We must actually give the blacks, browns, reds and yellows of this land the social, economic and political justice to which they have long been entitled.

We must give students a greater share of decisional power over their own lives in the academy.

Our determination to clean up the environment is urgent. A world in which we are sickened or killed by our own refuse is of use to no one.

We must bend greater effort to the prevention of crime. A student who is hurt or killed diminishes all of us by what he might have discovered for us had we given him what we ourselves enjoy — the chance to live completely and freely.

We must change our laws to widen the choices available to those who face military conscription, to those who contemplate the need for abortions, to those who innocently operate unsafely built automobiles.

STUDENTS WHO vote on questions like these affect the course of events directly and peacefully. Students who are not enfranchised to vote must depend upon you to vote as they would vote, if they were permitted to do so. But students will campaign, whether or not they vote, and campaign they should.

You can encourage violent campaigning by applauding it or remaining silent on it. You can encourage peaceful and decent campaigning by speaking up for it and by doing it.

In brief, you have great power, and I ask you to use it for what is right and good, lest by default of using your power you find that your own chance to be right and good is gone. Help the academy in this and you give more than gold. You give freedom to learn and to teach.

CONGRATULATIONS on the knowledge you have gotten, and may you have the curiosity and the courage to get more. May you always improve your ability to use your knowledge for the good and the right, because that is the pursuit of wisdom, and it is the pursuit of wisdom for which the academy exists more than for the pursuit of knowledge alone. If knowledge is gained by curiosity and courage, wisdom grows from a heart full of love for humanity.

May your heart be full, and may you love without limit. Peace, friends, peace.

Pet Shop Owners Fight Ban on Exotic Animals

By MOLLY BURRELL
Staff Writer

If a bill under consideration in Sacramento becomes law, booming sales of ocelots, monkeys and other exotic pets will end, local pet store owners say.

Shop owners and suppliers in the Long Beach area are opposing what they call an "unconstitutional and unenforceable bill." But in the capital city, the moving force behind the bill said the law is needed to correct "shocking cruelties."

THE MEASURE, AB 2252, would outlaw importation for resale of any nonnative, nondomesticated mammal. It would make the presence of any such animal in a place of sale prima facie evidence that the animal was imported to be sold. Zoos and public entities would be exempted, and the state Fish and Game director would compile the ban list.

"This bill would cut our business in half, and put some of us out of business," said Mrs. Betty Brown, 620 South Street, president of a 200-member National Retail Pet Supply Association. "What's more," she added, "it is so vague it sounds unenforceable."

In Sacramento, however, Mrs. Gladys Sargent, ex-officio lobbyist for a dozen animal protection groups and prime mover behind the bill said:

"The law is badly needed to correct shocking cruelties to exotic animals. I've canvassed humane societies throughout the state and the stories are all the same. People who buy these baby animals are not told how to take care of them and in a short time they either die or grow too big to handle."

"ZONING LAWS prohibit them in early every community. Where can they go? Zoos say they can't take any more, and the animals are usually defanged and declawed and semidefenseless by then. So, they may be put to sleep or given to roadside zoos or shows where conditions are often cruelly inadequate."

However, in Long Beach Mrs. Brown said 200 petitions bearing 6,000 signatures were en route to lawmakers at the state capital to protest the bill.

"We are also phoning and sending wires. This is a matter of livelihood for a whole segment of the economy. About the only things not prohibited would be birds and fish and a few locally bred cats and dogs," she declared.

MRS. SARGENT, who views the bill as part of her 25-year campaign to eliminate cruelties to all animals, counters:

"Urban and suburban living is hard on exotic animals no matter how well meaning the pet owner. Affluence generally, and particularly in California, has put some exotic species in danger of extinction because there is no limit to the number or type of animal money can procure."

"But the major problem is cruelty," she emphasizes.

"We also need state licensing of pet shops and roadside zoos in insure uniform regulations for the animals' health and welfare. Most pet shops are marginal businesses and many don't have enough space or enough help to maintain clean quarters with proper temperature and air controls," she added.

Other bills on Mrs. Sargent's lobbying list:

A Senate proposal which would require pound officers to take any injured animal to a licensed veterinarian with costs charged to the owner or taken from license fees if the animal is a stray.

Senate Bill 344 would make non-tangling chains mandatory for dogs who must be tied so that the animal can reach shelter.

SB 658 proposes that licensed dogs' owners' names must be available at all times so that lost animals can quickly be returned.

SB 648, now on the Governor's desk, imposes a $5 fee on unaltered cats from pounds, shelters or pet shops. Pet shops will also have to collect a part of a spaying fee to be applied on the operation when the cat is of breeding age.

An assembly bill would prohibit veterinarians from disposing of pets abandoned by owners until the vet had tried for a minimum of 30 days to find a home for the animal.

Legal objections to the import ban were explained by Santa Monica attorney Michael Somers:

"The act is vague and unenforceable. 'Unlawful' means a crime with some kind of penalty, but this bill doesn't indicate penalties or degrees."

"AND HOW do you define 'native'?" Somers said. "Horses are not native if native means indigenous. Nor are hamsters or Siamese cats," he added.

"Also, there's no indication whether or not the bill is retroactive or retrospective," Somers said. "Nor does it specify how import status will be determined, nor does it define a public entity. Furthermore, unbridled delegation by a legislative to an administrative agency (i.e., the state Fish and Game director) without specific guidelines has been held an unconstitutional delegation of authority," Somers adds.

Somers also said that the commerce clause of the federal constitution protects free enterprise and exchange of goods across state lines. Only a strong showing that public health, welfare and safety would be endangered would justify any encroachment in that area, he asserted.

Mrs. Brown said Wednesday "If our petitions and wires don't stop the bill, we'll ask the governor to veto it."

Somers added: "If the bill becomes law, which I doubt, we shall immediately take steps to challenge the constitutionality."

Returning Destroyer Had Its 'Fireworks' in Far East

There were no fireworks Saturday for the Long Beach-based destroyer USS Brinkley Bass — all had been well expended working the gunline during the ship's six months deployment with the 7th Fleet.

Cmdr. J.W. Tucker, Westminister, and his 280-man crew were able to point with pride to its shooting record and performance in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) 35-ship "Exercise Sea Rover."

In "Rover" the Bass was paired with the Royal Thai patrol frigate Praese in what proved to be well-coordinated anti-submarine work against U.S. and British submarines.

Ships from the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand also participated.

The Bass' companion Praese is a former U.S. craft, USS Gallup, given to Thailand in 1951.

Liberly port visits included the regular stops at Hong Kong and Olongapo, Philippines, plus Sattahip, Thailand (Bangkok's port), and Kaohsiung, Taiwan.

Pacific Terrace Streets' Fluoridation Name Changes Urged Bids Called

Streets in the Pacific Terrace area south of Ocean Boulevard should be named with a nautical or maritime connotation, a special committee has told the Planning Commission.

City Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr. said the only known objection to revising street names there is that of the U.S. Post Office, which opposes Boise-Cascade's plan to designate its entire west beach development as "Ocean-gate," and use independent numbering within that project.

The major thoroughfare in the area, linking Long Beach Freeway and the proposed Alamitos Freeway, should be named Shoreline Drive, as it has been known in its planning stages, the committee said.

Extensions of both Atlantic and Pacific avenues south to the ocean should be designated South Atlantic and South Pacific avenues, the Planning Commission was told.

THE SOUTHERLY extension of Magnolia Avenue from Ocean Boulevard should be redesignated as Queen's Way, to conform to Queen's Way Bridge, the committee said.

Golden Avenue, south from Ocean Boulevard, should be redesignated Golden Shore, according to the committee report.

George S. Gatter, assistant city planning director, said the matter was brought up by the State Fish and Game Commission, which recently moved into the former Navy Landing building on S. Magnolia Ave., and which said there is confusion about its proper street address.

The Armed Services YMCA, which is now the only addressee on the proposed Queen's Way, has no objection to the name change, Gatter said.

Commissioners asked Mayer to set up a public hearing on the street name proposals, which ultimately would go to the City Council for final approval.

Specifications for the equipment needed to add fluoride to Long Beach city water supplies have been approved by the Water Commission, and the general manager is advertising for bids.

The bids will be opened by the commission on July 30. Estimated cost of the two contracts involved is $47,000.

One contract will cover the furnishing of chemical tanks and weighing systems at an estimated cost of $12,000, and the other will involve instrumentation and chemical-feeding equipment at a cost estimated at $35,000.

General Manager C. Kenyon Wells said equipment purchased under the two contracts will be "essentially all the major elements required" for the fluoridation of city water. Some small piping, valves and electrical conduit will be required to complete the installation, he said.

The specifications for the equipment were prepared by the Water Department's special consultants.

NOT READY TO RETIRE L.B. Police Sgt. Houghton's 50 Years on Job a Record

By CHUCK CHEATHAM
Staff Writer

Sgt. Robert N. Houghton will complete 50 years of service Friday with the Long Beach Police Department—a national longevity record.

"We have checked diligently and not been able to find anyone who has ever served with any law enforcement agency this long," Deputy Chief of Police Ralph G. Kortz said.

"In fact, the late Sheriff Eugene W. Biscailuz, who was with Los Angeles County 47 years, seems the closest to Sgt. Houghton in seniority in the country," Chief Kortz added.

Sgt. Houghton, who has been day booking sergeant since 1962, is in good health and shows no interest in retiring.

"I would do it all over again. I like the men and the administration," Sgt. Houghton said happily as he looked over a jail registry from his beginning days with Chief of Police William J. Mooney.

Sgt. HOUGHTON remembers quilting his job as a motorman for the Pacific Electric and going to work or the Police Department six days after his 21st birthday.

"The pay was $5.50 a day and Chief of Police J. L. Butterfield gave me a hat and badge and told me where to buy a gun and handcuffs," Sgt. Houghton recalls.

His first job was walking the graveyard beat on the Pike, without any training or a partner. He soon made his first arrest, a drunk.

"The man was fined $25 or had the choice of spending five days in jail. He paid the fine and to this day that is still the same fine," Sgt. Houghton said.

The early jail registry showed Sgt. Houghton made frequent arrests of minor traffic violators who were then hauled to jail rather than being issued a citation to appear at a later date.

Since Sgt. Houghton made his first entry in the jail registry, a total of 562,491 persons have been logged in the Long Beach jail.

Sgt. HOUGHTON revealed he tried to quit after his first few months on the job.

"They put me under a mean sergeant and I tossed my badge on the chief's desk and tried to resign but he convinced me to stay to the end of the month," he remembers with a grin.

Sgt. Houghton worked in the traffic division until he was appointed acting sergeant in charge of the division in 1962. On Dec. 16, 1927, he received his permanent appointment to sergeant and was in the traffic bureau three years.

His next job was in charge of the jail and the maintenance crew. The maintenance job called for him to oversee the painting of lines in the streets and the sidewalk curbs, the care of the parking meters, the erecting of traffic signs and traffic signals.

"The first traffic signal was erected in 1927 at Broadway and Pine Ave.," he said.

SGT. HOUGHTON passed the civil service examination for detective inspector, but after two months in the detective bureau he returned to run the maintenance crew until 1949, when the duties were transferred to the Public Service Department.

He spent the next 11 years as patrol sergeant on the night watch until assuming his present position.

Sgt. Houghton and his wife of 43 years, Rose, were honored at a dinner by the department's Command Officers Association.

Sgt. Houghton, who has served under nine chiefs of police, has two sons, Robert H. Houghton, La Habra, and John R. Houghton, Seal Beach, and five grandchildren.

He won't be at work on his anniversary date. He and his wife will be on a vacation drive to Portland, Ore., to visit relatives and friends.

Budget-Limited Summer School Program to Open

A budget-limited summer school program for junior and senior high school students opens Monday in Long Beach.

Classes, which end Aug. 14, were designed specifically "to provide students who are deficient in credit or grades an opportunity to make up their deficiencies," officials said.

Only actual residents within the Long Beach Unified School District are eligible to attend. And no recreational courses are being offered this summer because of the district's current straitened financial picture, they added.

Junior High students from across most of the city will attend senior high schools where 7-12th grade classes will be given. Two downtown schools, Washington JHS and Poly High, will enroll their regular grade levels, 7-9th and 10-12th respectively.

I, P-T Wins International Award

The Independent, Press-Telegram won a second place trophy this week in recognition of the paper's "outstanding" circulation promotion program. The I, P-T beat out 53 other metropolitan newspapers in the United States, Canada, South America and Europe. First place trophy went to Globe & Mail, a paper in Toronto, Canada.

The awards announcement came from the International Circulation Managers' Association's 71st annual convention at the Brown Palace Hotel in Denver, Colorado. W. J. Morrissey, I, P-T Circulation Director, who was named first vice president of the ICMA, accepted the award. Michael Tynan of the Pittsburgh Press and Post Gazette was named the new president of the organization. The I, P-T's entry, entitled "This is Your Life," featured contests for newspaperboys, an education program, and departments for carrier publication, carrier public relations, and a champion self-improvement program for newspaperboys

200,000 at Beach for 4th Parade

By ARLINE SHERER
Staff Writer

About 200,000 persons crowded into Huntington Beach Saturday to watch the 66th annual Independence Day parade honor America's youth.

The onlookers sipped soft drinks and sno cones in 90 degree heat as they saw television celebrity Johnny Grant, parade grand marshal, ride past followed by 18 marching bands, 32 decorated floats, clowns, color guards, novelty groups and equestrian units.

THE PARADE, sponsored by the city and the Jaycees, centered around the theme, "Achievements of our American Youth."

Many of the floats were entered by youth groups. The YMCA Indian Guides-Northern Star Nation won a sweepstakes trophy. The float featured a giant arrowhead and the saying, "Great Oaks from Little Acorns."

Two teen-agers from Huntington Beach received recognition for their achievements. They are Rhonda Martyn, a Marina High School graduate who is California's Junior Miss, and Jeff Grider, a student at Marina View School who won a sweepstakes prize at the Orange County Science Fair for creating a miniature paper mill.

Among the many celebrities and dignitaries appearing in the parade were Gen. Lewis H. Walt, assistant commandant, U.S. Marine Corps; Jerry Matney, mayor pro tem of Huntington Beach; news commentator George Putnam; Congressman Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach; Greta Anderson, world champion swimmer; Evette Younger, Los Angeles district attorney; Ellor Larsen, official greeter for Laguna Beach; Congressman Richard T. Hanna, D-Fullerton; and Robert Battin, Orange County supervisor.

There were 239 entries in the 2½-hour long parade.

IN THE FLOAT division, the Mayor's Trophy was won by the City of Westminster for its replica of the clock Big Ben. The Orange Firemen's Benevolent Association won the president's trophy for its dove of peace.

Sweepstakes winners in the various divisions were Velvet Knights, best musical unit; Edwards Air Force Base Exhibition Drill Team, best marching unit; YMCA Indian Guides-Winnemucca Nation, specialty; and Bob Yates, best equestrian.

War Foes to Defy Parade Float Ban

SEASIDE (U) — Five anti-war groups, denied permission to enter floats in an Independence Day parade here today, say they'll do so anyway.

Refusal by the Chamber of Commerce to issue float permits to the five groups, says attorney Steve Slatkow of the American Civil Liberties Union, is unconstitutional.

Foreign Students Barred by Costs

student to complete his degree requirements, with an option for an additional 1½ years to "gain practical experience" if the student can find a job in his field, the director said.

According to several foreign students at the college, most depend on their families at home to send funds for their educations. They say few young people from foreign nations have access to scholarships or governmental aid to attend college in America.

AHMAD HUSAMI, 22, a native of Lebanon and president of the International Students Committee at Cal State-Long Beach, feels similarly.

"We are not asking the government to help us get jobs. We know that is not what we're here for," he said. "But now, many students know they will have to get a work permit and work for one semester, less than 20 hours a week, or many of them will have to quit, certainly."

"We know pretty well we are not paying our way. We are costing much more. But meanwhile, Russia is offering scholarships. We came here to learn about democracy. We think this is the least expensive way for America to influence, to spread democracy over the world . . . a most agreeable way to our people and to yours."

Husami, who believes he will be returning for classes next year, is one of the better informed foreign students on the campus concerning the crises facing him and his fellows.

"Many of them have gone home for the summer," said Lindquist. "They are unaware they'll be paying 200 per cent of what they were paying last year."

"A lot of those people won't return until a week or two, before school resumes, and many of them cannot get money from their countries in that short period."

OTHER MEMBERS of the foreign student colony at Cal State-Long Beach are just beginning to realize how the rapid series of increases will affect them.

At 19, Doan Thi Nam Huong is still a freshman at the college. A native of South Vietnam, she is the second oldest of 10 children, and the second member of her family to come to America for an education.

She is not sure how badly she will be hurt in the financial squeeze. She had been receiving $150 per month from her parents for living expenses since her arrival in California in February, which includes rent on the apartment she shares with her sister and another foreign student.

Nam Huong expects she will receive much less per month next year — if she can continue. 120 Vietnamese piastres, she explained, equal one American dollar.

To her parents, she continued, the $150 in monthly expense money she has been receiving is enough to feed the other eight children in the family for half a month.

Nam Huong's roommate is 24-year-old Dolores Cardenas, a native of Mexico. Her family will also feel the pinch of the higher tuition.

"My younger brother was going to come to college. Now, somehow, my parents will have to support us both," she said.

A SURVEY RECENTLY conducted by Lindquist's office at Cal State-Long Beach indicates that about 10 per cent of the college's foreign students will have to return home.

Half of those are not expected to ever return to America for studies, their one opportunity gone.

"We had estimated we would have about 15 per cent of the foreign students seriously hurt," said Lindquist. "But now it looks like 20 to 25 per cent."

To make matters worse for Lindquist, his office also faces drastic paring by way of the state budget. Prior to its passage, he said, "At this point, I don't know if I'm working for free, for love or for money."

His office, he said, is funded through a budgetary area known as the materials and service fees.

Legislative scrutiny brought reports that only two per cent of the student populace up and down the state — the foreign students — were benefitting from money channeled to the various colleges' International Student Affairs Centers during budget preparations.

"I think what will happen is that we'll wind up getting only the elite from other countries. We have, by reputation, been getting as close to the middle class as possible," Lindquist said.

Lindquist intends to go to several private service clubs around the community, seeking donations to bolster "three or four different funds worth about $3,500."

Those funds have been designated for aid to foreign students, but he does not believe the money will handle the needs of his office.

"These people go back to their countries with the knowledge they gain, and help their own nations. They are good ambassadors for this country. And American students learn a lot from getting to know foreign students," said Lindquist. "They actually become part of the curriculum."

2 Scientologists Blast Organized Psychiatry

ness" and using it to justify involuntary "treatment."

On the other are those who seek to restrict the concept of illness to "publicly demonstrable anatomical and physiological disorders of the body."

He summarized this as a struggle between "collectivism and individualism." He said he believes individualism is gaining in the battle, but warned:

"Individual dignity and freedom have their enemies — the most important among them, Communism in the East and Institutional Psychiatry in the West."

The petition signed by the Scientologists states: "We want to know: Where is Joe Louis? We want to hear from him, not his lawyer, his family or his psychiatrist." The group says it will present the petition to the head of the Colorado hospital Monday.

The second speaker, John Joseph Matonis, a Washington attorney, drew the audience to its feet when he introduced himself as the man "who sues suppressive psychiatrists."

MATONIS related a case in which he claimed a patient was held against his will in a mental hospital and submitted to excessive electro-therapy treatment because he had evidenced suicidal tendencies. He said the man, a Hungarian refugee who could not speak English, was ultimately freed on a court order and placed in a productive job by the group Matonis represents, the Citizens Committee on Human Rights.

After lashing out at numerous abuses which he says exist in mental hospitals he called for Scientologists to take up the fight by letting "the tortured beings in mental hospitals know you're there and fighting for them."

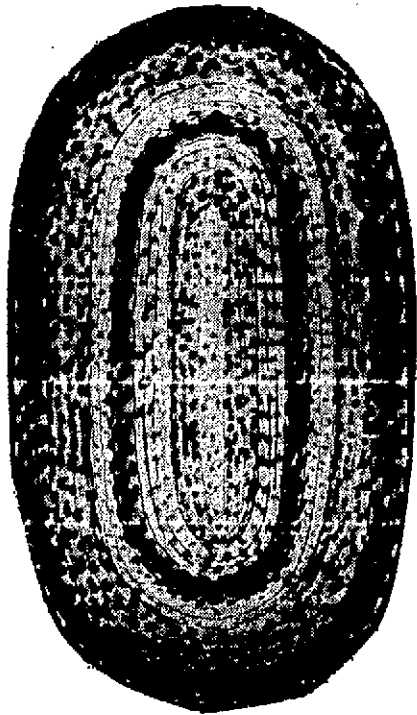

The group's convention ends today.

Reporter Takes Dive, Down and Out

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

A reporter following his nose for news can find himself in rather unusual circumstances, such as belly-down on the rocky bottom of Los Angeles Harbor.

That is where this reporter wound up Tuesday afternoon.

IT ALL STARTED with a question I had put to Al Hanson, a veteran hard-hat diver with more than 30 years experience.

"What's it look like on the bottom?" I had asked him.

"Go down and look for yourself," he answered.

Me? Make a dive wearing a hard-hat and rubber suit?

Deepest I'd ever been down was to the bottom of a neighbor's pool to recover his favorite pipe.

But as Hanson, with the help of his wife, Norma, also a certificated hard-hat diver, lowered the brass helmet over my head and twisted it shut, it was too late to back out.

I WAS WEARING two suits of long johns, two pair of thick wool socks, a long-sleeved bushy sweater and a knitted cap.

"It's a different world down there," Norma told me.

Al instructed me in the "do's" and "don'ts."

"Don't hit the chin button. That lets water into the helmet. If the suit starts to bloat, hit the air release valve with the back of your head. If you want to come up, let the suit fill with air. If you want to go down, let the air out.

"If the pressure builds up, wiggle your jaws. That'll 'pop' your ears. And don't panic. The worst that can happen to you is your suit will fill with air and you'll pop up like a cork," Al said turning the thumb screws of my breast plate.

Moments later, I was over the side and working my way down the ladder and into the water. My suit was filling with air. I was bloating. With my head I pushed on the exhaust valve located above and behind my right ear.

The escaping air sounded like someone gargling. After a few minutes of experimenting with the release valve I let go of the bottom run of the ladder. I was on the bottom.

It was strewn with rocks about the size of my office typewriter. Walking in boots weighted with 10 pounds of lead was tricky.

The water was murky. I couldn't see the bottom. I decided to go down for a closer look. I let enough air out of the helmet so I could lie belly-down on the bottom.

Tip-toeing and pulling myself along by grabbing the rocks, I explored the sea floor.

A crab darted between two rocks.

The edible sized fish made a fast "Right face," stared at me for brief moment, then disappeared into the silt cloud I had stirred up.

Between gurgles of escaping air I heard Norma's voice come over the speaker of the built-in telephone.

"You're a helluva reporter. You aren't reporting anything."

I was too fascinated to talk.

About then I saw a blotch of color a few feet ahead of me.

"Hey, there's some sort of a weird plant down here!" I said.

"What's it look like?" Norma asked.

"It's bright orange. Got 20 or 30 fingers about a foot long. Looks like a small octopus upside down."

"Oh, that's a Gorgonia

Coral. They call it a sea fan," Norma informed me.

This was truly a different world!

Al had warned me that during a dive I would likely lose my conception of time. I guessed I had been down about five minutes. I was beginning to tire and figured this was neither the time nor the place to test my muscular endurance. As it was I discovered some muscles I didn't know I had.

I decided it was time to come up. I let the suit fill with air — too much air! I popped to the surface like a balloon.

With the increased air pressure, the flexible sleeves and legs of the rubber suit stiffened. I couldn't bend my elbows nor my knees. I was spread-eagle like a gingerbread man on a cookie tin.

With my head I punched the air release valve. (Next time I make a hard-hat dive, I'm going to wear a football helmet. My head is still sore from banging it against that plunger.

The suit deflated. The lead-soled boots pulled my feet downward as I maneuvered myself in position to climb up the tender boat's ladder.

The weightlessness I had experienced under water left me unprepared as I struggled up the ladder and out of the water. I could feel the full weight of the 50-pound helmet pushing down, hard, on the thin skin over my shoulder bones. The suit, about 125 pounds, added to my own weight. As Al removed the bulbous helmet I asked how long I had been down. "About 45 minutes." And I thought it had been about five!

As I peeled off my wet long johns, I received a congratulatory comment from Al.

"You have just joined a rather exclusive fraternity," he said.

"You and my 87-year old mother have each made a hard-hat dive!"

PALOS VERDES PLAYHOUSE
'Room Service' Needs Work, But Is Well Worth Seeing
 By RALPH HINMAN JR.
 Drama Critic
 "Diamond in the rough," a cliché normally to be avoided, stands as the most accurate, honest description now of Palos Verdes Playhouse's just-opened mounting of "Room Service."
 Bugged by production problems — the opening was delayed a week by a last-minute major cast change — the show was rough, and awkward in spots when I caught it Friday night. Despite all this, it still was very funny.
 DIRECTOR Phil Wing is working with an experienced cast in this 1937 Marx Brothers farce, a scurvy account of a strapped theatrical producer's trials and tribulations.
 His cast is good, yes, but they need more time working with each other to smooth it out. Occasional style, complete to the clothing of the day and topical references elusive to a younger spectator. For instance, the "Fishbein" referred to several times is the late Morris Fishbein M.D., editor and onetime medical professional leader with a salty reputation.
 They also make an interesting change in the scenario, one I found rather delightful. The original "heavy" is a hotel official named Wagner; in this mounting it becomes "Mrs. Wagner" — and Harriett Bond does a superb job of it.
 EXCELLENT work also from a young chap I haven't seen before, Aart Assink, a native playwright from upstate New York. And Murray Rubin, the cynical producer with heart of gold is very good, will be better.
 Although the opener earns but two stars, I'm confident this rating will jump to three-plus before the closing. With one qualification — some parents might find objectionable an explosive series of "goddammit's" — I'd rate this as general family entertainment.
 Such lapses can, and undoubtedly will, be overcome.
 The story centers around producer Gordon Miller's efforts to find a financial "angel" for his new show, by an unknown young playwright. But he's broke and trapped in his hotel room, starving while "room service" is cut off by an unfeeling management. There's much more, of course, but that's enough to either refresh the memory or whet a potential viewer's appetite.
 Palos Verdes does the vehicle in High Camp

Daredevil to Jump Over Snake River
 SEATTLE (UPI) — Daredevil motorcycle stuntman Evel Knievel says he is going to catapult himself across a three-quarter-mile section of the Snake River Canyon in Idaho sometime next year.
 Knievel said: "I've planned a canyon jump for over four years. As you know, my plans for jumping the Grand Canyon were not accepted by the U.S. government several years ago."
 But the Montana native said backers now have leased several hundred acres of land above the Snake River, near Twin Falls and Shoshone Falls, for his jump.

Train Kills Parents and 7 Children
 ANOKA, Minn. (U) — A freight train smashed into a car Friday night, killing a suburban Minneapolis businessman, his wife and seven of their children.
 Only one child survived. The accident happened at a crossing of the Burlington Northern Railroad, about five miles west of Anoka, in the northern suburbs of Minneapolis-St. Paul.
 The coroner's office identified those killed as Roger D. Smith, 37; his wife Mary, 32; and the children: Susan, 13, Eugene, 11, Stephen, 8, Kevin, 7, Daniel, 6, Angela, 3, and Joanna, 11 months.
 The crossing, on a country road, has a stop sign and conventional X-shaped railroad crossing warning, but no electrified signal.

ELMER GRABLE
Joins United Way

Salvation Aide Helps United Way

Elmer "Jack" Grable, former Salvation Army officer in charge of the Long Beach corps, has been given the position of Area Associate for the United Way, according to Jack W. Johnstone, Area executive director.

Grable will be placed in charge of coordinating volunteers working in the commerce and industry, public employees and school divisions for the fall United Crusade.

"Not only will Grable be able to realistically present agency programs and needs to our workers, he has a 16-year background of fund-raising that will be particularly helpful," Johnstone declared.

Grable stated that he will work with the separate divisions being organized among volunteers in the five community campaigns in the area.

In addition, he will work closely with United Way community boards of directors in Paramount, Lakewood-Hawaiian Gardens, Artesia-Cerritos and Bellflower.

Before coming to Long Beach, Grable and his wife, June, have held Salvation Army administrative positions in San Francisco, Oregon and Arizona.

The Grables have two sons in high school and college.

Youngsters Clean Up in Carson

Young people in Carson will leave their city a cleaner place to live this summer, Mayor Gilbert Smith announced Saturday.

"We have received approval for 30 of the youngsters who have applied for summer jobs through the YES program (Youth Employment Summer) to work for the city, primarily on city beautification projects," Mayor Smith explained.

The National Youth Corps will pay the youngsters at the rate of $1.45 per hour, but the city will have control over the type of work to which they will be assigned, Smith said.

Some of the youth will be assigned to clerical tasks at the City Hall, he said, but most of them will work with crews from the parks and public works departments on cleanup projects and similar light work.

What's SO special about renting at
Galaxy Towers?

berparks it's the four 20-story steel towers which provide complete privacy (no common walls) in each of the four apartments on every floor . . . or the spacious, 1650 square feet of these two-bedroom/two bath apartments — combined with voluminous closet space, thick shag rug, custom draperies and wet-bar. The apartments all-electric kitchen which has two ovens and range, dishwasher and built-in blender is another plus . . . and the location adjacent to Belmont Shore and the Long Beach Marina is convenient and beautiful, too. A private balcony, indoor parking, impeccable maintenance and thorough security complete the picture. More and more discriminating people are finding the Galaxy Towers a fine place to live. Rentals start at $405 per month.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE EVENING NEWS AND THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM

The Smothers Ride Again

The Smothers Brothers, nomads of the broadcasting industry since they were dismissed by the Columbia Broadcasting System one year ago, have found a summer home on the American Broadcasting Company.

The brothers, Tom and Dick, will begin a summer run of "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" at 10 p.m. Wednesday, Ch. 7 and will be regulars until the fall season begins in mid-September. A network spokesman said that listener and sponsor response could make possible a permanent spot on the ABC prime time lineup.

The new program, a network spokesman said, would follow closely the traditional format of the brothers' former efforts.

The new Smothers Brothers program will replace the "Englebert Humperdinck Show," and that program in turn will move to Saturday nights replacing "Jimmy Durante Presents the Lennon Sisters" at 9:30 p.m.

Tom and Dick Smothers will act as executive producers of the new program. As it was during their CBS days, the shows will be taped as they are performed before a live audience in Hollywood. The show will be basically a variety show, with the accent on current news and topics, interspersed with songs and comedy skits.

The premiere show will feature Nancy Sinatra, the Checkmates, John Sebastian, Ted Mack and Spencer Quin as guests.

Also on the first edition will be show regular Sally Struthers, a comedienne, singer and dancer who will do a one-woman imitation of the brothers. Another regular is the show's critic, a mynah bird, which will occasionally deliver a two-word commentary on Tommy's performance.

Tom and Dick will explain about their return to television, sing a revised version of "Oakie from Muskogee," show film of Dick auto racing, and generally "horse around."

Everly Brothers Show Premieres

"The Everly Brothers Show," variety series replacing Johnny Cash for the summer, premieres at 9 p.m., Wednesday, Ch. 7.

On the guest list are Cash, Kenny Rogers and the First Edition and Melanie. Also joining Don and Phil Everly on the curtain-raiser will be their father, Ike Everly, Carl Perkins and the Tennessee Three, actress-comedienne Ruth McDevitt, comedian Albert Brooks, and Joe ("You in a heap o' trouble, boy") Higgins.

The Everly Brothers broke into show business at ages eight and six when their parents Ike and Margaret Everly, who had their own radio show on KMA in Shenandoah, Iowa, asked them: "You both like to sing with us at home, how would you like to do it on radio?"

They enjoyed their first big success in the late 1950s, with their first million seller recording, "Bye, Bye Love."

Bob Dylan once said of the Everly Brothers, "We owe these guys everything. They started it all." And at the start of the Beatles' career in England, the famed foursome billed themselves "The English Everly Brothers."

Don and Phil were born in the small town of Brownie, Kentucky. In their preschool years, they moved with their parents to Chicago and then to Shenandoah, Iowa, where their radio career began.

During summer vacations, they worked harvest jubilees, revival meetings, square dances and road shows with their parents.

Eventually, the Everly family moved to Knoxville, Tennessee, where they had a country music radio show. However, radio was beginning to suffer because of television, so when their Knoxville show ended, like Everly went into the construction business and Margaret became a beautician.

Don and Phil, in 1955, went to Nashville, making the rounds of recording studios and agencies with little success.

After months of frustration, they auditioned for Archie Bleyer and "Bye, Bye Love" was recorded for Cadence.

Music Hall. Bob Hope, Dick Clark, Carol Burnett, Patti Page, Jimmy Durante, Ed Sullivan, Jimmy Rodgers, The Smothers Brothers, Glen Campbell and Johnny Cash were among the many that featured the Everly Brothers as guest stars.

They have toured a total 480 cities in America's 50 states and have played in Canada, England, France, Luxembourg, Germany, Belgium, Australia, Holland, Sweden, Denmark, Italy and South Africa.

Comedy Tonight Summer Show Bows

Alan King, Robert Merrill and Shelley Berman are among seven guests joining star Robert Klein and other young talent on the premiere of "Comedy Tonight," summer series focusing on topical relevant humor, at 9 p.m., Sunday, Ch. 2.

They will appear in cameo roles along with Nipsey Russell, Ed McMahon, diminutive Johnny Puleo of "Harmonica Rascals" fame and renowned magician Milbourne Christopher.

Klein, who sings and plays musical instruments in addition to being one of today's new comedians, is aided in the series by regulars Marly Barria, Peter Boyle, Barbara Cason, Macintyre Dixon, Judy Graubart, Laura Greene, Madeline Kahn, Jerry Lacy and Lynn Lipton. All perform in straight comedy roles and sketches and also sing.

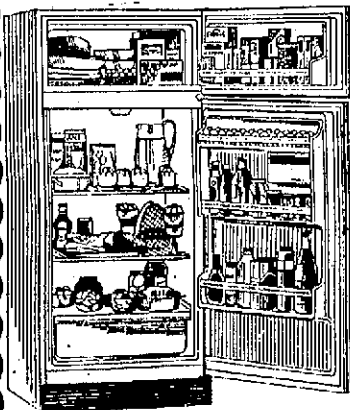

In a weekly tongue-in-cheek look at a major city in the United States, the entire cast pays a visit to "Washingtonland" on the opening show.

In another continuing spot, "Man Against . . ." which points up problems besetting Americans, the initial broadcast pokes fun at the frustrations involved in dealing with one's children.

Also on tap is a weekly visit to the program by Klein's "Best Friend."

The premiere turns its sights on "Things You Won't See on This Program" — takeoffs on a number of series presented during the current season — and features Klein in versions of the song "Let's Do It" as it might have been done in the 1930s, 1940s, 1950s, 1960s and 1970s. A lament to baseball players of yesterday, titled "Van Lingle Mungo," is another offering.

PAN AND FAN MAIL

WHY IS it that no local stations on standard (VHF) channels had anything on the World Soccer Cup games in Mexico? Sportscasters never mentioned the games. Maybe they don't consider it a sport, but 800 million people watched it, so it must be popular somewhere."

What are the powers that be afraid of? Is it sour grapes because little Haiti beat the U.S.A. team? I bought a new TV just to tune in Ch. 34 to watch soccer.

A fan, soccer, that is,

W. Heaps,
Long Beach

(Sour grapes has nothing to do with it. As soon as there's enough interest in the U.S. for the sport to attract a sponsor, the standard channels will be happy to carry it. Incidentally, if you want to watch the 1970 World Cup, tune in to the CBS Saturday and Sunday night news, had some coverage of the sport).

THERE WAS an article in your publication recently beginning "Johnny Cash, the country singer who was virtually unknown five years ago..."

I feel this article is not true. Johnny Cash was well known 10 years ago when I was 18... All the kids in junior high and high school knew who he was and loved his song, "I'll Walk the Line." He also was very popular on the Cliff Stone TV Show and that was more than 10 years ago... He has the same following now as he did 10 years ago in Tennessee... He is truly one of the great men of all time. My little boy is only 5 and loves to sit and listen to Johnny Cash records. I hope I can see him someday in person.

Merv Likes Hollywood He'd Prefer Moving from Manhattan

By VERNON SCOTT

United Press International

"One of the four of us has to move from New York to Hollywood," said Merv Griffin of the Manhattan-based talk shows, "and I hope it's me."

The other three talk show hosts are Johnny Carson, Dick Cavett and David Frost.

Griffin, on his fourth pilgrimage to Hollywood since he began his late-night talk fest, is enthusiastic about the success he's had with such guests as Doris Day (her first appearance on such a show), Milton Berle, Jerry Lewis, Raquel Welch, Jacqueline Bisset and others.

"I DON'T think any of the others want to come to Hollywood on a permanent basis," Griffin said. "But something's got to give."

"All four of us are taping at 6 p.m. in New York every night. With four guests per show, that means we need 16 celebrities every day because we have to have somebody interesting to talk to."

"I'd like to originate my show from Hollywood because it is fertile country for interviews and conversation. I asked to stay out here all summer because the shows have been so good. But I'm returning to New York."

Griffin, relaxed and affable, said there is an enormous roadblock to making a permanent move to California.

"CBS just spent $2 million converting the Cort Theater at 48th Street and 6th Avenue into a television theater-studio just for my show," he said. "That's a big investment and it can't sit there empty."

Griffin may continue to make forays to Hollywood, but he is resigned to competing with the other three talk shows even though it frequently results in a celebrity appearing on two or three of the shows on successive nights.

"I've changed my show's focus," Griffin said. "We were booking people with causes who used the show as a platform. That's out."

"We decided to provide more entertainment. So now I've got five writers instead of one. I got tired of seeing the same people on my show who turned up on the 11 o'clock news."

"We just want to be funny, relaxed and present an effortless show," Griffin concluded. "For some reason it seems to have clicked that way here in Hollywood for me."

SPECIAL

- WHOSE CHILD Is This?
(2), 9:30 p.m. — Jerry Dunphy explores the need for more foster homes in the Southland for youngsters suddenly denied a normal family life — through illness, abandonment, imprisonment of a father or mother, or through an accident or death. Third in KNXT's series of "action line" hours, show details how people become foster parents, what is required of them, and the remuneration for the care provided. Some 2,000 temporary homes are needed each month for children from infants to high school age, and a special phone number will be announced at the conclusion of the hour for those wishing further information.
- THE DEMOCRATS Respond: Part I (2), 10:30 p.m.—Lawrence F. O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is speaker in first of CBS' "Loyal Opposition" series being made available to the principal opposition party. Following a 25-minute utilization of free time, CBS counters with 5-minute analysis by Eric Sevareid and Dan Rather.

SPECIAL

EVERLY BROTHERS (7), 9 p.m. — Premiere. Johnny Cash, whose hour goes to the brothers for the sum-mer, joins Don and Phil Everly to sing "Wabash Cannonball" and "I Walk the Line." Joe Higgins and Ruth McDevitt are regu-lars, with other initial guests including Cary Per-kins and the Tennessee Three, Kenny Rogers and the First Edition, Melanie, Albert Brooks and father Ike Everly. "Wake Up, Lit-tle Susie" and "Let It Be" are highlights.

SMOTHERS BROTHERS (7), 10 p.m.—Premiere. As Engelbert Humperdinck moves to Saturdays, broth-ers Tommy and Dick open a summer series in the va-cated hour. Songs are of-fered by guests Nancy Sin-atra, Bobby Stevens and the Checkmates, and Harry Nilsson — with comedy by Spencer Quinn, Ted Mack introducing young baton twirler Natalie Brown, and Marlo Thomas launching the series in the best sea-soning tradition. Nilsson is featured in a "poet's cor-ner" segment.

TV NOTEBOOK

IN MARCH, NBC-TV presented an hour special, "Three Boys on Safari," featuring the widow and three sons of the brilliant documentary-maker Ted Yates, who was fatally wounded covering the Arab-Israeli war in 1967.

Now the television department of Warner Bros. has signed Mary Yates and the boys — Eames, 14, Teddy, 12, and Angus, 10 — for three similar entertainment documentaries aimed at air dates in 1971, 1972 and 1973, and featuring the youngsters" on adventure expeditions to primitive and exotic areas around the world."

The first adventure, according to plans, will be to the South Seas. After that, the family is expected to journey to "the wild regions of the Amazon and South America." And, finally, they plan to explore "the Himalayas and the forbidding jungle areas of the Indian subcontinent."

THE FEDERAL Communications Commission has ruled, by a 4-to-3 vote, that Alabama's Educational Television System is free to drop black-oriented programming on the National Educational TV Network as a matter of "taste or judgment."

The faculty senate at the University of Alabama and at least 75 other Alabama citizens had complained to the FCC about the deletion of such programs as "Soul," "Black Journal," "On Being Black" and all of NET's coverage of Vietnam Moratorium activities.

The Alabama Educational Television Commission, which a year ago assumed control from the University of Alabama over distribution of the NET programs to 8 affiliated stations in the state, confirmed that it had cut the NET schedule. The commission explained that the Moratorium events were adequately covered by the commercial networks and that the other programs cancelled contained "Lewd, vulgar, obscene, profane or repulsive material."

The FCC's dissenters said there was sufficient doubt about the Alabama commission's motives and also about its general attentiveness to the state's large black population to warrant further investigation.

But the FCC majority, dismissing the charges of racist censorship and renewing the Alabama commission's licenses, insisted that regulation of broadcasting cannot be concerned "with matters essentially of licensee taste or judgment."

The Commission regards the maintenance of control over programming as a most fundamental obligation of the licensee, "the majority continued. "Here we are dealing with a few programs which in the licensee's opinion contain certain offensive material. In view of the foregoing, there is no substantial problem warranting further inquiry."

SPECIAL

FABULOUS '60s, (13), 7:30 p.m. — It's the fifth in a series of hours taking a tongue-in-cheek look back at the turbulent decade. Tonight host Peter Jennings recalls the topless boom and the Tonkin Resolution, the invasion of the Beatles and the Alaskan earthquake, the Johnson-Goldwater campaign and the "free speech" campus movement, Harold Wilson's election and the ousting of Nikita Khrushchev . . . all during 1964.

CRITICS' CORNER

WHERE WE STAND IN INDOCHINA, aired June 30, Ch. 2.

On the deadline day of the scheduled withdrawal of American forces from Cambodia, CBS offered a prime time hour about the effects of sending the troops in for two months.

Charles Collingwood was host of the balanced documentary.

The point was made several times: that only time will tell whether the Communist are able to fill the vacuum again, as they did before, and what that might mean in terms of future American action.

A poll taken by CBS of 1,100 persons 18 years old and over, found that 87 per cent agreed with Nixon's decision to send troops into Cambodia. Sixty per cent felt the move was a military success. And 54 per cent said they would approve if the President sent forces back in to hit sanctuaries.

There were, of course, film clips of the caches of supplies captured by U.S. troops, and comments on the administration's feeling that the Cambodian operation was a great success.

Most provocative, perhaps, was a segment asserting how Cambodia has been overwhelmed by the war, and how its position as a nation with relatively minor military force has become very difficult.

In an interview, the Cambodian foreign minister said he wanted American troops to stay until the end of the war. In another film clip from two months ago, he was saying that his government desired no foreign soldiers, including American—just supplies.

The TV movie Major Vehicle for Drama

By JERRY BUCK

Associated Press

In the span of four seasons the made-for-televi-sion movie has progressed from a gamble to the me-dium's major vehicle for drama.

This past season "My Sweet Charlie" was the most popular movie on tel-evision and one of its stars, Patty Duke, and its writers collected Emmys. In all, it received eight nominations.

ABC's 90-minute Movie of the Week was one of the most popular new pro-grams last year and a few weeks ago the network or-ganized a unit to produce two-hour movies.

CBS has its own Cinema Center 100 turning out movies for the home screen.

And Universal Studios, which produced the first World Premieres for NBC in 1966, will turn out ap-proximately 15 this coming season.

"I THINK we do the best drama, not knocking the series, in the two-hour format. You've got time to build a character or a scene," said Stanley Rob-ertson, NBC's director of motion pictures for televi-sion.

Robertson, believed to be the highest black exec-utive in the industry, works closely with the stu-dio in selecting ideas, pre-paring scripts and choos-ing stars.

Support Your Friendly Telephone Girl

When railroads were first built they were hailed as a means of transporting people great distances swiftly and in comfort. Gradually, however, people have been booted off the railroads and the iron horse has turned to the task of transporting its brother and sister machines — automobiles, harvesters, refrigerators — or the raw materials for machines yet unborn.

There are ominous signs that this same evolutionary step is being taken by the telephone. Its original purpose was to enable people to communicate with other people swiftly. In the past few years it has been increasingly utilized to permit machines to talk with other machines swiftly.

So heavy has this computer-linked Dataphone traffic become that it is increasingly difficult for a human subscriber to complete a call not just across the country, but even across town.

If the trend continues, in 20 years no one will be using the telephone but computers. The time to stop this is now. Let the computers go organize a joint stock company to build their own telephone system if they have to talk to one another.

Meanwhile, let us support our friendly telephone operator by resisting her replacement by electronic she-monsters called "direct dialing," or "Centrex," or whatever.

In his wild and wise treatise on corporate efficiency, "Up the Organization," Robert Townsend, the former board chairman of Avis Rent a Car, comments on telephone operators:

"If I ever design a head office, executive row will look like the cubicles of a Trappist monastery, and the telephone switchboard area will look like a Turkish harem ... how would you like to try doing the telephone operator's job for a day? Remember, you're the company's first contact with the outside world — you've got to be alert and bright and helpful and quick. You've got to know where everybody is all the time. I'd spend money to make the switchboard girls comfortable. The best operators in the area would be lined up for the job."

Who doesn't remember a switchboard operator that somehow could find him for an important call 15 minutes after he arrived at a place he didn't know he was going? Or the operator who swiftly located a person in Paris when you thought he was in Los Angeles or possibly San Diego?

Of course, everybody also remembers the operator with a voice like an over-worked garbage disposer who obviously considered her firm too important to handle your business, whatever it might be. Or the operator who unplugged you in the middle of a vital conversation because it was 5 p.m. and time for her to go home.

Most companies don't seem to care how operators answer the phone as long as they do it with minimum sick leave. It never occurs to executives to think of the person who receives or places calls as the spokesman for the institution, the official greeter, the voice of management. Yet, that is precisely what she is.

The Telephone Trust is now pushing upon large organizations something called Centrex. Instead of dialing a central institutional switchboard, you dial the specific office you wish to deal with. The trouble is that often a person calling a large organization has no idea to whom he wishes to talk.

Centrex provides a catch-all information number to handle that poor confused soul. The operator listens to his problem and if she knows where it should be handled — which she often doesn't — gives the caller the correct number. He must hang up and dial again, and oftentimes again and again and again, until he finds the correct office or gives up and takes his business elsewhere or writes his congressman.

One way to deal with Centrex when you are calling a large, anonymous entity is to forget leafing through all the listings and to forget calling the catch-all information number. Call the president of the organization or his office. Explain your problem, leave your number and ask him to have the proper person call you back. After all, the organization chart and matching phone numbers are his problem, not yours. And if he gets enough calls, he may learn to appreciate his friendly telephone operator and ask her back.

The only other way to deal with Centrex is to learn to purse your lips and do a good imitation of the clicks and musical tones understood by telephone equipment. If you master this, the telephone computer will think you are a brother computer, and put you through right away to the computer that really runs the organization you are calling. □

KICKING THE YOUTH KICK

By Joseph N. Bell

Joseph N. Bell writes frequently about youth and social phenomena for such magazines as Look, Today's Health, Harper's and Ladies' Home Journal. He also teaches at the University of California, Irvine, and has three children in their 20s.

I'm not sure when my own reverence for youth syndrome began to decline.

I suspect it may have been the day I came out of the dining commons at the University of California campus where I teach and leaned on a balustrade to listen to the speakers railing at a crowd of students in the plaza below.

I'm not even sure what the issue of that day was — free birth control pills in the dispensary or the firing of a campus policeman who had raised his voice or full student representation in the Faculty Senate.

I only know that it suddenly hit me as I listened that I could have picked up the rhetoric of the student speakers anywhere along the line and carried it to a conclusion. I'd heard it all before. And heard it. And heard it.

And so I fled in search of one of my own kind — and of my own generation. I wanted to talk in a tone less than shrill and deal in conversation, not disparagement. And I suddenly realized the young people I had tended to admire so lavishly were unable to do much of either, mainly because so many of them see the entire human condition in great global absolutes that preclude conversation below the wearying level of revolution or intellectual abstraction.

Before this, like many liberal middle-agers, I had embraced youth overenthusiastically because it seemed to me to see — with a hard and perceptive eye — through all the social wrongs it took me so long to unmask.

Many of my age, of course, with equal intensity castigate youth because its heresies appear to endanger our Establishment foundations — and therefore our security.

Both extremes are wrong — principally because they take young people more seriously than they deserve. Some of their youthful challenge of our sacred institutions is knee-jerk rebellion. Some is simply undissipated energy. And almost all of it is formulated from a frame of reference that the middle-aged admirer doesn't dare to explore too far — without both looking and feeling ridiculous.

"There is no one," says columnist-philosopher Max Lerner, "who turns me off quite as badly as the middle-aged professor-turned-hippie or parent-turned-hippie who apes the ways of the young and for whom they can do no wrong."

Although these views are shared by a good many of us, the cult of those who worship youth is dominant in America today.

Probably nowhere is this phenomenon better expressed today than in the motion picture industry. Hollywood has discovered, with a profitable run of such irreverent, strongly anti-Establishment films as "The Graduate," "Easy Rider," "Putney Swope" (and, not incidentally, "How to Stuff a Wild Bikini" and "Beach Party Bingo") that the primary audience for motion pictures today is the youth cult — of whatever age.

But Hollywood also is a victim of the trend. A press agent explains, in wonderment, "Middle-aged producers and directors look pretty silly running around in mutton-chop whiskers and beads and pandering to these kids. And the performers — especially the young actresses — are unbelievable. They're sullen and aggressive and arrogant, and everybody is scared to death of them. All you have to be is young to be listened to in Hollywood these days. It doesn't matter if what you have to say is nonsense as long as you're young."

Middle-aged efforts to buy into the youth cult — both physically and philosophically — go far beyond "mutton-chop whiskers and beads."

Shaggy haircuts and beards, for instance, are appearing in unexpected places. The New York Times noted recently: "Such traditionally middle-aged squares as stockbrokers, doctors and corporation executives are giving up the crew cuts to which they have clung since World War II and are growing beards and mustaches."

Hairy fashion, I'd say, has improved the male image — with full credit to the youth cult. I happen to believe that some of the current youthful attitudes toward sex also have been generally healthy — prodding us, as nothing else could, to examine some of our more flagrant Puritan hypocrisies.

I can't say the same for some of the other practices borrowed from youth. Although I pioneered dirty sweat shirts and torn jeans long before the present youth cult took it over, I don't think this attire is suitable for dinner parties or the theatre — a stuffy attitude the young don't share today.

Too many middle-aged women are emulating the youthful aversion to cosmetics which, expertly applied, point up and emphasize femininity (while too many men are starting to use them). Miniskirts and boots are meant for trim, firm female legs, and most of them fitting that category are young. Not all — just most.

But these are piffing things, tied in mostly with the compulsion of too many middle-aged people to adopt the superficial trappings of youth in hopes that the physical attributes will thereby rub off. This may be inevitable in a society that is so tremendously youth-oriented in all its visible parts — and that dances so quickly to the tunes hacked out along Madison Avenue.

An early warning of this trend occurred when the Saturday Evening Post parted company with Ben Hibbs and Norman Rockwell and began a decade of floundering in search of some sort of youthful image dictated by its advertisers. Now, the Post is dead, and we see a bevy of publications trying to emulate Playboy, the swinging journal of the youth cult.

The Post, for all the corn of its fiction, was a rough, socially conscious, often literate reflection of people whose roots were sunk deep in the '20s and '30s — a group numbering in the tens of millions today.

But those who write our advertising and make our films have decided that television is the only place to reach the fossilized over-40 group — presumably on the theory that after exerting ourselves all day to emulate our youthful idols, we're too physically and mentally spent to do anything but watch TV.

The danger comes when we begin to believe this nonsense ourselves — and to play their game, either by trying to emulate youth or put it down. Max Lerner says of young people today: "They are an uprooted generation, talking brashly and loudly about revolution, but desperately hungry to find roots of their own."

We middle-age types do neither the young people, the society nor ourselves any service by turning away from our own roots, our own deep orientation, to join them in limbo.

"Our inner world," says Lerner, "was shaped by what happened in the 1920s, '30s and '40s; that of our sons and daughters in the 1950s and '60s. We have different conditionings, hang-ups, life styles, even different vocabularies."

Thus when we blindly imitate the youth cult, we deny our own past and our own experience. At the other extreme, when we indiscriminately attack youthful unrest and heresies, we deny our own future.

The social function of youth is to keep us off balance, to challenge our society and its institutions and thereby force us to re-examine them constantly so they can change with changing needs. That's all to the good and the way it should be.

Certainly there are many points on which we are vulnerable — ranging from the war in Vietnam to pollution, from neglect of the poor and racial discrimination to the suffocation of the individual by bureaucracy.

What seems to be getting us in trouble today is a growing tendency to take all of these challenges literally and to act on them blindly. Many must be recognized for what they are: the excesses of a bright, humorless, socially perceptive and occasionally militant youth directed against the excesses of a fat-cat, complacent and frequently hypocritical society.

The function of middle age is to strain the youthful zeal through a gauze of experience and perspective — leavened with a touch of cynicism and humor — so it will lubricate rather than clog the machinery of society.

This process has, of course, been going on for a long time. But we have some new and highly volatile elements today.

The kids are generally smarter — including a whole generation of tough-minded young blacks. The institutions under attack are generally more choleric and defensive. A large segment of the middle-aged are feeling more guilty than they ever have before.

And as pointed out by French novelist Simone de Beauvoir: "Technocratic society places little value on knowledge accumulated over the years, considering much of it is out of date . . . The values of youth are those which are esteemed."

As a result, the balance wheel between the excesses of society and the excesses of youth usually provided by the middle generation is threatening to pop a mainspring.

Too many of the middle-aged are going overboard on the youth cult — either pro or con —

Freeze - Wait - Reanimate

A small band of Southern Californians is determined to show the world that man need not die — that when life fails a man can be frozen and kept for an indefinite period in a suspended state.

They believe — these optimists — that this frozen man can be thawed out in the distant future when advancing medical science will be able to treat the ailment that killed him. Then he would simply resume living again.

They just don't talk about it. They have actually frozen five persons and are keeping them in storage in steel vacuum capsules at 320 degrees below zero.

To really understand such a far-out, avant-garde idea it helps to look at the thing through the eyes of a true believer. Such a one is Mrs. Marcelon Johnson of Huntington Beach, an attractive housewife, mother of six, and pioneer in the body-freeze movement.

Mrs. Johnson, 41, wife of W. W. Johnson, a Huntington Beach city official, is on the board of the Cryonics Society of California and has been treasurer for three years. Mrs. Johnson said her organization has kept the five bodies preserved in a suspended state by the use of liquid nitrogen in the capsules.

The bodies soon are to be placed in a multiple-body underground storage facility after construction is completed at a cemetery in the San Fernando Valley. This facility will have room for the storage of about 40 bodies.

There have been some exciting times for Mrs. Johnson during her work with this pioneering group but the most dramatic episode came the night of Sept. 6-7, 1968. She was notified that Russell Stanley, a railroad company employe and a member of the Cryonics Society, had died unexpectedly of a heart attack in a Los Angeles hospital. She also was informed that Robert Nelson, president of the society, was out of town and couldn't be reached. So she had to start working fast to help with preparations for the freezing of Stanley's body.

"Because I really didn't know which procedures to start with to help out, I called Robert C. W. Ettinger in Michigan and he gave me instructions all that evening by long distance phone as to what to do and whom to call," she said in an interview.

Ettinger is a physics professor at Highland Park College in Michigan. He is the founding father of the cryonics movement.

"I felt a real urgency because I didn't know if the proper cold had been achieved to protect the body," she added. "Knowing the necessity for immediacy, as far as brain deterioration is concerned, the only thing I could do was call Mr. Ettinger. Fortunately I found him at home. At the same time I was sad because I had known Russ personally and his death was so unexpected.

"I also called the mortician and he gave me instructions and told me of some supplies he needed to properly prepare the body for freezing. So, with a young student who had been active in the movement, I started trying to round up the needed supplies. It was difficult because so few drugstores are open late at night. But we finally located one and rushed the materials to the mortician. In the meantime the mortician and others had taken steps to have the body removed from the hospital and prepared for freezing.

"The mortician also had to call Professor Ettinger to be sure of the proper procedures, which of course are very new. As in the other cases, the blood was removed from the body and chemicals (solutions of glycerol and DMSO) were injected into the body to protect it from freeze damage."

She said the body was kept cold with ice until it could be placed in one of the capsules.

"Mr. Stanley had made all of the necessary legal and financial arrangements," she said.

The year before was when the Cryonics Society of California first made history and headlines. On Jan. 12, 1967, the society gave the first controlled cold storage treatment to a human being. Dr. James Bedford, a psychology teacher at Glendale College, died on that date and in accordance with his wishes was frozen by the Cryonics Society.

In addition to Stanley and Bedford, the others who are frozen and in the care of the Cryonics Society are Mrs. Marie Sweet of Santa Barbara (the first woman to be frozen), who died in 1967; Mrs. Helen Kline of Los Angeles, who died in 1968, and Louis Nisco, of Farmington, Mich., who died in 1969. Nisco's body was brought to California for storage by the society here.

Officials of the society said eight other persons have been frozen, two in San Diego and six in New York state.

Mrs. Johnson said the membership in Southern California totals about 50. The local society, which has its offices in Santa Monica, was host May 15-16 to the third annual conference of the Cryonics Societies of America, held in Los Angeles. The movement is strongest in Southern California, New York state and Michigan.

Asked how her work with the movement has affected her life, Mrs. Johnson replied: "Personally, it has been a great help in giving me the feeling that there is hope for a longer life; and it has brought me into contact with interesting and active people who share this feeling. And I think it has opened new doors for my children — caused them to re-evaluate how they feel about things.

"For instance, I have one daughter (Cam, 14) whose science teacher in junior high made a reference to 'all these idiots who think they're going to bring people back to life after thawing them out.' She was affronted by this because she felt the teacher was attacking her mother. So that night I jokingly said to her, 'You should have quoted Professor Ettinger and said to the teacher: 'Rot in good health.' ' So next day she went to school and said to the teacher, 'My mother said, "Rot in good health." ' I told her that I certainly hoped she had said it with a smile on her face and she assured me on this point.

"The teacher later told her that he had given a one-sided view of the cryonics movement and asked her to say something about it. So she quoted some of the familiar arguments she's heard at home. I believe she started out saying that once all the noted scientists of the world had said that anybody was an idiot who thought you could keep anything up in the sky that was heavier than air — but fortunately the Wright brothers didn't quite go along with this notion. And she added that we just don't know what medical science will find out, and 'if my mother's wrong it won't hurt anybody and will have given a lot of people a lot of hope.'"

Mrs. Johnson's other children are Koe, 20, Brook, 16, Leigh, 12, Stacy, 10, and Chad, 8. The Johnsons, originally from Grand Rapids, Mich., lived in Long Beach for six years before moving to Huntington Beach 11 years ago. Their home, a big two-story dwelling, is a lively arena of children, pets, friends, ringing phones, temporary crises, etc. Mrs. Johnson has to carve time out for the Cryonics Society from a busy schedule which also includes church work, civic activities, political drives and helping with school work.

The cryonics movement, she said, has attracted attention abroad as well as in this nation. On one occasion a team from the BBC, Great Britain's TV network, was in Southern California and interviewed Mrs. Johnson regarding the Cryonics Society.

Nelson, the local president, and Ettinger, the founding father and head of the organization in Michigan, have written books on the subject of body freezing.

Ettinger is author of "The Prospect of Immortality," the first book to propose in detail that freezing of humans was feasible and should be done now. Nelson is the author of "We Froze the First Man," a dramatic account of the freezing of Dr. Bedford.

Mrs. Johnson became interested in the idea because of Ettinger's book, published in 1964. She was one of the first to join the cryonics organization when it was formed in 1965 in New York.

Nelson, a Los Angeles electronics engineer, also read Ettinger's book and became intrigued with the idea. In July of 1966 he led in formation of the California cryonics organization and is still its president. Mrs. Johnson joined the California society shortly after it was founded.

Mrs. Johnson explains that the Cryonics Society of California is a volunteer nonprofit organization. Commercial matters involving construction of the storage facility and acquisition of the steel capsules are handled by a separate organization, the Cryonic Interment Corp., Los Angeles. Another former Long Beach resident, Marshall Neel, is president of the latter firm. Neel formerly was a public relations man for the Long Beach Water Department. He is now a tax consultant in Santa Monica.

How do you go about getting yourself frozen? Mrs. Johnson explained that first you join the Cryonics Society and pay a $25 fee. Then you apply for what is called a "suspension membership" and pay a minimum of $10 a month. This money is added to a fund to finance the freezings. The society agrees to freeze you when you die and keep you in frozen preservation at least for as long as the society exists. She said the length of time you will be kept frozen is not guaranteed.

How long is it possible to keep a person in the suspended frozen state?

"Professor Ettinger says years and possibly centuries," replied Mrs. Johnson. "He feels that medical science will progress to such a point that it will be possible to halt aging, and probably reverse it. But this doesn't do much good for people who are dying now. So it is Professor Ettinger's thesis that as long as we know how to stop the process of decay by reaching a certain minus temperature, this should be done to give people a chance for treatment in the future when medical science has made more advances. He feels that to ask people now dying to wait until more work and more research have been done is neither fair nor moral. He says he does not feel this is too optimistic, considering the advances that have been made in the last 30 years."

The long wait for a person who is frozen takes place in a steel double capsule that resembles a large thermos bottle. There is a vacuum between the inner and outer walls. The body is placed in the inner capsule, along with about 300 gallons of liquid nitrogen which keeps the body at the required -320 Fahrenheit.

Nelson says the body can be kept at this temperature for about eight months just by the use of liquid nitrogen and without any other source of refrigeration. After about eight months the capsule is then "recharged" with the addition of liquid nitrogen to replace the amount that has "boiled off."

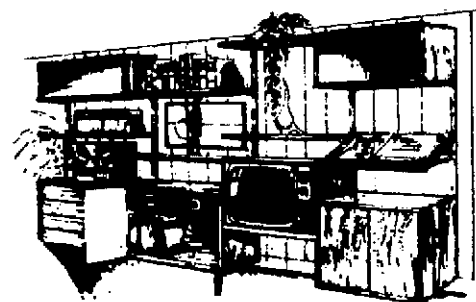

Despite difficulties, rejections and even ridicule, the hardy little band of freezers keeps the faith. Scientists and doctors are hard to convert to the idea. Objections have been raised by ministers, morticians and others. But members of the Cryonics Society keep their cool.

"The scientific community often tends to hold back on such new ideas, waiting for approval from society," says Mrs. Johnson. "And most people prefer not to think about the question of dying. But for me it is a real joy to think of the possibility that we are going to live for a long time, possibly indefinitely." □ and when that happens, a society suffers. And so does the middle-aged individual who spends too much time thinking about the youth cult and trying to decide where he should be in relation to it.

KICKING THE YOUTH KICK

Time and again, I hear people my own age say, "If only I could be 30... or 25... or 18 again..." And when I think about it hard — as I usually do, because this longing, expressed, has a visceral, wistful sort of appeal about it — I always come to the same conclusion: the last thing in the world I would want is to go back and relive that time.

To me, the excitement lies in the prospect of using the accumulated experience, insights, values, cynicism acquired by flailing off in a lot of often fruitless directions during those earlier years to enrich and inspire my explorations in middle age.

There was a letter from a college student in our local newspaper the other day that ended by saying: "We, the younger generation, seem to be the only people left who care enough to stand up for what we believe." That's baloney, of course, but a surprising number of middle-aged people I know reacted either with anger toward the student or a sort of cringing agreement with him.

I figure one has reached some sort of accommodation with middle age when he can understand the frame of reference in which the student made that statement and approve the evangelism without really taking it very seriously.

An acquaintance who was distressed recently at something harsh I'd said to my grown son (who understood quite well what I was saying) asked me later, "Don't you want to be friends with your children?" I thought that over for a while and finally decided that I did, indeed, want to be friends with them. But not pals — and there is quite a difference.

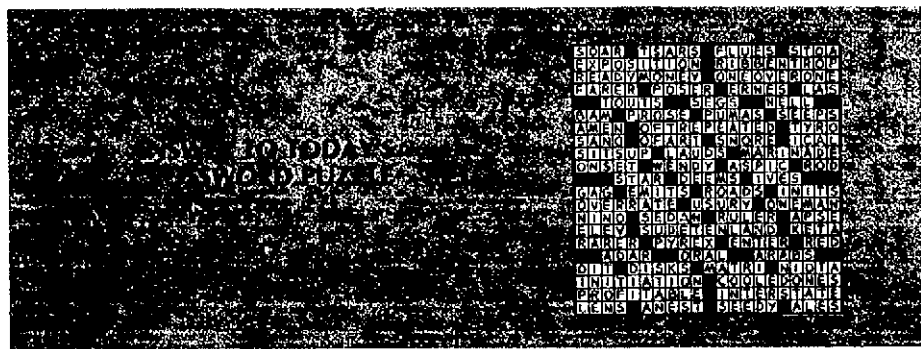

The middle-aged people who attack or adore almost automatically whatever the youth cult produces want to be pals with the kids. And because they do, they are missing the considerable satisfactions of middle age. Youth has a great many things to say to us, but it is difficult to listen either when we are embracing them or scolding them at the top of our lungs.

A little respectful distance, bridged by a sense of perspective and a sense of humor, will benefit everyone concerned. This also will help middle age seem less a peak from which one must either look down into senility and death or back to energy and youth. Offered that choice, few of us would look any direction but back.

The analogy, however, is not accurate.

In middle age, we are continuing to ascend. The top of the peak is not in sight. Below, the excesses, the detours, the often mindless idealism of youth have all been experienced; they should be regarded with warmth perhaps, with understanding hopefully, but not with longing. Why? Because we can now see them from a broadened perspective that could only narrow if we retreated below.

Ahead are the mysteries of the ascent which middle age gives us the knowledge and skills to attack. If we listen too much to the voices of inexperienced climbers below, we may make a wrong move, or falter and fall.

even for thousands who perspire heavily

A different formula has been found to keep underarms absolutely dry — even for thousands who perspire heavily. A formula so different it has far more anti-wetness agent than it is possible to put in any aerosol can. By anybody. After decades of common "deodorants," it took a chemical invention to make this truly effective protection possible — with the same safety to clothing — the same skin mildness as popular "deodorants." Called Mitchum Anti-Perspirant, it is the product of a trustworthy 57-year-old laboratory and guaranteed by Good Housekeeping. By the thousands, women with problem perspiration are finding the protection they need — and never could find before. And fully effective as a deodorant, too, of course. If you perspire more than average — even heavily — get the positive protection of Mitchum Anti-Perspirant. Your choice, liquid or cream. Ninety-day supply, each $3.00. Available at your favorite drug or toiletry counter.

A Department of Fish and Game warden examines rainbow trout at Crowley Lake, looking for possible tags on fins.

The 22-foot Open Road South motor home is parked at a beautiful spot at Lake Almanor (bottom photo). Snow-covered peak in the distance is Mt. Lassen, closed to traffic when the author made the trip.

Here is pictorial proof that present-day vacationers use wheels (campers and trailers) to get there and boats from which to fish. The scene is the South Landing at Crowley Lake.

The famous Carson Peak (right) as seen looking across Silver Lake on the June Lake Loop.

'Roughing It' on Wheels

By Donnell Culpepper

Most of us who went to Sunday School and church in days gone by remember singing a great old tune, "Tenting on the Old Campground." I can remember Boy Scouts calling for it at many jamborees.

However, "Tenting on the Old Campground" is just a song. Most of the tents are gone. In their places have come the four- and six-wheeled monsters that roar along the highways, yet harbor comfortable beds, a shower, toilet, kitchen and spacious cabinets and drawers.

Yes, it's true; camping has gone on wheels. When and if you see a tent it probably will make junior exclaim: "Gosh, dad, what's that?"

After a 1,600-mile trip in a 22-foot-long motor home up the eastern slope of the Sierra Nevada to Almanor Lake and the old Gold Rush country, then across to Red Bluff and Redding, northward to Weed, near the Oregon border, back down Highway 99 and along the western slope of the Sierras, I can truthfully report that:

Campers, travel trailers, motor homes, folding aluminum units on camper beds and pickups, even tents on wheels virtually filled the highways, north, south, east and west.

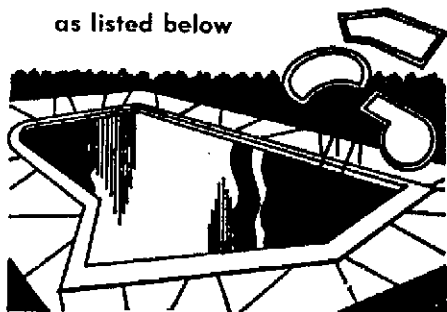

True enough, we saw automobiles of all kinds, especially station wagons crammed with bed rolls and camping supplies, but, by and large, camper units were far in the majority.

Some four- and six-wheeled vehicles were towing other vehicles, smaller, of course, attached with T-bars. I even saw one motor home pulling a Jeep-type vehicle, plus a small boat trailer attached to that. Big house trailers are difficult to maneuver in thick woods. So are motor homes. So the smart ones who can afford such rigs trail smaller vehicles to get around the territory they have picked for a summer vacation spot.

Some trailer builders seeking advantages over competitors build in storage spaces for motorbikes, but this two-wheeled "Here Comes Bronson" craze is going to fade away if park and forest officials can create enforceable laws that will stop youngsters from ripping up the top soil everywhere they go.

ROUGHING IT ON WHEELS

Already, the California Department of Parks and Recreation has put a dollar fee per day for each motorized unit in order to hire more men to police the areas.

Marjie and I, when we left Long Beach had a few butterflies about handling a big 22-foot vehicle, even though we had driven campers of smaller sizes. So we took it easy along the San Diego Freeway to the intersection with Highway 14 that leads into Mojave and finally into a junction with U.S. 395 just north of Little Lake.

In taking it easy, we were passed by hundreds of vehicles — automobiles of all kinds, pickup trucks and many high-speed campers. One must remember that in traveling northward to Bishop, you gradually climb from sea level to more than 4,000 feet. We made no effort to count the different types of vehicles. We were on our way to Crowley Lake for its opening the following day.

Like babes in the woods, we didn't read the directions which Court Prowell, owner of Open Road South, had given us with the motor home. If we had read the instruction sheet, we would have known that night at McGee Creek Inn's camping court why the butane gas was not making ice cubes in the refrigerator. It was as simple as ABC, we discovered later at June Lake, where Andy Oldfield, owner of Boulder Lodge, made us comfortable and explained that a camper or motor home has to be perfectly level for the butane refrigerator to work properly.

It was at June that I learned about the enormous traffic in campers and travel trailers along 395, not that we hadn't seen and heard thousands of them. We were close to 395 at McGee Creek Inn and it was swish-swish all night long.

A Long Beach resident told us at June that he had had to postpone his departure Friday, May 1. Consequently, he missed the opening-day circus at Crowley, and he didn't start northward until Sunday noon. He counted traffic going south and remarked that "after counting 500 trailers and campers in one hour, I got tired and quit."

He did say that they outnumbered automobiles, 7 to 1, and that most vehicles were running almost bumper to bumper on the way back to the Los Angeles Basin area.

We took 395 to Bridgeport, Coleville and Topaz Lake Tuesday. The Topaz campground was tentless, but there were dozens of campers and travel trailers and some even large enough to be classed as mobile homes.

We left 395 at its junction with Highway 19, which we took to the City of South Lake Tahoe, where we found ourselves in traffic lights, hundreds of motels and, naturally, the gambling casinos on the Nevada side.

With no knowledge of how to break the banks at the Sahara Tahoe, Harrah's Club or any of the others, we drove around the Nevada side of Tahoe to Highway 28 and then took Highway 267 to Truckee, where Marjie would still be taking color pictures of crumbling old buildings if I hadn't pushed her into the motor home and taken off over Highway 89 for Sierraville and the old Gold Rush country.

With Mr. Lassen as a backdrop, we discovered that Lake Almanor was one of the state's most fascinating sights. Even the route to Almanor was beautiful with Spanish Creek roaring alongside the highway for miles, then the north Fork of the Feather River at many other turns.

We looked at large campgrounds, but found most of the better ones equipped with slabs for travel trailers and motor homes, with hookups for electricity, sewage and water.

Backtracking for a moment, I purposely went around the June Lake Loop — June, Gull, Silver and Grant Lakes — to give Marjie a view of that country. Along Rush Creek we had seen just two tents, one occupied by Bob and Barbara Head of 4027 Cheshire, Cypress. They had caught fish in Lundy Lake and a few in Gull, but Bob admitted rather sadly that the tent they had was borrowed from a friend and that the next trip would be in a camper.

Most organized campgrounds were free of debris, but some roadside rest stops were littered with beer and soft-drink cans, liquor bottles and garbage. One such place was at Morgan Summit on Highway 36, which leads from Almanor to Red Bluff.

Fishing was a by-product of the trip. Essentially, we had set out to road-test an Open Road South camper for Court Prowell, but Open Road officials insisted that we try the first 22-foot motor home off the production line at the Redondo Beach factory.

ROUGHING IT ON WHEELS

By the time we arrived home, we were alternating in driving and handling the big vehicle like a tricycle and we can give some sound advice to those contemplating purchasing campers and trailers.

Such as:

Pattern the vehicle to your needs and your pocketbook. Know what it will take for upkeep, where you can keep it parked and use a cruising speed that will give you the greatest gasoline mileage.

We drove about 1,600 miles and our overall gasoline consumption was at the rate of about eight-plus miles per gallon, but we were pushing it hard, especially on the climb from sea level to Bishop and beyond.

It behaved remarkably well, but we found "bugs," such as the unlevel refrigerator, a gasoline gauge that had been set a trifle too much to the right, showing gas when there was none.

Powered with a 318-cubic-inch Dodge engine, the unit traveled at 60 to 65 miles per hour on the freeways, but gasoline consumption was better at 50 miles per hour.

We had no vicious winds, but occasional bursts out of canyons hit us and the motor home took the road easily with little sway.

Arriving home, I was curious to learn certain facts about the camper and travel trailer industry, so I called Ren Rooney, one of the editors of RV Trade Digest who has access to such figures in Chicago.

Quoting the latest release of the Recreational Vehicle Institute, Des Plaines, Ill., Rooney told me that manufacturers had shipped the following units in 1969:

23,100 motor homes.

92,500 truck campers.

141,000 foldup and tent campers on wheels.

113,500 pickup covers.

A study of those figures shows that some people still like tents, but most of them want them on wheels so they can find a parking space, do a quick fold-out job, have a night's sleep, perhaps fish a bit, fold up the unit and be on their way the next day.

Kelly Bluebook, the Bible for camper and travel trailer dealers in California, says there are hundreds of manufacturers making bodies for Dodge, Chevrolet, Chrysler and Ford engines and chassis.

And what is the crowning statement of all is this: California has about one-third of the manufacturing business and about the same amount of recreational vehicle travel on its highways.

You don't believe it! Try the freeways and some of the major highways on weekends this summer. Also take a look in the campgrounds.

One more thing: You may rent campers, trailers and motor homes. In one instance in the Sierras, one dealer along Highway 395 rents campers and larger units on the site. In other words, you may drive there, rent the unit and go wherever you wish, leaving your own faster vehicle with the dealer.

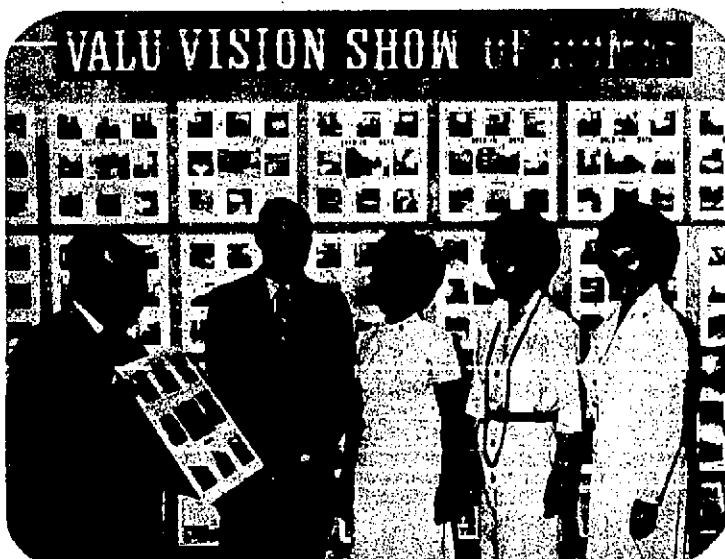

The ultimate in motor homes that we saw on the entire trip:

One family used a motor home to get from the Los Angeles Basin to Shasta Lake, just above Redding. There, they rented a houseboat from a dealer who represented the same company that had manufactured their motor home.

They took to the water for a two-week trip, transferring all their clothing and supplies from motor home to houseboat. Later, they returned to transfer back.

They claimed that, with four children, the trip was more economical over a long-range period than living in motels and eating meals in restaurants three times a day. □

Pictorial Highlights of the Week

Fred Aune of Sparow Realty demonstrates how VALU-VISION saved buyer's time and helped him become the "Top Salesman" for May as well as for March. Observing are other high producers who also made the "Winner's Circle" for May. They are Gary Lawson, Marian Haisley, Eleanore Wier and Betty Sumpter.

Oliver Sparow of Sparow Realty, announced record shattering sales of $881,400 worth of property in May while at the same time listing $915,200 worth of additional properties. The chief reason for this continuing outstanding sales production is their many visual aids in addition to VALU-VISION, all of which removes the fear and indecision common to all buyers.

Ventriloquism is a great hobby, says Robby Robertson, "Mr. Kitchen" to all those who know him in the Kitchen business. He is shown here talking to a customer about kitchen remodeling over his ventriloquist guitar telephone; which he remodeled himself. Looking on is "Korky," a dummy of distinction. Robby donates as much of his spare time as he can to entertaining local groups; such as churches, charities, etc. He has been seen on such shows as Steve Allen, Pat Boone and many other national television programs. However, he says, "Designing and remodeling kitchens is my business, being a vent is just a hobby."

BOOK REVIEW

ANOTHER DAY, ANOTHER COLUMN

HELP, HELP! ANOTHER DAY! The World of Hal Boyle. Associated Press, $3.

This feigned cry for assistance, the title, pinpoints the plight of one who earns his keep by writing a daily column for newspapers, hardly a profession for the weak, but one Boyle has mastered.

AP, the national wire news service, presents a collection of columns on many subjects done by the stout Irishman over the past 25 years, 800- to 1,200-word gems of philosophy, humor, recollections, pathos, prophecy, reporting and simple musings by the Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist whose thoughts appear in 800 daily newspapers.

A wartime compatriot and close friend of Ernie Pyle, Boyle may have emerged even more versatile than Ernie, who gained for himself the still unchallenged top niche of personal column writing before his career was ended at age 44 by sniper bullets on Ie Shima.

Boyle has the common touch of an Ernie Pyle and more range than such former household names as the great departed columnists Oscar Odd McIntyre and Arthur Brisbane and the modern-day pundits of the Drew Pearson and Inez Robb ilk.

Boyle has written feelingly of the GIs of three wars. He is attuned to the fears, foibles and fancies of the common man — in which category most of us fall.

He writes lovingly of his parents, and his old home, and he misses old friends who have gone before him. He airs likes and dislikes known to all. He well describes the horrors of the battlefield. Several of his columns have been committed to memory by faithful readers. I have one of his sensitive columns about a fleeting romance yellowing somewhere in my personal archives.

To tempt the readers of this review to further pursuit, herewith is a smattering of Boyle's wordmanship:

"The human herd, lowing, turns its horns toward the future and plods on."

"The night people (night workers) are more at ease while the big boss is at home adrift in drowse."

"No man is really afraid of a woman until she kills a trapped mouse in his presence."

"What did anyone need with a mouth that big (as Boyle's) unless he wanted to swallow Cracker Jack boxes?"

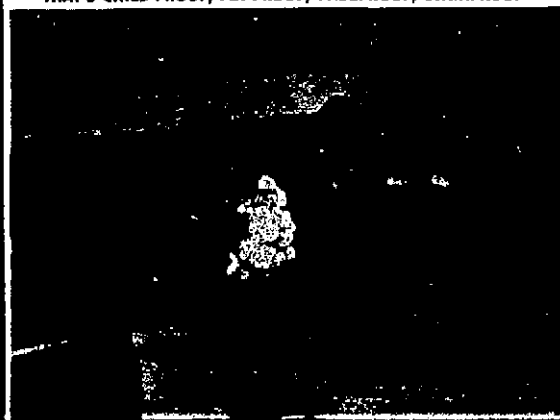

And, "If there were only two (wire) coathangers left in the world and I reached for one, it would become entangled in the other and I would tug fruitlessly at it in an endless, jangling tug of war."

This collection, although it might not show much to the young jets, is manna to Boyle fans, and a prize for anyone three score and over.

Aside from a design selection, there are only two choices of quality, better and best, which means more polyfoam or stronger bedspring.

Loose, pillow-back, tufted or channel-back sofas come in six sizes, from chair width to king size, each with storage for bedding in the daytime.

Riviera also makes a bureau bed, a handsome contemporary cabinet which contains a single sleeping unit reminiscent of the old bureau bed, but without the complications. Another delight-of-hand sleeper is the updated trundle or trundle bed which contains two bent-aluminum-framed mattresses which can be used as single beds or as a double.

Who painted Shirley Eaton's nude body gold for "Goldfinger"? A makeup man or woman? — Peter Weinmann, Seattle.

A makeup artist with a golden touch—Paul Rabager. Recalls the curvaceous British glamour girl: "Paul painted me four times before the scene was completed. Using a camel's hair brush, it took him about 25 minutes to slap on each coat and about two hours to remove it. He must have been a happily married man," Shirley concluded. "He was as impersonal about gilding me as if he was painting a barn."

Didn't W. C. Fields once work as a barker on the Steel Pier in Atlantic City? — R. Stuard, Philadelphia.

You're almost right. In his hungry days Fields took a rather unusual job—to promote business for an ocean-front restaurant. He'd walk into the ocean a dozen times a day and fake drowning. This caused tremendous crowds to gather—many individuals of which would follow the "rescued man" back into the boardwalk restaurant.

Does Dean Martin bear any scars from the days when he was a prize fighter? — August B., St. Louis.

No cauliflower ears or broken nose (he had the schnoz fixed)—but Dino has a cracked lip and "boxer's hands," caused by faulty taping. His "ring career" as a 14-year-old amateur in Steubenville, Ohio, was short-lived. He "retired" to take a job delivering bootleg booze. (At least it kept him in high spirits.)

Wasn't Fanny Brice (like her ex-husband Nicky Arnstein) a gambler? — Adrienne R., St. Louis.

Though tight-fisted, Fanny did enjoy playing cards and betting on horses. There's a story about the time she had a heart attack, was rushed to L.A.'s Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. Visitors reported they found her under an oxygen tent—a racing form in one hand, a telephone in the other, placing bets with bookies in Los Angeles, Chicago, New York and Saratoga.

He-man Clint Eastwood is one of my favorite actors. But I hear that offscreen he's even less talkative than Gary Cooper was. What about it? — L.R.M., Houston.

"Compared to Coop," comedian Don Rickles (who just co-starred with Eastwood in "Kelly's Warriors") says, "Clint is a frog. When he talks he just barely gets the throat moving and you lean over and hope you can pick up a sound wave. But he's a powerful actor."

Debbie (Miss Virginia) Shelton, the new Miss U.S.A., has got a beautiful face and figure, but has she got a brain? — Henry R., Norfolk, Va.

Debbie's brain is as well-developed as her body. In a pre-judging interview I found the college student fielded questions adroitly and without fumbling. About campus disorders: "I think they are ridiculous. The kids just have nothing better to do. They want to get out of class. They want to be heard. They feel they're just numbers and not persons any more. But they're not going to get any place with violence." About Mr. Nixon's calling troublemaking students "bums": "I agree with him wholeheartedly. I think that for anyone who incites riots, loots, sets fires, throws rocks at policemen, etc., bums is a mild word." About Miss U.S.A.'s feelings if something happened to the President and Vice President Agnew moved into the White House: "I like Mr. Agnew. He makes me feel comfortable to hear him talk and randomize. He says it like it is and I kind of put my trust in him." About whether Ted Kennedy is electable after the Mary Jo Kopechne tragedy: "I'd vote for him—for no political reasons except that I like the way he looks. After all, these people are human, also, not just public figures." About girls living with boys before the knot is tied: "Though people talk about free love—society still doesn't accept it. However, I think you don't really get to know anybody until you have lived with him and seen him morning, noon and night." □

of a poorly done home remodeling job by following a few basic rules on selecting a contractor.

- 1) Employ a contractor with an established place of business
- 2) Get references from him of satisfied customers for whom he has recently done remodeling work
- 3) Be sure to tour several of these aforementioned customers to learn first-hand if the contractor delivers what he says he will
- 4) Observe how the contractor "sixes-up" your project — take notes of his suggestions and discuss them thoroughly

GOURMET

CARL NICKOLOFF
Fresh and Crisp

I admit quite freely that I don't know how to run a restaurant. And I'm a lousy cook.

Nevertheless, I'm a pretty good judge of restaurant management, because I've spent so many years as a professional guest, visiting restaurants throughout Southern California and the western states.

I've learned that there are two food items which are consistent indicators of a restaurant's general quality. If both the salad and baked potato are fine, you can be quite sure that the rest of the meal will be fine, too.

One of my favorite, moderately priced restaurants is Nik's Coffee Shop and Viking Room, Cherry Avenue at Wardlow Road. This is one of Long Beach's most successful and most popular restaurants because of the freshness of its foods. Owners Nick Nickoloff and his son Carl won't permit tired lettuce on the premises. Their dinner salads are chilled and crisp, topped with tender julienne carrots, red cabbage and outstanding dressing.

At dinnertime, some restaurants serve baked potatoes which are tired leftovers from luncheon. This never happens at Nik's because baked potatoes are served only from 5 to 9 p.m. They are hot, steaming, fresh and beautiful.

Some restaurants don't serve dinners at special prices on Sundays. But Nik's does. Seven days a week, it offers special dinners for $1.60 to $1.80 which are remarkable values. Each day a different entree is featured, ranging from roast beef, Swiss steak and roast turkey to stuffed pepper, sirloin tips, sea foods, beef stew, pork chops or liver and onions. Each is with tomato juice or soup du jour or salad; potato or noodles and hot fresh roll with butter.

The Viking Room lounge, decorated in a modern Scandinavian motif, is closed Sundays, but offers special dinners the rest of the week. Priced from $1.10 (for spaghetti on Mondays) to $2.95, these include a different entree every day, served with a glass of shimmering wine as well as soup or salad. Most of the Viking's special dinners are less than $1.50. If you don't see the specials on your menu, ask your waitress about them.

Open every day, Nik's serves breakfast, luncheon and such rich a la carte desserts as cream pies and sundaes.

GUIDE by Tedd Thomey

PROMINENTLY displayed near the front of the dining room at the Jolly Knight is a sign which says:

"HE PROFITS MOST WHO SERVES THE BEST. WE PROUDLY SERVE THE FINEST QUALITY EASTERN PRIME BEEF."

That sign speaks the truth. The Jolly Knight is doubtlessly one of the most beloved restaurants in Orange County. It's thronged with happy diners on week nights as well as weekends. They enjoy luscious thick cuts of prime rib au jus, single or double-sized steaks and scrumptious sea foods.

The owners of the Jolly Knight are ex-Londoners Edward Ansell and his petite blonde wife, Lili. They are assisted by two alert young moderns — co-managers Tony Ansell, their son, and David Searle, Lili's brother. Their business philosophy is simple. They serve the very best, charge a bit less than other quality restaurants and enjoy a spectacular business volume.

The Knight — noted for its warm hospitality — is located at 8666 Garden Grove Blvd. in Garden Grove, half a block north and a few blocks east of where Beach Boulevard bisects the Garden Grove Freeway. When you enter the main dining room, you are greeted by dazzling sights. The walls and ceilings are decorated with scores of objects which the Ansell's brought over from England.

The gourmet dinners are priced from $3.25, for pan-fried chicken simmered in wine, to $5.95 for the steak-lobster combination. A handsome, juicy N.Y. steak is $4.95, Canterbury roast rack of lamb is $4.50 and beautiful broiled Catalina swordfish is $3.75. Prime rib is $3.95 for the generous princess cut and $4.95 for the king cut. They are so delectable that Don Barnett, the Knight's No. 1 chef for 12 years, constantly hears such comments as "wonderful!" or "sensational!"

Open every day, the Knight features special luncheons on weekdays which keep the place filled with business and professional men, tourists and women's groups. The banquet facilities, accommodating groups from 10 to 150, are used regularly by service and social clubs from Long Beach as well as nearby Orange County cities. □

Medicine & You

By BEN ZINSER
 Medical-Science Editor

Allergy to tobacco smoke, said to be quite common, sometimes goes unrecognized, a doctor says. Explanation: These patients are often allergic to other substances, and the other allergies mask the hypersensitivity to tobacco smoke.

Dr. Bernard M. Zussman, an allergist at University of Tennessee Medical Center, found that 32 of 200 consecutive allergic patients (16 per cent) were sensitive to tobacco smoke.

Most of these patients were women, and all were nonsmokers, Dr. Zussman says.

Symptoms disappeared when these patients were removed from contact with smoke.

Eleven of 16 patients treated with tobacco extract in combination with house dust, pollen and other extracts got complete or almost complete relief from symptoms. The other five patients enjoyed a 50 to 75 per cent relief.

The report is in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Here's how one group of elderly persons are protecting themselves against isolation.

They call it ECHO—for Elderly Contact and Help Organization—and it was founded in Idaho Falls by the Eastern Idaho Special Services Agency after several elderly persons had been found dead in their homes.

ECHO responds to a dial telephone number, the last four digits of which spell HHELP.

The service operates 24 hours a day, according to a report in the American Journal of Public Health.

Each of ECHO's 100 clients, who pay no fee, are asked to phone in every morning. If someone fails to phone, the ECHO operator calls the unheard-from participant. Then, if there is no answer, a neighbor is called to investigate. In addition, police cooperate in all emergencies.

ECHO is staffed by volunteers, including taxicab drivers, a locksmith and persons known as Night Buddies. The latter are volunteers who phone clients who wish such calls in the evening. Purpose: just to chat.

Ultrasound now appears to be the best conservative approach in the treatment of patients with severe Meniere's disease, a condition marked by dizziness and other symptoms.

This is the report of three doctors in Macon, Ga., in the journal Laryngoscope.

The doctors note that ultrasound "has not been well received in the past." That was partly due to a complication that sometimes resulted—facial paralysis.

But thanks to advanced technology and modification of surgical techniques involving ultrasound, the technique no longer poses the objections it once did, the doctors contend.

They say that refined techniques, in one study, produced complete elimination of distressing vertigo (dizziness) in 85 per cent of cases.

Although a new experimental meningitis vaccine has proved 87 per cent effective in protecting persons carrying Group C meningococcal organisms, it may pose a problem, researchers report.

While the new vaccine prevented disease caused by Group C meningitis germs, the disease rate for Group B germs increased among those vaccinated.

According to a report in the New England Journal of Medicine, large-scale use of Group C vaccine could conceivably result in re-emergence of Group B as the most prevalent strain of the germ.

Meanwhile a vaccine against Group A, another strain, has been developed but has not yet been field-tested among human volunteers. So far no suitable Group B vaccine has been developed.

The hope is that vaccines can be developed that will protect against all the strains.

More than 20,000 persons have received Group C vaccine in field trials to date.

Testing continues on atomic-powered pacemakers, devices that stimulate the heart to beat normally.

Seven dogs now have the device implanted in them, and instruments are working well, according to researchers at the National Heart and Lung Institute, Bethesda, Md.

One of the dogs, Brunhilde, has had her nuclear-powered pacemaker since May 26, 1969.

The pacemakers have radioisotope batteries—of plutonium 238. These batteries are expected to operate for 11 to 20 years—several times the life of zinc-mercuric oxide batteries used in conventional pacemakers.

WALTER SCOTT'S Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y., 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Did Aristotle Onassis ever have a Norwegian mistress named Ingeborg Dedichen? More important, did Jackie know about this woman before she married Onassis?—Edward Hewlett, Fairfield, Conn.

A. Onassis had such a mistress according to his biographers, Willi Frischauer, author of Onassis; Joachim Joesten, author of another biography of the same title, and Doris Lilly, author of Those Fabulous Greeks, who writes of Ingeborg Dedichen and Onassis: "Long after their ten-year affair ended and he married, they remained the best of friends. They still are today. She will never want for money so long as Onassis has a few million left."

Whether Jackie Kennedy knew of Onassis' alliance with Ingeborg, only Jackie knows. But certainly, in marrying him, the former First Lady realized that she was marrying a man of the world who in his time had cultivated some rare feminine pulchritude.

CREW-CUT HALDEMAN TALKS TO YOUNG VISITOR.

Q. Is it true that H. R. Haldeman, the White House chief of staff who arranges President Nixon's appointments, will permit no long-hairs to visit President Nixon? Also what does H. R. stand for? Also has the President banned any of his aides from wearing long hair?—Nora York, Oakland, Calif.

A. Harry Robbins Haldeman prefers the crew-cut hairstyle for himself, but proper hair-length is not a prerequisite for entrance to the White House. The President wears his own hair in a medium trim, does not dictate hair-length to any of his aides.

Q. Is there any law which prohibits the issuance of a marriage license to members of the same sex in the state of California?—E. L. L., San Diego, Calif.

A. There is no such law.

Q. Three of the leading warhawks in Hollywood are Bob Hope, John Wayne, and Art Linkletter. Have any of these men served in the Armed Forces of the U.S.?—Louis Slott, Wheeling, W.Va.

A. They have not.

Q. Where is the grown son Martha Mitchell had by her first marriage?—T. V., Pine Bluff, Ark.

A. Second Lieutenant Jay Jennings, a recent graduate of the Virginia Military Institute, is stationed at Ft. Knox, Ky.

Q. Several years ago Ingrid Bergman starred in a film, The Inn of the Sixth Happiness, based on the life story of Gladys Aylward, a missionary. Can you tell me where I can get in touch with Miss Aylward?—Bernard Rich, Silver City, N.M.

A. Gladys Aylward died of pneumonia on Jan. 3, 1970, in Taiwan where she had opened an orphanage after spending 42 years on mainland China as a British missionary.

Q. How many Americans have been killed in the Vietnamese war? Some politicians say more than 40,000 dead. Others say more than 50,000 dead. What is the truth?—George Miyazaki, Denver, Colo.

A. Since January, 1961, more than 50,000 American servicemen have died in Vietnam. The figure as of June 1st included 42,260 killed in action and 7949 who lost their lives in accidents and other non-combat causes.

Q. I see by the papers that 66-year-old Cary Grant has been accused in a paternity suit of fathering a girl named Stephanie Andrea Grant. Who is the mother?—E. T., Beverly Hills, Calif.

A. Plaintiff in the suit is Cynthia Bouron, previously married to Yugoslav Milos Milocevic, who murdered Mickey Rooney's fifth wife, Barbara Thompson, and then committed suicide.

Q. André Segovia, the great guitarist, is 76. His wife, 31, recently gave birth to a son. Doesn't Segovia take the new drug L-Dopa which is a powerful sex stimulant?—P. L. Powell, Orlando, Fla.

A. Segovia does not take L-Dopa. At 76 he is a naturally potent guitarist.

NEVER TOO LATE: SEGOVIA, WIFE AND CHILD.

Q. Who is a gentleman named Bob Precht? Is he Ed Sullivan's son? I know he produces Ed's TV show.—Kent Nowell, Bridgeport, Conn.

A. Bob Precht is married to Ed Sullivan's only daughter, Betty.

Q. How many times has Zsa Zsa Gabor been married? Does she have any ability as an actress?—Myra Renshaw, Miami Beach, Fla.

A. Miss Gabor has been married at least five times. She has several talents, but acting is not one of them.

What Does Patriotism Mean to You?

Everybody believes in patriotism, but not everybody sees it the same way.

Seldom in our history has the word "patriotism" been used—and abused—as it is today. Liberal and conservative, dove and hawk, campus demonstrator and law-enforcement officer—all regard themselves as patriots.

Are the old definitions still valid, or do we have to look for meanings that are more relevant to the times we live in? Is it enough to wave the flag or wear the flag or salute the flag, or do we have to seek out deeper values relating to human liberty and freedom?

Lincoln's experience

Patriotism is more than a comfortable way of life or some easy platitudes spoken at a July Fourth picnic. It requires a good deal of soul-searching on the part of all. Abraham Lincoln, as a young Congressman, was accused of being unpatriotic when he opposed the Mexican War of President James K. Polk, and lost his seat in the House as a result.

Historian Henry Steele Commager points out that "America was born of revolt, flourished on dissent and became great through experimentation.

"It's easier to say what patriotism isn't than what it is," Commager says. "It is not conformity. It is not passive acceptance of the status quo. It is not preference for everything American over everything foreign. It is not a particular creed, version of history or philosophy.

"It is willingness to subordinate every private advantage to the larger good. It is an appreciation for the rich and diverse contributions that come from the most varied sources. It is allegiance to the traditions that have guided our greatest statesmen and inspired our poets—traditions of freedom, of equality, democracy, and tolerance. Every effort to confine patriotism to a single pattern or constrain it to a single formula is disloyal to everything that is valid in Americanism."

Commager's view was one of many sought by PARADE from representative American leaders in an effort to find out what patriotism means today.

Some confined themselves to generalities and the broad historical view, others spoke out plainly about today's dissent and divisiveness, and their relation to patriotism.

Sloganizing assailed

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, for example, warns equally against those who shout "love America or leave it" and those who cry "burn, baby, burn." Rep. Gerald Ford says, "Patriotism today means what it has always meant—love of country. Imperfect as we are, there is no better land on earth."

It is evident that leaders of all shades of opinion are looking for deeper meanings in patriotism, and are putting aside the easy answers. The views of these leaders follow.

SEN. MARGARET CHASE SMITH (R., ME.): True patriotism is not static. True patriotism is dynamic because its concept and application are not always the same with every person under every condition and at every time.

It is an attitude or state of mind that must be carefully viewed before determining its credibility. For example, beware of the super-patriots. Are they really putting their country ahead of themselves? In their flamboyance are they helping their country or are they hurting it?

This is what I had in mind when I said 20 years ago in my "declaration of conscience" [in opposition to Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy] that "those of us who shout the loudest about Americanism in making character assassinations are all too frequently those who, by our own words and acts, ignore some of the basic principles of Americanism—

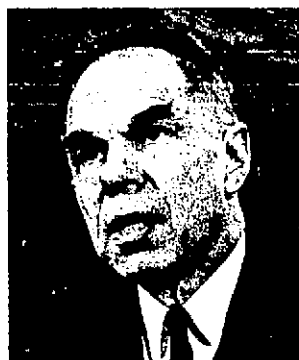

The right to criticize;
The right to hold unpopular beliefs;
The right to protest;
The right to independent thought."

But don't misunderstand me. I do not mean that patriotism is so flexible and varying with the individual that it can be distorted and perverted into the concept that draft evaders who leave our country and go to Canada and military deserters who go to Sweden are patriots merely "doing their thing."

Yet, patriotism is not to be rigidly measured by such a slogan as "love America or leave it" that is hurled at dissenters.

Nor is it to be equated with the nihilistic chant of "burn, baby, burn" that espouses the theme that a new and pure society can arise phoenix-like only from the ashes of a deliberately destroyed Establishment society.

Simply put, a patriot is not only one who loves his country but one who will defend liberty. Perhaps the acid test of patriotism is just how much is a person willing to sacrifice for his country—whether that sacrifice be his life or his reputation or merely his convenience.

DR. GLENN T. SEABORG, CHAIRMAN OF THE ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION: Patriotism is a love of and a loyalty to one's land, its people, and their highest ideals. But it is not a blind worship of any of these. It involves a love that recognizes weaknesses and a loyalty that is tolerant of imperfections, while it strives to overcome both and make its land and people an example for all mankind.

REP. GERALD FORD (R., MICH.), HOUSE MINORITY LEADER: Throughout our history there have been times when many Americans have dissented from the course their Government has taken. Nevertheless, they felt that this was their country. They felt that imperfect as we are, there is no better land on earth. They did not run off to Canada to escape fighting for their country and they did not trample or burn the flag. Patriotism today means what it has always meant—love of country. It doesn't necessarily mean frantic flag waving. But it does mean recognizing that we live under the greatest form of government man has ever put together. It means recognizing that democracy is unfinished work. It means we don't tear down what we have done, we seek to improve upon it.

MAYOR RICHARD G. HATCHER OF GARY, IND.: In America, patriotism is the full and insistent use of the freedoms protected by our basic documents. A patriot understands that freedom unexercised can atrophy, and regards his rights as obligations of relevant citizenship. Patriotism was manifested in the persons of upward of half a million Americans who gathered in Washington, D.C., last November to petition peacefully for an end to the undeclared Indochina war.

Patriotism is manifest in the non-violent protest and dissent that registers in the national conscience from campuses and cities around the country. Patriotism is manifest in all the calls to realize our national promises, to be the best we can be. Agree or disagree with the aggrieved—their vital participation puts them among the most patriotic Americans.

They are in the outspoken, upstanding mold of Americans from Jefferson and Lovejoy to Du Bois and King—citizens who fight for what they believe is best for their country.

than merely saying we love America—our hills, our prairies, our plains, and our great mountains. Let us remember that patriotism must mean, for Americans, a deep appreciation for that essential freedom of the individual, and his society, on which the greatness of America rests.

In a time of dissent and dissatisfaction, it is indeed patriotism to be calm and reasonable and to listen to and to understand the other man, the other American. Patience, good temper, and a willingness to give America, and all Americans, the benefit of reasonableness and moderation is patriotism in our time.

SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER (R., ARIZ.):

To me, patriotism means a devotion to and an appreciation of the things for which our nation stands—freedom of choice, freedom of religion, freedom of expression and a brand of charity and brotherhood the like of which the world heretofore has never seen. The meaning of patriotism runs deep with many Americans, much deeper than the flag waving imputed to it by political leftists.

SEN. JOHN SPARKMAN (D., ALA.): Patriotism is that quality of national pride which moves a citizen to see his country's welfare as foremost—even ahead of personal consideration. It is his willingness and sense of obligation to take up the defense of his country's vital interests with weapons as well as words when the need arises.

In America today, we face the challenges of anarchy and radicalism. However strong these evil forces may seem to be, they cannot stifle the stronger sense of patriotic duty which is deeply felt by the vast majority of Americans.

FORMER VICE PRESIDENT HUBERT HUMPHREY:

Patriotism is respect for our heritage but even more so, it is the commitment to building tomorrow. Patriotism is helping the needy, protecting the weak, restraining those who abuse power and defending the rights of others so that we may have rights for ourselves. Patriotism is in its fullest meaning striking down every form of oppression, ignorance, fear, hatred, prejudice, poverty and injustice. Above all, we must remember that the work of democracy is never done. It is like life itself, changing and growing.

CLARK M. CLIFFORD, FORMER SECRETARY OF DEFENSE:

Patriotism in 1970 can well be illustrated by a statement of Carl Schurz [U.S. Senator, 1869-75] when he said: "Our country, right or wrong. When right, to be kept right; when wrong, to be put right."

Patriotism is a state of mind, a belief, that at any given time is exemplified by the love men and women feel for their country. In today's closely-knit world, the true patriot shows his admiration and respect for our nation by living up to its highest ideals—by respecting the right of other countries to determine their destinies as we insist on the right to determine our own, by admitting that we too have made serious errors, by candidly accepting responsibility for those errors and helping to rectify them, and by striving courageously for mutual respect and understanding among all nations.

The 1970 patriot is also concerned with the quality of life around him. His patriotism shows in his anger at injustice, at intolerance, at the shoddy and the second-rate, and at corruption, wherever these blemishes on our national image may be found.

Adlai Stevenson worded it beautifully when he said: "The patriots are those who love America enough to wish to see her as a model to mankind."

MRS. LUCY WILSON BENSON, PRESIDENT, LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS:

To honor the symbols of our country is not enough—we must be willing to work for its substance. In the final analysis, patriotism is love of country; accepting responsibility for our Government and our community; recognizing that law and order depend on equal justice for all; and understanding that in a democratic society the vote rather than violence is the primary instrument of change.

SEN. EDWARD BROOKE (R., MASS.):

Patriotism is love of country informed by the understanding that one's country must live up to the ideals it proclaims. It is pride in its institutions and principles, coupled with persistence in making them responsive to contemporary needs. It is devotion to the tenets of the Constitution. Most of all, a patriot is one who knows that his nation is its people and who works to preserve and advance the precious community on which their well-being depends.

SEN. HUGH SCOTT (R., PA.), SENATE MINORITY LEADER: Let us remember that patriotism is broader and deeper

FATHER HESBURGH, PRESIDENT OF NOTRE DAME UNIVERSITY:

Patriotism has often been identified exclusively with serving in the Armed Forces or participating in a war. It would seem to me that patriotism, as a virtue, is much broader than this—otherwise it would be a virtue largely limited to men. Patriotism is doing anything to serve one's country in whatever way it needs most to be served at a given point in history. Anything done to promote education among groups of young Americans who have long lacked good education is certainly patriotic action of the highest order. Those who promote justice under law, by legal aid services, among those who are suffering injustice without adequate legal representation are practicing patriotism to a high degree. Doctors and interns and medical students who bring better health services to the poor are certainly practicing patriotism. Those who give their lives to various forms of public service, elective, appointive, or volunteer, are patriots as well if, through their efforts, we have a better America and a higher quality of American life. Even mothers and fathers who instill good character in their children to make them good persons and good citizens are true patriots. Anyone who does anything good or productive for his or her country is a patriot, and no country could long survive or prosper without a very large percentage of its citizens being true patriots.

Youth Notes

by Pamela Swift

Worth Remembering

"Children have more need of models than of critics."—Joseph Joubert (1754-1824), French moralist and man of letters.

Differences

Sex and politics—those are the two subjects about which the generations differ most.

Take sex. A recent Gallup Poll, based on personal interviews with 1114 college students on 55 campuses, shows that almost three out of every four students believe it is not important to marry a virgin of whatever sex. Young men and young women share this view.

Consider now the Gallup Poll taken on the same subject last fall. It showed that 68 percent of adults, aged 21 and over, maintained that premarital sex is "wrong."

It should be pointed out that college students who attend denominational or church-affiliated colleges place more importance on marrying a virgin than those who attend a private or state-supported institution. Students who consider religion a "relevant part of their life" find virginity more valuable than those students who contend that religion is "not a relevant part of their life."

There is also a correlation between a student's social and political philosophy and his or her evaluation of virginity. Among those students who describe themselves as "liberals," 79 percent say it is not important for them to marry virgins. Among students who classify themselves as "conservatives," however, 58 percent attach a greater importance to virginity.

As students progress from freshmen to seniors, their views on premarital sex become more tolerant.

In politics, according to the Gallup Polls, students who describe themselves as "liberals" outnumber those who call themselves "conservatives" by a two-to-one margin.

Among adults, conservatives outnumber liberals three to two. Adults over 30 "lean heavily in favor of the 'conservative' label. Young adults, those in their 20's, prefer by a slight margin to be classified as 'liberals.'"

How do the generations bridge the sexual and political gaps? One answer: by communicating with each other in tolerance and understanding; certainly not by denunciation and denigration.

Draft Information

"Can I change jobs and keep my occupational deferment?"

"As a high school senior, can I count on a student deferment for college?"

"Have all paternity deferments been abolished?"

"Can any graduate students be deferred?"

"What are my appeal rights?"

These and many other questions regarding the changes in the draft made and requested by President Nixon on April 23, 1970, along with the procedures, the claiming of rights, and the fulfilling of obligations under the Selective Service Law are answered in a new edition of "Draft Act 1970."

Students, parents, high school counselors, faculty members will find this publication timely and helpful.

It can be ordered from the Scientific Manpower Commission, 2101 Constitution Ave. N. W., Washington, D.C. 20418, for 50 cents a single copy; 25 for $8; $20 per hundred.

Old Story

Bright girls are generally brighter than bright boys—at least academically.

The first year of coeducation at Yale University adds further proof to that oft-proven fact.

An analysis of first-term grades shows that in the "honors" category, the coeds outdistanced the men by 27.5 percent to 23.9 percent.

In the "high pass" category, 46 percent of the coeds made the grade compared to 39.6 percent of the men.

Why are girls better students than boys? Suggested reasons: they succumb less to temptation; they practice more discipline; they are better organized; they are basically more competitive when pitted against men; they try harder.

The British Way

Last year 11,000 boys between 15 and 18 joined the British armed forces. Each had the option, within six months, of buying his way out of the service. By the end of this month about 2000 of the boys will have exercised that option.

Those who don't get out, stay in for 12 years. One out of every three recruits in Great Britain is 18 and under, which shows how popular military service has become in that country.

Abbie Hoffman

Jerry Rubin

Capitalists in Disguise

Abbie Hoffman and Jerry Rubin, the two chief, shock-headed Yippies in the land, may seek to destroy "the system," but they're not above taking it for everything it's worth.

Hoffman, 32, has earned $50,000 thus far from his book, "Revolution for the Hell of It," plus $25,000 for the sale of film rights to MGM. His second book, "Woodstock Nation," published by Random House, a pillar of the publishing Establishment, is also doing well.

Jerry Rubin's book, "Do It," put out by Simon & Schuster, has earned $45,000 to date. More than 175,000 copies have been sold.

Rubin and Hoffman, both of whom face five-year prison sentences stemming from the Chicago trial, see no conflict in their personal ideology and capitalizing on the private enterprise system they denounce.

The money they earn, it is explained, goes toward bail, court costs, and support of the anti-war movement. Neither young man has yet bought himself a Cadillac, a penthouse, a boat, clean clothes, or appreciably changed his lifestyle.

"I didn't do my book for money," claims Rubin. "I did the book because I wanted to spread the fire. We're using the system to destroy it."

Says Hoffman: "It's embarrassing. You try to overthrow the Government, and you end up on the best-seller list."

Cooking With Foil

by Beth Merriman
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Up until recently only the most courageous cooks dared take a frozen roast and put it into the oven. The fear was that miscalculation of cooking time might ruin the meat. Now after considerable research the problems of timing have been worked out and you will never again have to wait hours for your lamb roast to defrost.

The trick is in the way lamb is frozen and cooked. The recipe below explains how to wrap it for freezing and how to cook it when needed. Follow the simple instructions and remember that frozen lamb roast works best when you buy a full leg of lamb, from eight to nine pounds, and use the center portion for your roast. Ask your meat dealer to cut off three or four chops and cube the shank portion for stew to make two other meals. These cuts may also be frozen and prepared in the usual way.

Freezer-to-Table Lamb Roast

- |                               |                         |
|-------------------------------|-------------------------|
| 1 center cut of a leg of lamb | 1 garlic clove, crushed |
| Heavy duty aluminum foil      | Ground thyme            |
| 3 tablespoons lemon juice     | Salt and pepper         |

To Freeze the Lamb: Place lamb in the center of a sheet of heavy duty aluminum foil. Bring the foil up over the meat and double-fold it down tightly against the meat. Press out all air pockets. Fold ends up tightly against the meat. Label with contents, weight and date. Freeze.

To Roast the Lamb: Place frozen lamb in foil-lined roasting pan. Pre-heat oven to 400°. Loosen foil across top and at ends of meat. Roast 54 minutes per pound, or until meat thermometer registers 170° for medium doneness. Thermometer should be inserted in roast after roasting 2 hours. Insert it right through the foil.

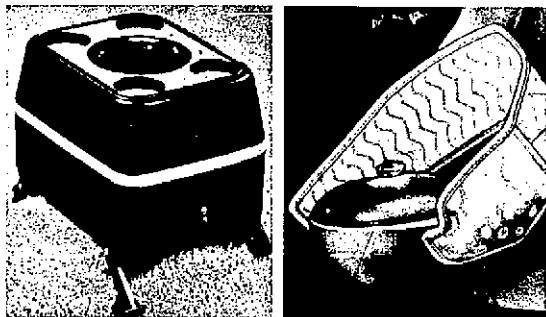

Meanwhile, combine lemon juice and garlic. During final half hour, turn foil back from meat completely and brush with lemon juice-garlic mixture. Sprinkle with thyme, salt and pepper.

Bicycle built for one: Carla Garrettson finds a helping hand quite useful in learning to ride a "high-wheeler."

Make Way for the Big Wheels

FREEHOLD, N.J.

There are some big wheels in action around here this July Fourth weekend.

The reason? A revival of interest in the high-wheel bicycles that flourished in the U.S. a century ago.

Behind it all is a national organization of cycling enthusiasts called the Wheelmen, who like to ride the vintage bikes, wearing the caps and costumes of the good old days. They say there are perhaps 5000 high-wheel models still scattered around the country, with a particularly good collection in David Metz's cycling museum in Freehold.

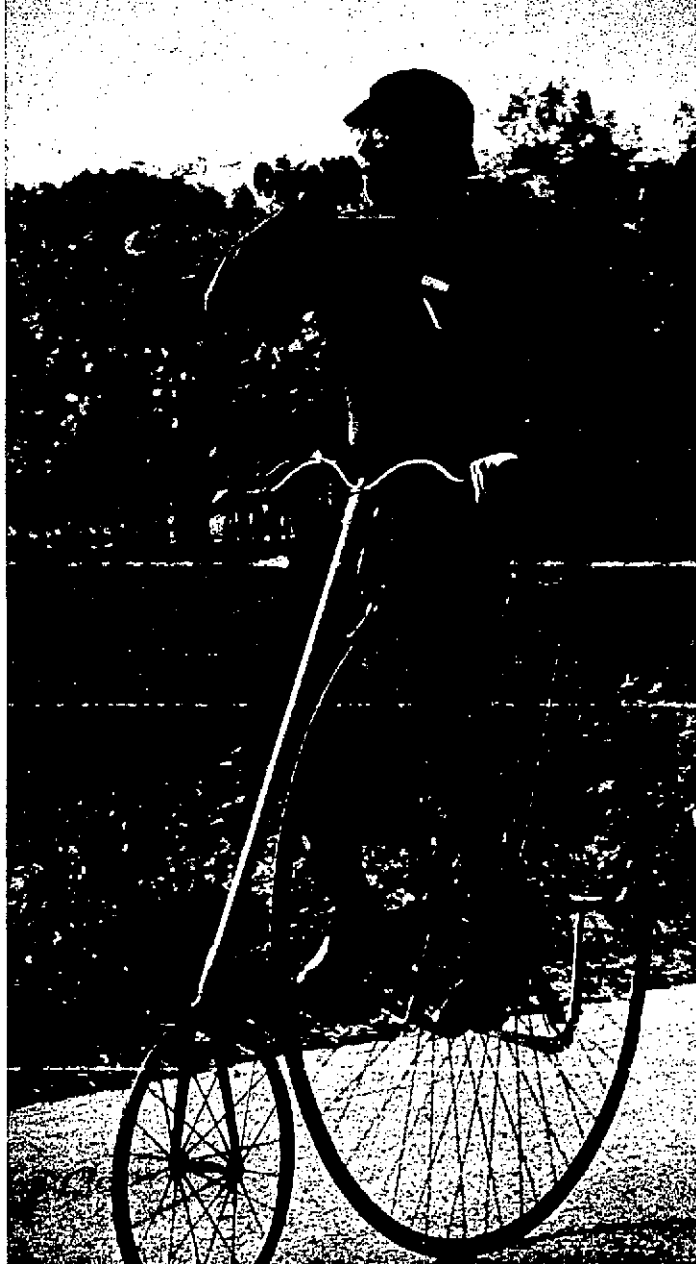

These were the kind of bikes our forefathers rode on July Fourths gone by, when cycling was a pleasantly exciting way for young blades to spend a holiday. That king-size wheel, sometimes five feet high, wasn't for looks, either. Any rube knew that the bigger the wheel the farther the bike would go for every revolution of the pedals. Later on, other ways were found to increase the driving power.

High-wheelers were just about the fastest way for an individual to propel himself. Why, 15 m.p.h. was no sweat, and a cyclist in good shape could do up to 30. The most popular model was called "velocipede" by the French, "penny-farthing" by the British and "the ordinary" by the Americans. Another common name was "bone-shaker" for obvious reasons.

PARADE recently joined a Wheelmen's outing, when members assembled at David Metz's museum and rode off to a picnic meeting in a nearby park, all togged out in bicycle club costumes. It was a great way to spend a day in the 1870's, and the Wheelmen report it isn't too bad nowadays, either.

In the old days, incidentally, a good high-wheeler, shiny in nickel-plate and enamel, cost from $130 to $150, and they're still worth that much if they're reasonably intact. And you can't beat them on gas mileage.

Full speed ahead! Cycling troop takes off over level stretch. Big-wheeled bikes are trickier to handle than today's models.

Two Books To Get Thin By

■ Here's a pair of books that makes up a team—a good health team for people who want to be thin and trim, the better to enjoy the summer.

Bonnie Prudden, familiar to millions through her TV shows and numerous books and articles, sets forth in her Quick Rx For Fitness a great variety of exercises to maintain general health and also to treat many common complaints. The book is so arranged that all you need do is look up the problem in an index—backache, hypertension, overweight, swelling, for example—and you are referred directly to any of several appropriate exercises. PARADE is offering Bonnie Prudden's book, profusely illustrated with photographs, for only $1 a copy.

The Diet Watchers Gourmet Cookbook, also offered for $1 each, is already familiar to many thousands of PARADE readers who have bought it previously and now it's available again. When authors Ann Gold and Sara Briller put together their gourmet cookbook, they had in mind the depressing fact that most diet dishes are dull and tasteless. But their recipes, designed to accompany an eating program of up to seven pounds weight loss the first week and two pounds a week thereafter, include such delicious favorites as English kidney pie, stuffed breast of veal, Hawaiian lamb and pineapple burgers and shrimp chow mein. You won't hesitate to serve any of these gourmet plates to even your most discerning guest—and yet the pounds come off.

So, do your health a favor this summer—order these books today at the low price of $1 each.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES

PILL PEOPLE How many Americans cannot go to sleep at night without first taking a sleeping pill or two?

Estimates range from two to five million.

In Great Britain, Dr. Malcolm Heron of Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge, says more than 500,000 people in Great Britain take sleeping tablets each night. He points out that the drug problem is not confined to young people.

The middle-aged and the old are also drug-oriented, using a wide variety of "intensely advertised pharmaceuticals to stimulate or comfort themselves.

Dr. Heron calculates that the British pharmaceutical industry sends 32 pounds of advertising literature per year to each British doctor, so that they, too, are drug-oriented in their treatment of patients.

Marijuana is widely used by the young, he says, as a manifestation of their rebellion against the materialism of a society which for years has been more interested in what a man has than what he is.

Dr. Heron believes that too many middle-aged parents simply do not understand the world in which their offspring live and what sort of world their children would like to build.

Do Dr. Heron's observations also hold true for the United States? Surely, they are relevant.

Pfeiffer, zoologists sent to Vietnam by the Society for Social Responsibility in Science to study the ecological effects of the war, one spraying kills a large number of mature trees in a forest. Many areas have received two or three doses and are thus denuded of underbrush and seedlings as well.

Over 40 percent of the pine tree plantations in South Vietnam have been burnt in fires started either deliberately or by artillery shells.

Another result of the U.S. military presence: the millions of large craters--often 35 feet deep and 45 feet wide--caused by exploding bombs.

Each U.S. Air Force B-52 regularly carries 108 500-pound bombs, each capable of making such a crater. The Air Force flew 982 missions over the Republic of Vietnam in 1967, and 3022 in 1968. Three to 12 planes flew in each mission, for an average of eight planes each mission.

From these figures, simple arithmetic shows that in two years 3,450,000 craters have been dug into the South Vietnamese landscape.

These holes catch water during the rainy season and remain water-filled even late into the dry season. Without heavy-duty land-moving equipment, they remain a permanent land feature, rendering much valuable cropland unusable and providing a breeding ground for disease-carrying mosquitoes.

Yes, the Vietnamese will have lots of repair work to do.

FOOD PRICES Which major city of the world ranks highest in food prices? The housewives of Japan have complained for years that it is Tokyo.

To find out, The Asahi Shimbun, a Japanese newspaper, ordered its overseas correspondents in Paris, London, Bonn and New York to buy 14 items of meat, vegetables, fish, and dairy products. The prices were then compared with those in Tokyo.

The survey reveals that prices for eight items in Tokyo are highest.

The price of carrots and potatoes in Tokyo is more than four times the price in London, Paris, and New York. Tokyo housewives also pay the highest price for lettuce, cabbage, milk, tuna, and sea bass. Even though Japan is recognized for the tremendous size of its annual fish haul, the price of fish in Tokyo is higher than in London. Only in pork, eggs and tomatoes is Tokyo lowest in price.

The per capita income in Tokyo is the lowest of the five cities tested.

SALES & SST France doesn't know whether to prohibit overland supersonic flights. In partnership with Great Britain, France has built the Concorde supersonic air transport, which both countries are now testing.

If the Concorde is permitted to fly overland at supersonic speeds, France is convinced the partnership can sell 450 of the planes by 1980. If not, the number of sales may be less than 200.

European countries which have banned overland supersonic flights now include Great Britain, West Germany, and Holland, with Switzerland probably following suit.

Undecided at this point, the French government is stalling. No decisions will be made, it says, until October when the Concorde is tested over France at twice the speed of sound.

Recently, in a case involving jet vibration from a French Air Force fighter plane which caused a barn to collapse, killing three occupants, the government lost the case and had to pay the barn owner $18,000.

CAN YOU SLEEP AS SOUNDLY AS SHE DOES WITHOUT PILLS?

VIETNAM AFTERMATH If and when we finally depart Vietnam, we will leave plenty of work for the Vietnamese. The amount of ecological damage we have wrought there is staggering.

For example, Defense Department figures show that since 1962 we have sprayed enough chemicals to defoliate 3.8 million acres of forest and bushland, plus 500,000 acres of cropland.

According to Dr. Gordon H. Orians and Dr. E. W.

PILGRIMS' PROMOTION

They are beginning to beat the drums in Plymouth, Mass., to celebrate the 350th anniversary of the Pilgrims' landing in America.

Plymouth (pop. 17,000 but growing to 27,000 in summers) is a picturesque town steeped in history and supposedly enamored of the past.

It boasts replicas of the Mayflower which sailed from Plymouth, Devon, on Sept. 16, 1620; the rock on which the Pilgrims stepped ashore; the colony, Plimoth Plantation, as it was constructed (and spelled) in 1627. Also, the Plymouth Drug Store, the Puritan Clothing Company, the Plymouth Rock Hardware Store, and other historically named enterprises.

But Plymouth has gone the way of many New England communities. No longer is it the all-Yankee white Anglo-Saxon Protestant town it was in previous centuries, taking enormous pride in its pioneer heritage.

Today it is predominantly Roman Catholic, 40 percent of its population of Italian and Portuguese descent, another 25 percent of Irish and German stock, the rest Yankee. The town votes Democratic, although the Republican Party registers the single largest bloc of voters. Generally the large number of independents swings the vote on Election Day.

According to Edward Gar-side, editor of The Old Colony Memorial, "The Pilgrim tradition is probably the single most commercial factor Plymouth has going for it. But most of our people truly regard it as a rather antiquarian image with overtones of snobbishness.

"In World War I," he explains, "we had the Plymouth Cordage Works here. It employed about 2000 people. Now Columbian Rope, its successor, employs about 250, which still makes it our largest concern. But that's not very large, is it?"

"Last year our townspeople voted against spending $75,000 on promoting the 350th anniversary of the Pilgrims' landing. But this year they've contributed $25,000 and have raised another $65,000 by private subscription. What we're waiting for now are contributions from the state and federal governments."

The Pilgrims' celebration is scheduled to get underway Sept. 12th in Plymouth with a parade, a ball, a musical and dramatic extravaganza and to run for 15 months.

In truth, the original Pilgrims, after a two-month trip entailing much hardship, landed near Provincetown, Mass., on Nov. 9, 1620. They began to explore the region and on Dec. 21st chose Plymouth as the site of their permanent settlement. Thus was founded the first colony of New England.

THEY GOT THE BUSINESS

For the fiscal year 1971 which began July 1, 1970, the Defense Department has about $19 billion to spend on procurement.

The Pentagon spreads its business among 22 prime military contractors and some 100,000 sub-contractors.

The fortunes of defense contractors change from year to year. If the Vietnam war cools off, the demand for guns, aircraft, artillery, bombs, etc., will naturally decrease. If the war expands and we have to supply other nations, it will increase.

For fiscal 1969 the top defense contractors were:
(1) Lockheed Aircraft Corp.: $2,040,000,000
(2) General Electric Co.:

- $1,621,000,000
- (3) General Dynamics Corp.: $1,243,000,000
- (4) McDonnell Douglas Corp.: $1,070,000,000
- (5) United Aircraft Corp.: $997,000,000
- (6) American Telephone & Telegraph Co.: $914,579,000
- (7) LTV, Inc.: $914,114,000
- (8) North American Rockwell Corp.: $674,175,000
- (9) Boeing Co.: $653,638,000
- (10) General Motors Corp.: $584,439,000

FACT OF LIFE

"A woman forgets what she tells the doctor, nurses, and technicians at different checkups. I've seen as many as six ages in a case report."--
Dr. David H. Carr, McMaster University.

JAMES STEWART

HENRY FONDA

SHIRLEY MACLAINE

GLENN FORD

WHY TV?

Henry Fonda is 65, James Stewart 62, Glenn Ford 54. What is there to do in Hollywood when you're a star of yesteryear?

One answer is to take the television money and run, which is why practically every waning star in the business is now ripe and ready for a TV series offer.

The three aforementioned have been signed for such TV series along with Shirley MacLaine, Tony Curtis, Dick Van Dyke, and James Garner, all of whom have seen their best days at the film box office.

Their objective is to enjoy the same gimmick Fred MacMurray, 61, uses on his television show, My Three Sons. MacMurray's parts in all the TV episodes are filmed in a concentrated three-month period, and the rest of the scenes are shot around him. Thus he has plenty of time to play golf, vacation on his Russian River ranch, or star in Walt Disney movies.

Even multimillionaire Cary Grant, 66, is playing around with the idea of a TV series. Like Jimmy Stewart he would like to star in a family situation comedy slanted toward youth.

OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED THIS SEASON

We urge you to order your full color prints now while the supply lasts. The dramatic portraiture of animals is the latest decorator rage, and these are certain to go quickly. In order to show some of the craftsmanship and intricate detail in all the pictures, we have shown one picture larger than the rest. Actually all four fine art prints are the same size, a full 11" x 14" decorator size. So hurry, order now, offer will not be repeated this season in Parade Magazine.

My Favorite Jokes

by Tiny Tim

EDITOR'S NOTE: Is Tiny Tim for real? This was the question of the day when he first came to general public attention a couple of years ago. However, titillation over his bizarre appearance and vocal range gradually gave way to a genuine interest in his unusual musical talent and today he is regarded as one of our leading entertainers.

Tiny has been a big hit at nightclubs, on a tour of Europe, and, of course, on television. Last Dec. 18th his marriage, telecast over the Tonight Show, drew a record viewing audience.

Just as he appreciates old songs, Tiny enjoys old jokes, especially those about children. Here are some of his favorites:

A Boy Scout, as of course you know, is supposed to do one good deed each day.

"What good deed did you perform today?" once asked a neighbor of a small Scout.

"Oh," said the young hero, "mother had only enough castor oil for one dose, so I let my sister take it!"

Little Marie was sitting on her grandfather's knee one day, and after looking at him intently for a time she said:

"Grandpa, were you in Noah's Ark?"

"Certainly not, my dear," answered the astonished old man.

"Then why weren't you drowned?"

Mother was instructing little Gertrude in regard to her manners, as she was being dressed to return her friend's call.

"If they ask you to dine, say, 'No, I thank you, I have dined.'"

But the conversation turned out differently from what she had anticipated.

"Come along, Gertrude," invited her little friend's father, "have a bite with us."

"No, I thank you," came Gertrude's dignified reply, "I have already bitten."

Little Lydia had been given a ring as a birthday present, but, much to her disappointment, not one of the guests at dinner noticed it. Finally, unable to withstand their indifference, she exclaimed, "Oh, dear, I'm so warm in my new ring!"

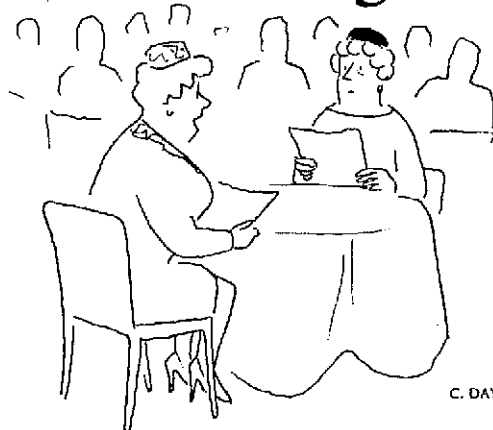

A lady who had just received an interesting bit of news said to her little daughter:

"Marjorie, dear, auntie has a new baby, and now mamma is the baby's aunt, papa is the baby's uncle, and you are her little cousin."

"Well," said Marjorie, wonderingly, "wasn't that arranged quick?"

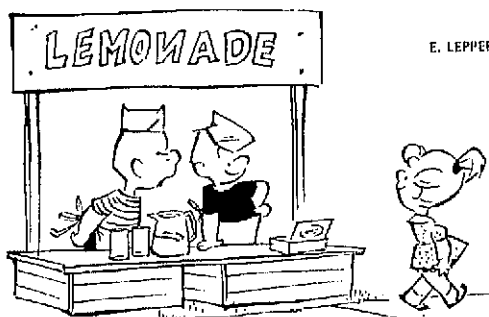

Little Harry was asked by his Sunday school teacher: "And, Harry, what are you going to give your darling little brother for Christmas this year?" "I dunno," said Harry. "I gave him the measles last year."

It's to Laugh

C. DAY

"I think it's exciting never to eat in the same place twice... besides I don't tip."

E. LEPPER

"Let's watch our corporate image, Henderson!"

G. DOLE

D. GERARD

"I see a leveling off in mutual funds, an upsurge in over-the-counter trading and a wait-and-see period in corporate bonds!"

BY GEORGE WUNDER

BUCKY AND MANTLET RETURN FROM THEIR CLIFF DWELLING EXPEDITION AND FACE AN EMERGENCY AT THE AIR BASE.

WE FIGURE IF WINTHROP IS STARVING FOR OXYGEN, HE'S IN TOO BAD SHAPE TO REALIZE HE'S STRAYED OVER SOME OF THE TALLEST MOUNTAINS ON THE NORTH AMERICAN CONTINENT.

DOESN'T MATTER NOW HOW HIS OXYGEN SUPPLY AND WARNING SYSTEM FAILED. THEY DID! NOW WE'VE GOT TO GET HIM AWAY FROM THOSE ROCKS BEFORE WE TRY TO BRING HIM DOWN TO AN ALTITUDE WHERE HE CAN BREATHE.

OUR FIX TELLS US WHERE HE IS, BUT HE DOESN'T RESPOND TO THE AIR CONTROLLERS. THAT'S YOUR SLOT, WARWOW. WINTHROP'S BEEN HEARING YOUR VOICE IN HIS HEADSET FOR MONTHS. GET ON THE HORN.

BASE CONTROL TO AIR FORCE ZERO, NINER... THIS IS LIEUTENANT WARWOW. WINTHROP. DO YOU READ ME? I REPEAT, DO YOU READ ME?

WARWOW? OL' CHEYENNE WARWOW?... HEY, SIR INSTRUCT'OR, WHA' YOU DOIN' UP HERE?... I'M ALL ALONE...

LISTEN TO ME GOOD, WINTHROP. I WANT A READING ON YOUR INSTRUMENTS, THEN I'M GOING TO GIVE YOU A HEADING. YOU KNOW WHAT A COMPASS IS FOR, DON'T YOU?

AND SOME TIME LATER...
WHEW! HE'S OUT OF THE PEAKS. OVER DESERT COUNTRY NOW.

OKAY, WINTHROP. NOW YOU'RE GOING TO LOSE ALTITUDE. I WANT YOU TO GO DOWN TO 8000... JUST WATCH THOSE LITTLE NUMBERS...

HEY! LIEU'ENANT! GOT A SILLY RED LIGHT IN FRON' O' ME. WHAZZAT FOR, LIEUTENANT?

FUEL WARNING LIGHT! HE'S BEEN UP SO LONG HE'S RUNNING OUT OF FUEL!

-VICTOR HUGO-

OLIVER WARBUCKS' LAST WORDS WERE, MR. PRESIDENT, TO INFORM YOU PERSONALLY THAT HE'LL NEVER REVEAL THE SECRET OF THE "NATHAN HALE'S" INVISIBILITY... NO MATTER WHAT THE PRICE HE PAYS!

NO ONE HAS TO TELL ME THAT, ADMIRAL... I KNOW IT!!

ONLY THE TOP OFFICIALS IN THE U.S. ARE AWARE OF ANNIE'S PLIGHT AND THE LAST DITCH EFFORTS OF OLIVER WARBUCKS TO THWART THE ENEMY'S CONTEMPTIBLE PLOT!

WE'RE ALMOST CERTAIN THAT WARBUCKS' DAUGHTER IS ON BOARD THE "NATHAN HALE." MR. PRESIDENT... AND OLIVER SHOULD HAVE ARRIVED THERE JUST ABOUT NOW!

AND WASHINGTON, D.C., ISN'T THE ONLY WORLD CAPITAL THAT HAS A STAKE IN THE FUTURE OF THE INVISIBLE SHIP...

THE AMERICANS REFUSE TO PANIC, COMRADE! THEY MUST SUSPECT BY NOW THAT OUR "FLYING FIEND" IS A HOAX!!

WE ALREADY HAVE THE NEXT STEP PLANNED -- WE CONVENE A DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE...

...IN WHICH WE CALL FOR A WORLD-WIDE BAN ON INVISIBLE SHIPS!!

BUT, COMRADE, THEY ARE THE ONLY NATION WHICH POSSESSES AN INVIS... AH, HA!! I SEE YOUR STRATEGY!! BRILLIANT, COMRADE!!

I'LL LAND HER LIGHT AS A FEATHER, MR. WARBUCKS!

PUNJAB HAS REACHED ANNIE--TRAILING A BALL OF TWINE TO GUIDE HIM ON HIS RETURN TRIP TO THE OPEN DECKS--

FIT AS A FIDDLE, PUNJAB... AN' MY HEART'S BACK T' NORMAL, KNOWIN' YOU'RE ON BOARD!!

WHAT WILL HAPPEN TO YOU IF I SHOULD CRASH THROUGH THIS DOOR?

NOTHIN', PUNJAB! I'LL POISON HERE'S TOO YELLOW T' MAKE A MOVE 'CAUSE IF HE DOES, I PRESS THIS BUTTON AN' BLOW HIM UP THERE WITH THE REST O' THE SPUTNIKS!!

I WILL UNLOCK THE DOOR AND AS SOON AS THE CREATURE ENTERS, RIDDLE HIM WITH BULLETS!*

SHOULD I BE UNABLE TO RETURN WITH YOU, ANNIE... FOLLOW THE TWINE I HAVE ATTACHED TO MY SASH... IT WILL LEAD YOU TO SAFETY!

IF I'M GOIN', PUNJAB... I'M NOT GOIN' WITHOUT YOU!!

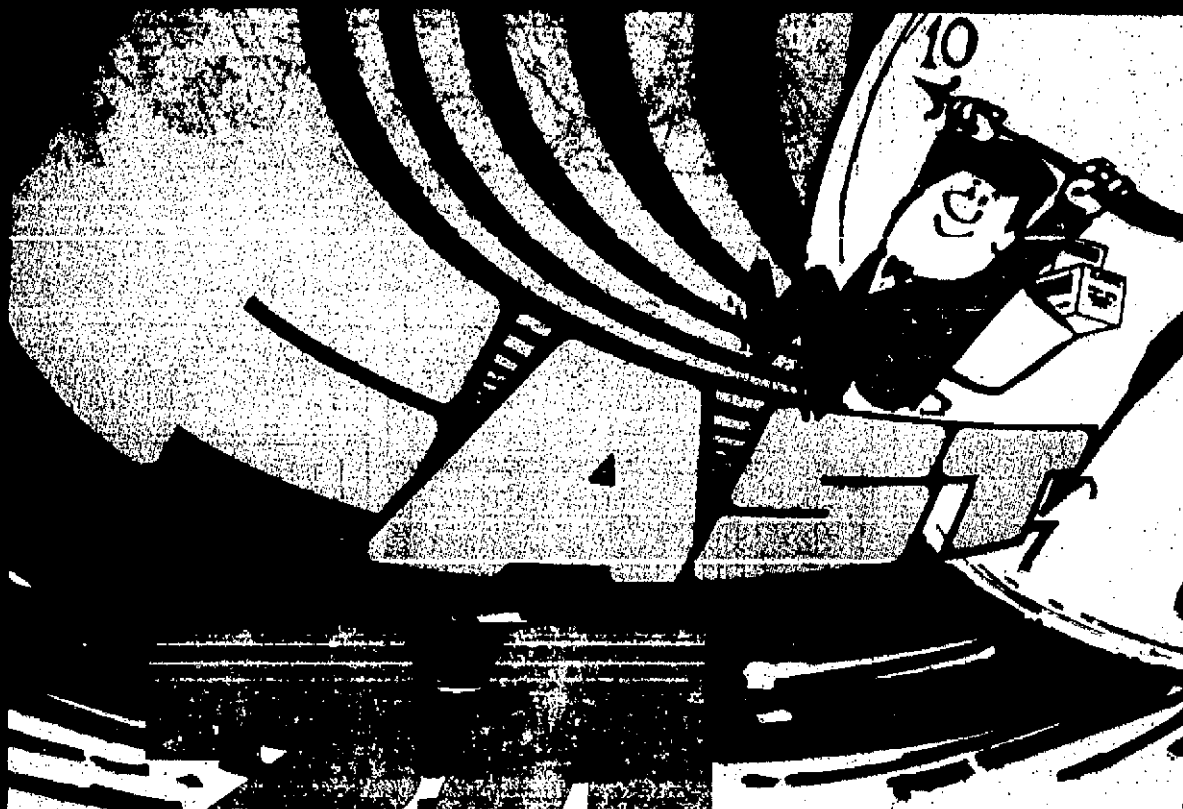

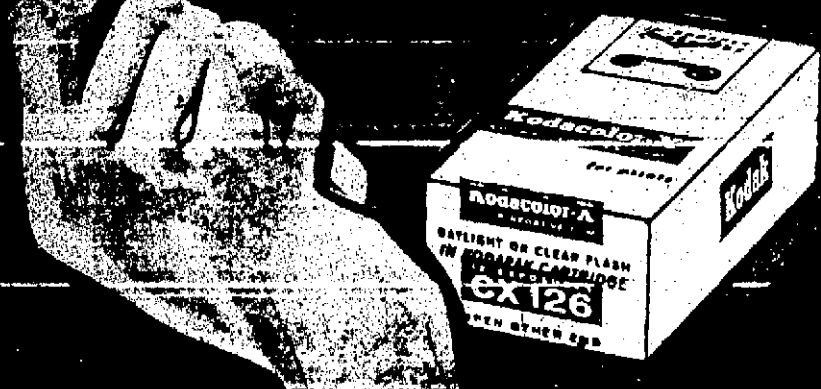

WATCH 'EM, PUNJAB... THEY'RE JABBERIN' AWAY IN THEIR OWN LANGUAGE... AN' WHAT THEY'RE PROBABLY SAYIN' AIN'T LIKELY T' INSURE YOU, ME AN' SANDY A LONG, PEACEFUL LIFE!!

DOWN WITH THE DASTARDLY DISCIPLES OF DECADENT DEMOCRACIES!!
